KENDRICK LEAVES MONDAY

Johnson, MacDonnell and Noble Also to Play Pro Ball

Charles "Buster" Kendrick, former Winchester High School star pitcher, is leaving Monday to report to the Boston Bees' farm management at Evansville, Ill. Ninety embryonic big leaguers are to report at Evansville for preliminary work, after which they will be assigned to clubs A, B and C teams in which the Bees have in interest.

Kendrick pitched last season in the Cape Cod League and made a good showing, easily accommodating himself to the jump from local independent ball to the faster variety on the Cape. He is a big rangy lad with 185 pounds spread over a better than six foot frame, has fast speed and a good curve ball. The Bees' impressario think quite well of his chances. Since leaving high school "Buster" has been the pitching minstrel of Paul Quigley's Winchester Millionaires, developing into one of the best right handers in the independent ranks.

"Albie" MacDonnell, apple-cheeked Millionaires' outfielder who last year played pro ball with Bees' team in the South, will again sport a Boston farm uniform this summer, but as yet has not been ordered to report.

Rangy "Artie" Johnson, capable Millionaires' left hander who was signed to a Bees' contract last summer, is to report to Erie as soon as he is graduated from Winchester High in June. "Artie" is a well-knit, stuffy and speedy made a fine impression on the Bees' board of strategy while the Winchester boy was working out at Braves' Field last summer, and those who have seen him pitch for the Millionaires and in High School believe that only his tendency to be erratic stands between him and money baseball. He will work this spring for the Winchester High School team, and should be the best schoolboy flogger in the Mystic Valley.

Fred Noble, the fourth member of the local quartet to play organized ball this summer, has signed independently to play with Gloucester Bay down Cape Breton way in Canada. "Red" worked out with the Bees last summer and like Kendrick, MacDonnell and Johnson, has played with the Millionaires, capturing the high school nine during his undergraduate days and subsequently playing for New Hampton Prep. He is an outfielder-pitcher with a great arm, good batting eye, plenty of speed and oodles of competitive spirit. He should do well in Canadian baseball.

WILLIAM TOWLE WHITE

William Towle White of 17 Central street, a resident of Winchester for the past 14 years, died Monday night, March 21, at the Lowell General Hospital.

Mr. White, a native of Montreal, P. Q., was for many years prominently identified with the leather business in Lowell. He went to that city with his parents when a child, was educated in the Lowell schools and as a young man was admitted to partnership with his two brothers, Edward L. and Henry Kirke, in White Brothers' Tannery, a business founded by his father, William Henry White in 1863.

The business grew rapidly and White leather came to be well known in the market as high grade shoe leather. When the White plant became affiliated with the American Hide & Leather Co., Mr. White was made general manager of the plant, a position he held for many years, and his son, Reginald, is now associated with the plant.

During the later years of his residence in Lowell Mr. White lived in the so-called "Faulkner" house on Belmont avenue. He came to Winchester from that address 14 years ago. He was a member of Kilwinning Lodge, A. F. & A. M., of Lowell, the York City club of that city and of the Vesper Country Club.

Mr. White leaves his wife, Mrs. Marie E. (McKinney) White; a son, Reginald, both of this town; a daughter, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish Morris, 3rd, of Lynbrook, L. I.; and five grandchildren.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at Saunders' Funeral Home in Lowell, with Rev. Appleton Granis, rector of St. Anne's Episcopal Church, Lowell, officiating. There was a large attendance of former business associates and many beautiful flowers. Bearers were Dr. Roy S. Perkins, Harold F. Howe and Harry B. Fleming, representing Kilwinning Lodge, High in Lowell. The casket was borne by Mr. E. Palmer, A. J. Bryant and Thomas H. McFadden of the American Hide & Leather Co. Interment was in the family lot in Lowell cemetery.

ART ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING

Fine Arts Curator to Speak

The Winchester Art Association will hold its annual meeting and election of officers Tuesday evening, April 5, at 8 o'clock in the art gallery of the Public Library.

After a business session Mr. James F. Plaut of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts will give an illustrated talk on "How to Look at Paintings." Mr. Plaut is especially well qualified to treat this subject authoritatively. He is curator of paintings at the Boston Art Museum, a graduate of Harvard with the degree of master of arts from the same university, backed by extensive study abroad. He is at present giving a course on Modern Art at Harvard as a member of the University Fine Art Department and has done editorial work in this field for a Boston daily.

His lectures at Harvard have been very popular for he is not only a scholarly but a most delightful speaker. The Art Association feels that it has been especially fortunate in securing Mr. Plaut to address its members and anticipates that a large audience will avail itself of the opportunity to profit by his address. Only members of the Association are privileged to attend this meeting.

CHORISTERS IN CONCERT HERE

APRIL 29

The Winchester Choristers, under the direction of Mary Norton Witham and Gladys J. O'Donnell, accompanied by the Winchester Glee Club, will give a concert in the Town Hall on Friday, April 29, at 8.30 o'clock. Assisting the Choristers will be two other well known local musical organizations, directed by Mrs. Witham, the Fortnightly Glee Club, for which Lucy L. James Mawn is general chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Last Sunday evening the Choristers gave a successful concert in Topsfield, being assisted by Louise Allman, violinist. They are singing over Station WIDH at 9 o'clock on Sunday, April 21. Herbert Cleary is president of the Choristers and the secretary-treasurer is Helen McGrath.

EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY TEA

Mrs. Waldo Rockwood of Cambridge street gave a delightful tea at her home last Friday afternoon in honor of the 80th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Mary L. Winn of Elmwood street.

The tea table was gay with jonquils and irises, and a most artistically decorated birthday cake with 80 candles was much admired. Mrs. Forrest Young presided.

Among the guests were Mrs. Winn's four daughters, Mrs. May Whitaker of Rye, N. H.; Mrs. Elizabeth Wentworth of Andover, Pa.; Mrs. Margaret Bartlett of Waterbury, Conn.; and Mrs. John McLean of the town; also Rev. and Mrs. R. Mitchell Rushton, Miss Mary A. Fitch, Mrs. Martin Swanson, Mrs. Earl Richardson, Mrs. H. Wadsworth Hight, Mrs. Donald W. Smith, Mrs. John McLean, Miss Elsie Locke, Mrs. C. T. Grimes and Mrs. Charlotte R. Hunt.

ATTENDED DIAMOND JUBILEE OF LODGE

Mr. George W. Tilley of Lloyd street, for many years actively identified with the Royal Arcanum, attended the diamond jubilee celebration of the former Council, Council of Newport, R. I., in that city last week.

The celebration was held in Moose Hall, and as an especial jubilee feature the initial degree was worked upon a class of candidates by a staff of six past grand regents of Rhode Island, of whom Mr. Tilley was one.

Mr. Tilley is associated with Winchester (Cowan) as one of the town's most ardent baseball fans, having been vice president of the old Winchester Baseball Association in the halcyon days of the late George LeDue.

EN KA SPRING MEETING

Street Fair Plans Announced

The spring meeting of En Ka was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Righter, Fernway, Myopia Hill, on Wednesday, March 30. A buffet luncheon was served at 12.30 o'clock and the meeting followed, attended by 70 members. Mrs. Guy Howe, president, presided and received the reports of several committees. Always of interest to the townspeople is the En Ka activity at the Hospital and the Home for Aged. Mrs. Harold Meyer, of Sheffield road, chairman of Finance Committee told of the gift of two Toast-Masters, and the installation of the necessary electric wiring, to the Home. She also reported the purchase of new china dishes for the Children's Ward at the Hospital and that some recent painting and a new rug for each room on the third floor of the Nurses Home had completed the work there for the year. New curtains have been hung in the En Ka Room in the Hospital.

Mrs. Franklin Lane, chairman of the civic committee reported 27 finished sweaters had been turned in to the Red Cross. Her report clearly told of the smaller, but necessary and the large and important work that En Ka is contributing to this community. Mrs. Samuel Cole, of Woodside road, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, reported the outline of the En Ka Street Fair plans. The date is Saturday, May 21, and will be held on the Town Hall grounds. She expressed the Society's appreciation of the cooperation of the Town officials and the friends, who again, as in the past three years have helped make this community enterprise a great success. An "En Ka Feista" with Spanish music, Spanish costumes, gay with shawls, scarfs, bright skirts and large sombreros, is the theme of the fair. A Prado of tropical palms, a coconut grove for dancing, a sidewalk cafe and many shops full of desirable things to purchase are all in these plans and expectations of the committee.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Three members were absent from the meeting of March 31. Relief for the unemployed is now engaging the attention of our "Church" Hinder, and unquestionably it is merit in the measure which he suggests. Pertinent details can be furnished to interested inquirers.

And Nat. Nichols is interested in improved traffic conditions with a special reference to the parking problem. We understand that his recommendations are to receive a fair trial. Rotary International has recently issued a pamphlet, inclusive description of Rotary and its objects which has come to our attention. It merits the widest possible circulation.

We submit a quotation from Paul Harris, founder of Rotary: "In Rotary clubs in Asia representatives of a score of races and a dozen religions have for the first time in history been brought together. The things were considered impossible."

A readily predictable result of the recent German occupation of Austria has been the disbanding of the 11 Austrian Service Clubs. To be familiar with the Rotary concept nothing could more clearly indicate the gulf which separates government by dictatorship from the democratic form of government, or indeed from modern monarchic forms. It is significant that Rotary maintains a healthy growth in all quarters of the world not subject to the sway of European dictatorship. Nor is it unreasonable to believe that the principles which govern the service clubs will eventually prevail among those peoples who for the moment have been brought under the influence of twentieth century autocrats.

The after-luncheon period of the current meeting was in charge of James J. Quinn, chairman of our International Service Committee. At this time "Jim" introduced as guests of the club Mr. Eugene McDonough of Boston, representative of the International Friendship League, and Miss Nancy McDonough, a member of a party recently organized by the League for a tour of Britain and Central Europe. Miss Tirrell spoke briefly and informally and in a charmingly describing the high-light of her experiences on this tour and demonstrating the very great value of this and similar enterprises in cementing the bonds of friendship between the peoples of alien extraction. Rotarians have sponsored many such endeavors. We believe that the good work will continue with ever increasing benefits and in due course will act as a counterweight to the "evil to war" which has been an eternal curse to mankind.

HAD FINE BASKETBALL RECORD

Beverly City Club Coached By Winchester Teacher

Almost all of those who read the basketball summaries throughout the season have remarked the fine record turned up this year by the Beverly City Club. In the competition for the very best club basketball teams in the State.

Few of those who have noted this fine record, however, have realized that the Beverly City Club was coached by Mr. Edward A. Bartlett of the commercial department of the Winchester High School and for the past few years, assistant coach of the high school.

"Bart," as he is known to his many friends, is a former B. U. gridiron star and a three-sport athlete. That he is a capable basketball instructor is attested by the fact that the Beverly City club won 27 out of 32 games against the best teams in the State. As a matter of fact the Beverly boys are the only team in Massachusetts to have beaten the Boston Celtics of Cambridge, a trick they turned three times this season. Beverly split even with the strong Malden City Club, and was unable to get games with the West End House quintet or the Y. M. C. A. five.

In addition to his basketball coaching activity, "Bart" manages a baseball team in the Beverly City League during the summer, and in both sports his charges have been very smart, aggressive ball. His quietest closed their season last Friday evening, winning a close game from the strong Crimmins of the West End. The victory over this club is the first in the history of the team.

A team of local boys, comprising Libby Gaudioso, Dick Hakanson, Rod Noble, Frank Eshbach, Carl Johnson and June and Rusty Donaghy, played the preliminary game to the Beverly-Independents attraction being nosed out by a close score.

William H. Rogers has been appointed by the Board as a constable. At the request of the Park Department the Board appointed Robert W. Richardson special police officer for park department duty.

Mr. O'Connor retired after 42 years with the Post Office. The book, accompanying the gift of money, contained the names of those expressing their congratulations.

Dr. Milton J. Quinn's host of friends in Winchester will be pleased to learn that he is recovering nicely from the serious operation which he underwent at the Deaconess Hospital in Boston. He was able to sit up for the first time on Wednesday.

FIREMEN BUSY

The first of last week-end's fires was at 11:51 Friday morning when a round from Woburn Box 41, following two alarms, sent apparatus to that city to cover in. Box 143 was sounded at 12:02 for a brush fire in the woods near the residence of Mr. Thomas Vinson on High street. At 1:39 there was a grass fire on Cross street near the residence of Mr. Frank Goodhue, and at 9:12 p.m., a brush fire in the rear of the residence of Mr. Samuel Gustin on Ridge street. Saturday's heavy rain gave the firemen a breathing spell, but Sunday was a busy day, commencing with an alarm from Box 312 for a grass fire near the residence of Patrolman Henry P. Dempsey, 353 Washington street. At 12:28 there was another grass fire near the Winchester Rock & Brick company between East and Cross streets. Box 14 came in for a brush fire near the residence of Dr. Frederick N. Stephens on Swan road. At 5:29 sparks from a fireplace set fire to the roof of the house on Hillcrest parkway now being remodelled but formerly occupied by Mr. Otis Philbrick.

The first of three fires Monday took place at 3:36 p.m. when Box 34 came in for burning grass on Holton street. At 4:35 there was a grass fire near the residence of Mr. James Cullen on Canal street, and at 7:08 p.m., a third grass fire near the residence of Mr. Krikor Boodakian, 14 Lockman street.

JOHN P. UNDERWOOD

John P. Underwood, who for the past five years had spent much of his time in Winchester at the home of his nephew, Charles A. Underwood, 61 Salisbury street, died suddenly Sunday, March 27, while driving his automobile through Canton on his way to this town from Middletown, R. I.

Mr. Underwood, a retired banker, was born 75 years ago in Newport, R. I., son of Peter A. and Emily P. (White) Underwood. Besides his nephew in Winchester, he leaves another nephew, Roy W. Underwood of Newport, and Mrs. Edward C. Ganz, Jr., of Middletown, R. I.

The funeral was held on Wednesday in Newport and the interment was in Island Cemetery in that city.

THERE AND BACK

Miss Bridgman, Miss Hainsworth, William Ziegel and John Boit, all of 38 Cabot street, have recently returned from a five-weeks' trip to the Mexican border, covering 5400 miles, entering 19 states, and with but two or three exceptions, their capital cities. All previous idea of continuing to the City of Mexico was abandoned by the advice of friends who were fully aware of the disturbed conditions in their country. Winds and weather were, however, everywhere favorable, rivers obligingly remained within their banks and Texas was redolent with orange blossoms, vivid with bluebonnets, verbenas galliarda, coreopsis and wisteria, to say nothing of palms and oleanders.

Tuskegee University, our lodging in Booker Washington's own big house, our host his urbane and gifted grandson, an audience with that saintly old scientist George Washington Carver, this was a memorable experience. Driving across the great Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals was another, Helen Keller's biplane was close by; the superb Capitol at Baton Rouge and the Huey Long bridge; the Natural Bridge of Virginia with illuminated musical pagoda, these were all "high spots." So, too, quite literally, was stopping on the sky line in a dense fog to spend the night in a spick and span little Tavern kept by two C. C. boys on the mountain crest.

But our greatest thrill was the unexpected meeting with our good fellow townsman, Mr. Harry Swanson, at the revival meeting in Brownsville, conducted by Gipsy Simms. We had missed him at the carnival in New Orleans, again at Houston, and although we knew that business engaged him in Texas, had given up the idea of finding him. The Hospitality Committee of the church, however, urged strangers to register and in doing so I found my name directly under his. Having signed, I rushed to the door to find our neighbors were not nowhere to be seen. We returned to our car which was parked with its nose to the curb and found a card fluttering on the windshield. (Capturing it, we read the inscription "Good old Massachusetts! Best sight I've seen leaving home! Stopping at El Jardin Hotel." C. Harry Swanson.)

He had had no idea whose car it was but direct contact was soon effected and a delightful afternoon of neighborly swapping of adventures followed as we drove out to the Port, picked oranges at a grove on the road, dined together, and finally enjoyed the Gipsy's evening service. We agreed perfectly that Brownsville is a city of charm, that Texas is a state of almost incredible vastness, and we'd rather live in New England!

COLLEGE CLUB ART GROUP

On Friday, April 1, the College Club Art Group will meet at 10 a.m. in the Addison Gallery in Andover for discussion of American Landscape, under the leadership of Mrs. Robert B. Dalzell. The committee in charge of the meeting put in long hours of study in preparation and maintained the same high standard in interest and excellence of presentation of their subject that has been shown by the group in previous study groups.

Through the co-operation of the Addison Gallery, they were able to use for examples the original paintings of many of America's foremost landscape artists, showing the characteristics of the Hudson River School, the Impressionists, Modernists, etc. Mrs. J. L. Lobingier used this opportunity, also, to explain, from the artist's point of view, what to look for in a picture, how to judge such elements as key, harmony and composition. Many of the group lingered in the charming town of Andover not only to study the pictures in the gallery, but for luncheon at the Phillips Inn or at some of the attractive tea rooms available, then making a leisurely trip home again.

TWO INJURED IN MOTOR CRASH

Two persons were injured shortly after 1 o'clock on Sunday morning when a Pontiac coach, owned and driven by Leo T. Burke of 35 Diver street, Lowell, while headed north on Cambridge street and making the bend at the entrance to the Winchester Country Club, collided with a Chevrolet coupe, owned and driven by Joseph Condes of 12 Bridge street, who was driving south.

Both machines were so badly damaged they had to be towed to the Central Garage. Condes complained of injuries to his left arm and knee. Miss Rita Munihan of 4 Wilson street, Billerica, a passenger in Burke's machine, sustained a cut over the left ear. She was taken to the office of Dr. Philip J. McManus by Patrolman Henry Boyle.

Tuesday, April 5 will be a day of recollection at the Cenacle in Brighton. All those desiring transportation call Mrs. Robert Cavanaugh, Woburn 0221-7.

The next meeting of the Guild will be held April 12 with sewing and tea.

ROBERT E. HARDING

Word was received on Wednesday evening of the death of Robert E. Harding, a former resident of this town, in Santa Cruz, Calif., on March 30.

Mr. Harding, whose Winchester home was at 6 Fells road, died suddenly at the home of his daughter. He had been counsel for several Boston banking institutions, and left Winchester last August to go to California because of his health. He had been believed to be on the road to recovery and intended to return east next month.

Mr. Harding was born in Charlestown in 1874 and graduated from Boston University in 1898. He and his family were well known in Winchester; his daughters Joan and Ellen, having been active horsewomen and the first named, one of the most successful of the young exhibitors in this district.

He leaves his wife, the former Ruth Fernald; and three daughters, Mrs. J. C. Schmidt (Ellen), Mrs. Robert H. Davis (Joan), both of Santa Cruz; and Miss Martha Harding of this town. Funeral arrangements were not known when the Star went to press.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The Annual Boy Scout Financial Drive is now under full swing here in Winchester, under the able leadership of Mr. George W. Franklin, under whose leadership last year's campaign was so successful.

The organization of workers is rather complete, although verification of the names of all workers has not yet reached the director. The President, chairmen and workers, as received by the director, are as follows:

Precinct 1—John C. Carter, Chairman; Charley Slack, Gunnar Abrahamson, Dr. E. C. Priest, Leonard Griffith, Oliver R. Dyer, Carleton Strong, Harry T. Jackson, Frank Zaffina, Frank Jarry, Ernest Butterworth, Miss Mary Tucci, Mrs. Alvin S. Newton, Herbert McDonald, Frank W. Horne and Raymond V. Hayward.

Precinct 2—T. Parker Clarke, Chairman; John Belter, Charles A. Farrar, Norman Clark, Wallace Fox.

Precinct 3—W. Allan Wilde, Chairman; Roger Newell, William Sullivan, Mrs. Harold Smith, George W. Hayden, Jr., Chester W. Butterworth, Kenneth S. Hall, Francis O. P. Carlson, Theodore Elliott, Robert F. Lybeck, Donald Heath, George Rivinus and Clinton Mason.

Precinct 4—Maurice C. Bird, Chairman; Capt. Gerald D. Curtis and associates, Capt. Carl Sittler and associates, Capt. Theodore M. Atkinson and associates, Thomas Righter, Mr. James Delinell, Jr., F. Stewart Newton, W. J. Farwell, Jr., Earl Spencer, Harold Bates, Hazen Aver, A. Allen Kimball and Clayton Mason.

Precinct 5—John B. Kenner, Chairman; Joseph Butler, Enkline White, Edmund Meriam, Jr., Richard Barnard, Harold Fuller, William Spencer, Jr., Clarence M. Hamilton, Henry K. Spencer, Raymond Wilkins, London Burnham, Richard A. Harlow, Mrs. R. A. Harlow, Everett Stone, William Aseltine, Louis Wadleigh, Gladys Wadsworth, Mrs. Morris Kerr, Herbert D. Wadsworth, Marjorie Bentley, Bradford G. Donahue, James R. Doty, William Brown, Norman Brooks, Sen Graves, William R. Cole, Kenneth Pratt, Angelo Ghirardelli, Richard J. Johnson, Rex Crandall, Richard F. Fenn, Richard E. Rush, Gilman Wallace, Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, Clifford Lindberg, D. F. Higgins and Dean Sawyer.

Executive District—Warren Hersey, Chairman; George H. Lochman, Paul G. Eberle and Edward G. McDonald.

It is already evident in certain sections of the town that the workers are on the job in the fact that the blue Boy Scout Head, is beginning to show itself in the windows of contributors to this year's campaign.

In answer to the question "How is This Money Spent?" the following was secured from the Boy Scout office, located on South Border road. At the present time there are five Scout Troops and three Cub packs organized and functioning, with approximately 250 boys enrolled. In order that these boys may have guaranteed a full and undisturbed program it is essential that the Campaign be successfully completed in the shortest possible time so that the administrative program can be lifted from financial efforts to program efforts. A portion of this money is used for general administrative purposes in providing adequate training for the adult leaders, for the recording and keeping of proper records of advancement and ratings of all boys for the general promotion work in connection with establishing new units, for the general expense of the Council camps located at Amesbury, for both Cubs (from 9-12 yrs.) and for Scouts (12 years upward). All these expenses, in addition to the office administration, are taken care of through these funds.

Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Winship of Sheffield west have just returned from a visit in the South, spending three weeks in Palm Beach, Fla., and one week at Pinehurst, N. C.

ART LOVERS' CLUB OF GREATER BOSTON

The Art Lovers' Club of Greater Boston met at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Starks, 54 Jackson road, West Medford, March 24. After the regular business meeting, the president, Mrs. Ralph K. LaRose of this town, called upon the program chairman to introduce the speaker, Mrs. George E. Croissant of Arlington, who spoke on "Bookplates—A Branch of the Graphic Arts."

The bookplate, Mrs. Croissant said, may be considered by many, a modest branch of Graphic Art, but it is nevertheless one that is both ancient and persisting.

Historic records show it to be nearly as old as the book itself, earliest known examples being wood cuts of medieval German artists. The first on record is designed with a shield with coat of arms supported by an angel and appears pasted into volumes in the Carthusian Monastery of Buxheim. It was given to the library by Brother Hilbrand Brandenberg of Biberach about the year 1840. Schongauer, Durer, Tranchol, Holbein and Lucas Van Leyden were among the first artists to interest themselves in this field. Durer is said to have engraved at least six bookplates and to have designed others. He is best known by probably the one done for his friend, Balthard Pirckheimer, a Nuremberg jurist, probably of the late 15th century and is the property of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

From the beginning, heraldic forms with symbolic detail and lavishly decorative motifs were popular. Many were very elaborate, reflecting German art of that day. In France the bookplate was popular, although the first artists to interest themselves in this field. Durer is said to have engraved at least six bookplates and to have designed others. He is best known by probably the one done for his friend, Balthard Pirckheimer, a Nuremberg jurist, probably of the late 15th century and is the property of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Handsome designs were made by others and the ease of reproduction enhanced the favor with which they were received. England looked with approval on these symbols of ownership, at first favoring designs of simple armorial bearings. During the latter part of Elizabeth's reign and especially after the Restoration the bookplate became so popular that it was considered almost an essential of a well ordered library.

We cannot venture to guess which was the first bookplate made in America nor can we say with absolute truth when the first plate was used in our country, but it undoubtedly had its origin in the hands of a Dutch or English settler. The larger part of our books came from England and very few plates are found with plates of other nationalities. The bookplate never became very general, but was confined to those of gentle birth, to the clergy, lawyers, and men of education and to women of literary accomplishments. The greater number of plates are cut on copper but there are some wood cuts and some which look as if cut in silver, an easier metal to work. One example is known in which brass is used and is now in possession of a writer of a book on American Bookplates. Steel engravings are of recent date but new plates are mostly on copper.

Paul Revere, artist craftsman of the 18th century, was among early Americans to achieve distinction in this field, although unfortunately he did not sign all he made. An example of the bookplate which he made for Gardiner Chandler, armorial in design, is owned by the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. The bookplates of the Presidents, about 20 in number, loaned by the American Antiquarian Society of Worcester, were exhibited at the recent Book Fair and Mrs. Croissant was privileged to see them there. The society has in its possession 35,000 bookplates, more than twice the number in any other collection in the United States. A majority of the American bookplates of historic interest are owned by famous artists as owned there.

Mrs. Croissant described the bookplates of the Presidents, among them that of George Washington, an arm and holding a star above his head, surrounded by a wreath of olive and arrows. The first president's name is engraved in script below.

Nothing is known of its origin and Washington's careful records show no entry of his purchase. Its heraldry is incorrect.

The dove should have been an eagle according to the correct symbol of ancestors and for this reason authorities have held that it was made in America. The original copper plate was finally presented by a late owner to the Metropolitan Museum in New York. Of special interest to Bostonians is the bookplate of President Ulysses Grant. At the close of the Civil War a group of Boston citizens subscribed to provide him with a library. Some 1200 books were purchased.

The Grant bookplate is a steel engraving with a border suggesting the marginal decorations on paper money. The President's name is at the top. The bookplate is the property of the City of Boston and is centered on the bookplate and below the inscription "From Citizens of Boston."

Franklin D. Roosevelt interests in bookplates, in the opinion of the committee, is the smallest and a very effective one with stars and anchor inside a rope border. The Roosevelt roses have been conventionally at the top of the bookplate, the medallion and a ribbon at the bottom carries the President's name. Eleanor Roosevelt's bookplate is very handsome and of the formal heraldic order with various decorations, the final being the pineapple, emblem of hospitality, executed by Dorothy Sturgis Harding an artist of Portsmouth, N. H. Mounted pictures of the bookplates of the Presidents were passed to the committee for inspection.

Mrs. Croissant spoke of the difference shown in bookplates of the South and those of New England pointing out that the former were made in London and that for this reason are better in heraldic design and execution than those of New England and New York as they were the product of men experienced in such work. Samuel Ford was the principal engraver of bookplates in the north before the war.

The essential part of the bookplate is the name of the owner and while this is sufficient to identify the plate and pleasant sometimes to include a quotation from a favorite author, with caution against improper handling of books. College plates as a rule are very plain but the plates used by the societies supported by students and alumni are often very elaborate. Almost all of the historical societies use plates in which the arms of the state or city in which they are located are used. With bookplates as in other lines of collections, rarity is a prominent element in deciding values. Early American plates are fairly scarce when compared with foreign examples for they outnumber ours 50 to 1. The plate of George Washington is the most valuable of our plates and while the location of many of his books is known they are in no way obtainable. Plates signed by the artist which have value over those unsigned. Here in the United States we occasionally see the portrait bookplate, a noticeable example being one recently designed and engraved by Edward D. MacArthur for the George Burgess Magrath Library of Legal Medicine of Harvard University which bears in its central medallion a characteristic likeness of Dr. Magrath and who received a reward of merit as the best engraving shown at an exhibition of the International Bookplate Association.

In conclusion Mrs. Croissant pointed out the renewed interest in bookplates and the societies which exist for the collection and exhibition, together with the fact that, properly considered, the bookplate is the finishing grace of the book. It is the final detail and one of the complements of careful reading being the other which it is in the power of the book collector, to pay the volumes in his possession. The bookplate makes the book which one carries, one's own.

The discussion which followed evinced the keen interest which Mrs. Croissant's paper aroused. Refreshments were served during the social hour. Mrs. Adrian Perry of West Somerville was assistant hostess.

An "Arts and Crafts" demonstration and exhibition will be the program for the meeting April 14, to be held at the home of Mrs. Gilbert H. Hood, 32 Everett avenue, Winchester.

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER

Cornelia Otis Skinner comes to Medford on Tuesday, April 5 under the auspices of the Medford Teachers Club. She will give a series of her famous character sketches selected from her repertoire of over 100. The performance will be given in the Roberts Junior High School on Court street a short distance from Medford Square.

FROM A CONTEMPORARY "SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL"

To "Father Malachy's Miracle"

"The Women" may be counted our 20th century "School for Scandal" said Mrs. Thaxter, as she introduced Claire Booth's satiric play about some kinds of contemporary women.

Friday, April 8, at 2:15, her Winchester audience will hear the versatile Mrs. Thaxter in a play entirely different in setting, quality and tone, with a charming Irish priest as the main character, Father Malachy. His world is far from the Park avenue world of "The Women," very far in every sense of the word. And the drama that befalls him is very different from the brittle ruthlessness that makes the action of the satire.

Following "The Women," tea was served by a committee of Epiphany women, with Mrs. Donald Heath as chairman. She was assisted by Mrs. Frederick Abbott, Mrs. Frances Booth, Mrs. Percy Gleason, Mrs. Gerald Hills, Mrs. John Hopkins, Mrs. Guy Livingston, Mrs. D. G. Marastin, Mrs. William Martens, Mrs. R. E. L. Maureen, Mrs. Ralph Swanson, Mrs. Maurice W. Tolman.

There will be tea at 4 o'clock, April 8, in charge of Mrs. William Martens, Mrs. Donald Heath and Mrs. R. E. L. Maureen. The tea will be served by a committee, from the Symmes Court Group will assist Mrs. Martens.

WINCHESTER SKI CLUB

There was great excitement in town last Friday night, "Perley" Gifford, official square dance caller for Braintree, opened the evening at the Winchester Ski Club Barn Dance with an old time grand march followed by a series of square dances. It was a grand party and the Calumet Club, the town's only ski club, as much as wagon wheels, farm implements, scarecrows, bridges, reins, spider webs, bunches of corn and lanterns could create the atmosphere.

Among the out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Moore, Winter Sports Editor of the Boston Herald-Traveler, and members from the Tarnish Ski Club, Mr. Hood Ski Club, the White Mountain Ski Runners, Schussverein, Black and Blue Trail Smashers, Yankee Flyers Ski Club and the Ski Club of Hochberg.

Just before the party came to a close, the following prizes were awarded: a pair of Peter Limmer Ski boots, donated by Peter Limmer, and won by Dr. Emerson Priest; a pair of ski poles, donated by the Ski Club, and won by Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Moore; a pair of ski poles, donated by the Ski Club, and won by Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Moore; a pair of ski poles, donated by the Ski Club, and won by Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Moore.

The following committee deserve tremendous credit for so successful a party: Mrs. Theodore Elliott, general chairman; Ted Elliott, Marcus Fowler, Fred Fish, tickets; Mrs. Marshall R. Phil, Mrs. James Jones, Mary McAuley, decorations; Mrs. Wm. Beal, Mrs. Richard Harlow, refreshments; Mrs. McAuley, posters; Stephen Root, music.

The schedule for the Winchester High School track team, released this week by Faculty Manager Raymond V. Hayward lists four dual meets and tentative participation in the New Hampshire Interscholastic, at Rye, N. H., May 19, and the New England Interscholastic, at Boston, May 20.

The plate of George Washington is the most valuable of our plates and while the location of many of his books is known they are in no way obtainable. Plates signed by the artist which have value over those unsigned. Here in the United States we occasionally see the portrait bookplate, a noticeable example being one recently designed and engraved by Edward D. THEODORE R. GODWIN APPEARING WITH UNITARIAN PLAYERS IN "LIBEL"

In the Winchester Unitarian Players production of "Libel," April 29 and 30, in Metcalf Hall, Mr. Godwin plays the role of Sir Mark Loddon. In October, 1918, Mark Loddon, noble English army officer, Frank Welney and Patrick Buchanan of the Canadian army set forth from the German prison camp at Hohenstein to escape. Buchanan got lost but he escaped. Only one of the other two seemed to have survived. He returned to English to succeed to the baronetcy of Loddon. To marry Edith, daughter of General Winterton, to be elected an M. P. for his native country. But was it Loddon who returned? "The Daily Gazette" thought not; evidence before it this newspaper believed that Frank Welney, who looked much like Loddon had usurped the latter's position. "The Daily Gazette" said so. The incumbent of the baronetcy brought a libel suit as a result. The matter for decision by the jury (and the audience) is whether the plaintiff in the case is or is not Sir Mark Loddon. Mr. Godwin appears in the title role played in the New York production by Mr. Colin Clive.

Mr. Godwin has played leads in many of the best-known productions in Winchester. Noteworthy among his successes are the roles of Captain Stanhope in the Legion production of "Journey's End," "The Prince in the Groups Theatre's production of 'The Swan,' and with the Unitarian Players as Patrick Ives in 'The Bellamy Trial' and Ruddle in 'Grumpy.'

SURPRISED ON SILVER WEDDING DAY

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Sullivan, well known residents of Nelson street, were pleasantly surprised last week Thursday evening, March 24, when they were given a surprise party at home in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

The affair was carried out by Mr. and Mrs. Sullivan's seven children, Mrs. Robert Feeney of Woburn, and John J. Sullivan, Jr., James, Joseph, Richard, Thomas and Charles Sullivan, all of this town. It was a complete surprise to the Sullivans, who after going out to dinner, returned to find their home from Winchester and surrounding cities and towns gathered to offer congratulations and best wishes.

Many handsome gifts were presented among them a beautiful silver bouquet to which was attached a substantial purse, the gift of the Sullivans' neighbors. Catered refreshments were served from attractively decorated tables.

Mrs. Sullivan was before her marriage Mae Harrold, daughter of Police Lieut. and Mrs. John J. Harrold of Myrtle street.

NEW EXHIBITION AT LIBRARY

The Winchester Art Association announces that commencing on Sunday April 3, there will be an exhibition at the Library Art Gallery a group of choice etchings and prints from the collection of Mr. Charles D. Childs of Newbury street, Boston.

This interesting exhibition, to which the public is invited, has been arranged by President Charles Hadley Watkins of the Winchester Art Association to replace that of Aldro Hibbard, who was prevented by conflict of dates from exhibiting here at this time.

PAST NOBLE GRAND SERVICE CLUB

The Past Noble Grand Service Club held its meeting on Tuesday evening at the home of Sister Jessie Ripley. Sister Margaret Nauffts was hostess.

HIGH SCHOOL BALL TOSSERS OUT

Winchester High is completing its first complete week of staff ball today, some 45 candidates having reported to Coach George Lauer. While it is perhaps a bit early to get too good a line on what the season is likely to produce, there is no doubt, seems no reason, from the angle of material, to look for anything but a winning club.

Coach Lauer has to fill but two or three positions, if last year's players are able to withstand the competition from new candidates. Catcher and third base are wide open so far as veterans are concerned while the likelihood that Captain "Junior" Donaghey will play first base this season leaves the outfield a bit short-handed for known strength.

There is a big hole left behind the bat by the graduation of "Rusty" Donaghey, one of the best in Middlesex League ranks a year ago, a good receiver, hard worker and timely hitter. Several candidates are trying for the backstopping job, but none is experienced and whoever gets the job will need to be a good receiver to hold the slants of "Rusty" Donaghey. Johnson, who ought to burn up the league this year, has loads of stuff and a fast one that no slippish catcher is going to hold. A pretty fair catcher will have to be developed to realize on "Artie's" pitching class.

To help Johnson on the mound there is "Carlie" Johnson, his equally left-handed brother and the backbone of the team. "Artie" Johnson, who is "DeMingo," one of "Payzan's," hired men, looks like the most experienced right-hander available.

At first base Captain Donaghey, the third, by the way, of this family to lead a Winchester nine, has had experience with the Millionaires and should do, though he is not at present the finished fielder that "Bill" Smith was a year ago. "Ed" Kenney is back for his second base job, and "Tony" DeLaso, who went pretty well at shortstop last year is ready for his sophomore campaign. The graduation of "Rusty" Lallo leaves no experienced man available for third base, and in the outfield only "Clem" Bairstow is a regular, though both "Artie" and Carl Johnson can play the gardens well.

It really looks like the locals have a third championship in the making this spring, though a lot will depend upon filling that catching position. The catcher must be able to make a ball club while an uncertain receiver can throw an otherwise good team away off form.

One thing is certain with the Johnsons, DeMingo and one or two men who ought to be developed from the big squad of candidates, Winchester ought to have good pitching, and good pitching goes a long, long way in securing a successful baseball.

Following is the schedule:

April 28 Winchester at Lexington
May 2 Concord at Winchester
May 3 Reading at Winchester
May 4 Winchester at Sunbeam
May 5 Winchester at Belmont
May 6 Winchester at Belmont
May 7 Lexington at Winchester
May 8 Winchester at Concord
May 9 Winchester at Reading
May 10 Belmont at Winchester
May 11 Sunbeam at Winchester
June 2 Winchester at Maynard

* Not a league game

1938 FOOTBALL DATES ANNOUNCED

Faculty Manager of Athletics Raymond V. Hayward has announced the following football schedule for Winchester High School next fall:

Sept. 11 Arlington at Winchester
Sept. 14 Marlborough at Marlborough
Oct. 1 Concord at Concord
Oct. 4 Sunbeam at Winchester
Oct. 11 Belmont at Belmont
Oct. 18 Concord at Winchester
Oct. 25 Winchester at Maynard
Nov. 1 Lexington at Winchester
Nov. 4 Woburn at Winchester
Nov. 12 Woburn at Woburn

* Middlesex League games

Of chief interest in this schedule is the fact that for the first time in several seasons Arlington High is to play in Winchester. Arlington has been one of the big games on Winchester's schedule, and for many years the schools played home and away. When however Arlington got its enclosed field facilities, the big crowd that always attends were so much better there that Winchester was content to play each year on Pierce Field. Whether Winchester's new enclosed field will return this game to a home and home basis has not been decided as yet, but there are many local fans who will be glad to see the Scarlet and Gray playing once more on a local gridiron.

Also of interest is the fact that Winchester will play Puncard High of Andover after a lapse of several seasons. Puncard has been fielding some strong clubs in recent years, and last season was champion of its class. The Andover boys are likely to prove much tougher nuts to crack than the local boys, and will prevent anything like a letdown in the rivalry between the Belmont and Maynard games.

The town meetings are over for another year. About one-sixth of the total precinct members were absent the first meeting and about one-fourth were absent the second. One wonders why people run for this office if they do not do their duty and attend. Some feminine precinct members made remarkable progress with their knitting during the second meeting and it was noticed that many did not even bother to lay down the needles and raise their hands either way when a two thirds vote was required.

As our head gradually clears from the haze of that last town meeting session we cannot help wondering... whether everyone was right but "Jim"
McConick on that E and D business
... how many delegates knew what Winchester's real police situation is ... how it can possibly cost $3270 to layout and build that part of Middlesex street now a private way... why the town fathers are so determined to spend money on High street
... whether George Davidson is right when he contends that $1200 a year is high interest to pay on what could be an investment of approximately $12,000... if the "Ethiopian in the Woodpile" is a proposal to have supervised recreation under School Department supervision on the school playgrounds, preceded by a recreational survey and recommendations by "experts"... why the name changing group have not picked on Warren street and Foxcroft road... the delegates thought of a $700 rental for basketball two or three nights a week through the winter in the junior high gymnasium of all places... why the delegates still haggle for an hour over a $100 appropriation and pass the largest departmental budget on the docket without a murmur... why some one did not challenge that appropriation for an extra teacher and volitional guidance director at high school... why so many precinct delegates fail to vote either way... why "Shorty" Carr only spoke once this year... what town meeting would be like without "Joe" Larway... who will explain the zoning regulations when Mr. Parsons hands in his portfolio... who the moderator would pick for teller for the divided north if George Arnold was not around... why they gave the recreational committee the right to raise its membership from six specified members to ten to be chosen by the group... why that E and D account to build an addition to the Junior High School... and what would happen if the "solid south" happened to be of two minds upon some matter of import!

In connection with the recent vote of the Town to continue Middlesex street to meet Sylvester street, a which the sum of $3270 was appropriated, an interesting condition arises. Aside from the advisability of the act, wherein these two streets are to be connected at this expense, it appears that much of the property affected is in arrears in tax payments.
To assess this property for betterments in the new street layout with any expectation of a return to the Town seems futile. Considering this phase, aside from the questionable expenditure for the construction of the proposed road, it develops that property taken for taxes has not been foreclosed and the Town does not at this time possess it. This results from the fact that the Town has not foreclosed nor have any steps been taken to foreclose. Included in the property in this section are houses, some vacant and going to ruin. According to informed sources if this property is foreclosed for taxes the Town will stand to realize, if not its complete tax claim, at least an appreciable portion of it. Why is this not done?
Apparently no one knows. In the instance of the houses, valuable property, now an asset, is rapidly going to ruin. Action by the Town would not only result in recovery of its money but in placing the property again in taxation. It would be interesting to learn just why this condition exists.
Our Finance Committee is active in paring down Town expenses and saving the tax-payers' money. Does our desire for economy end with this committee? Apparently there is no legal obstacle in the way of carrying out the provisions of the law. To carry out the matter further, it is said that the Town has the right in the matter of the houses to protect its interest by insurance—an apparently wise provision in view of the disintegration now proceeding. Informed sources say that there is no reason why the Town should lose any money on this property, and furthermore it is more than questionable if any street betterments can be carried out. Rather than still more of the property will go under tax titles. It is an interesting situation which should be cleared up, especially so since it is said that other property in other parts of the town appear soon to be in a similar category.
While it seems some step towards acquiring Town ownership of this property should be made and can be taken further action should also be taken by the Town in delegating authority to the proper persons or department to handle such taking, both in respect to a resale of the property and bringing it again into taxation, it is seen that proper insurance is carried.

SOCRATES SAYS—

OUR NEW DEAL FOR A HORSE (AND BUGGY)

Frequently you hear people say that the New Dealers are wonderful politicians. As a matter of fact the New Dealers have made more political blunders than both political parties together have made in their entire history.

For instance, just a few, lest we forget—The cancellation of the Air Mail contracts—"Too dumb to understand"—innumerable promises to balance the budget year after year—Quoddy Dam—Florida Ship Canal—managed currency—silver purchases —N. R. A. crack-downs—purge of the supreme court—"See nothing illegal in sit-downs," with consequent riots and stopping of the mails, etc. etc. etc., one right after the other. Any one of the scores that have been made would have been sufficient to have wrecked any political party in normal times.

Then why have New Dealers been able to continue on as long as they have?

The answer is so simple and obvious that it is unbelievable that so few recognize it. The New Dealers have continually relied on the first two fundamental principles of centralized political government control——first, promise "abundant life," the ambition of every mortal; next, provide circuses, innumerable plans, suggestions, inquiries, accusations, tir-ades, doles, public works, speeches, schemes, Applian Ways, viaducts, dams, etc. Keep the people interested, keep up their hopes, keep them confused. Stir up their emotions—keep something new always before them so that their real condition is overlooked.

There are none who do not agree with the avowed aim of "abundant life," but as in the oldest of all stories, Babel, the hasty building of the Tower of Abundance has not materialized, language has become confused, and one another's speech is not understood by the people. This very haste will postpone the progress that all desire. "Evolution" is a slow, steady, creative movement.

Finally, the people will begin slowly to realize that "abundant life" cannot be procured by legislation alone.
—they will gradually turn to the simple things of life, giving up rambling in all forms—all "get rich quick" schemes. This gambling phase of all "New Deals" usually heralds the turn toward greater stress on home life, the church, and the efforts of the individual, rather than dependence on leadership and the State.

The history of many world-wide depressions, as well as repressions, show that they have been followed by spiritual and religious revivals.
Soon the politicians will be replaced by some statesmen in this country who will not be obliged to rely on the "full dinner pail" and "starvation" gags to stir in office. The citizens of the United States are becoming politically tired of the old saws—"My New Deal for a horse (and buggy)," and let no one tell you differently.

This period will be recorded and spaced in Time, as warranted by its astronomical figures—"Milky Way No. 1933453658—"

—Socrates

AS TO THIS AND THAT

These columns have mentioned at various times the Social Security taxes. It might appear to the casual reader that objection was being made to the plan of printing upon which the taxes were based. Not at all. It has for 50 years or more been a problem on the minds and hearts of students of the public welfare. They have realized the enormous difficulty of the problem and have gradually approached its solution. The lot of the aged poor before the enactment of the Social Security statute was by no means as serious as it was 50 years ago or even 25.

The defects of the law as passed and in effect at this time are that, like almost all of the New Deal legislation, it was written by someone who had not studied the matter and had no notion of what to do except to do something. As a result the statute is a hodge-podge and the execution as it is now will result in an inevitable increase of the national debt and a tax burden that will affect everyone worse than anything that we have hitherto known.

The law provides that a reserve shall be set aside that it may be invested in government securities. This sounds all right but is it? In brief it means that the government takes a man's dollar from his wages places it in the cash box and spends it, giving a receipt in the form of the Government I. O. U. When the man arrives at the required age the money must be raised by taxation to pay what was promised, and meanwhile the debt has been vastly increased and the interest charges.
If by any chance a majority of Congress is opposed to the appropriation the man would be left with the law they may be—and it must be remembered that no law enforces itself—the nation is a party to a fraud. That is nothing new with this administration.
It issued gold bonds and then repudiated them. But it ought to be solanned as to make it difficult. If a reserve is ostensibly created, it ought to be a real one beyond control of Congress invested to bring revenue to the government. It is a law that will be rewritten so that obligations will be met, and the credit of the country no injured.

THE BACK YARD

On the eve of "Income Tax Day," you may be interested in an interview which Mr. Maxwell M. Nowak—a Chicago business man—recently gave to the International News Service.

Said Mr. Nowak in substance:

"I am quitting business because I am sick and tired of taxes.
I have spent 35 years in building up a livestock feed business with 64 warehouses in 28 states and a volume of a million and a half dollars a year. Now so many varieties of taxes have been piled on me that I prefer to retire."

Beyond the taxes themselves, I had to pay over $7,000 in salaries and fees during 1937 for doing all the paper work necessary to keep the various tax reports straight.

The kind of taxes to which I particularly object are those that must be paid before a cent of profit is made. As I said, we do business in 28 states and the taxes-before-profit policy is ruinous. For instance, we pay state unemployment, state social security, state personal property, state franchise, state store, federal social security, capital stock, city, county, and about two score other kinds of taxes.

Now the State of Indiana—where my main plants are located—comes along with a 1/4 of 1 per cent tax on all goods sold in the state or outside.
Within the state it wouldn't be so bad, but I do object to such a tax on goods sold in interstate and foreign business.

As soon as I can, I am going to close out my plants and warehouses, and take a long trip."

An extreme case, of course, and probably reported for the effect it might have in print. But it pictures a frame of mind that many business men have experienced these past few years, and one which legislators who are really interested in keeping unemployment and business activity may well consider.

TIRED

I'm tired—O, so tired—of the whole New Deal.
Of the Juggler's smile, the Barker's spiel,
Of the mushy speech and the loud bassoon,
And tired of all of our leaders' croon.

Tired of taxes on my ham and eggs;
Tired of "pay-offs" to political rages;
Tired of Jim Farley's stamps on my mail,
Tired of my shirt with its tax-shorn tail.

I'm tired of the farmers goose-stepping to laws,
Of millions of job-holders' itching paws,
Of "Fireless" talks over commended miles,
Of passing more laws to stimulate strikes.

I'm tired of the hourly increasing debt,
Of millions of promises, still to be met,
Of sitting idle by Government plan,
Of calmly forgetting the "Forgotten Man."

I'm tired of every New Brain Trust thought,
Of the ship of State—now a pleasure yacht;
Tired of the "Solid South" and its "Solid South"
And terribly tired of sharing my wealth.

I'm tired of Eleanor on page one,
Of royal-in-laws and favorite sons;
I'm tired of "Stietz" and "Buzie" Ball;
I'm simply completely fed up with it all.

WINCHESTER'S REPRESENTATIVE TOWN MEETING

To the Editor of the Star:

Our representative town meeting has now been in operation for ten years. A brief retrospect may not be without interest.

The increase in the number of voters due to the passage of the woman suffrage amendment, increasing the number of voters to about 6000, with a town hall accommodating only 1000, forcibly called the attention of the town to the necessity of some change in the form of government. But the town held tenaciously to the traditions of the town meeting and the vote to adopt a representative form of government was close, 355 to 304. Henry S. Chapman in his history of Winchester says:

"The debate was long and warm.
The decision hung in the balance;
it is not too much to say that Chairman Parsons won his fight almost single handed. Had his arguments been less cogent, his manner less courteous and gracious, and his speech less persuasive, the representative town meeting would have been voted down."

After the legislature passed the enabling act the plan was adopted upon referendum by a vote of 3065 to 1716.

The old town meeting was often interesting, sometimes dramatic, occasionally emotional, resulting not infrequently in reconsideration of votes passed. It was enlivened by a group of town meeting orators who have passed from the stage.

To those of us who have known the old town meeting and the present representative town meeting, there can be no question that the latter has shown a higher degree of intelligent discussion than formerly prevailed.

This is due in large measure to the high type of public spirited citizens who have served as representatives.

The citizens of the town have shown of the untiring, intelligent and high minded devotion of the Finance Committees which have served the town for more than a quarter of a century.
How many citizens know the amount of time which they devote to the study of the problems of town government?

The last committee, under the able chairmanship of Mr. Elliott F. Cameron, held 20 meetings, the average length of which was over three hours, with an average attendance of over 14 out of the 15 members. This does not include the meetings of the subcommittees held with each department of the town in an intensive study of the requests for appropriations.
The committee also made three trips around the town for the purpose of familiarizing its members with various departmental matters. It is probable that other Finance Committees have given equal amount of time.

Under our form of representative town meeting, town government has been steadily increasing in efficiency.
The representative town meeting is a success—I wish I could say an unqualified success. But there has been gradually creeping into its deliberations a practice which interferes with its complete success, namely, an imperative desire on the part of the members to have as few sessions as possible, with the result that the meetings are often prolonged late into the night when the members are tired and when many have left. There were two sessions of the last meeting, the first adjourned at about 11:30 and the second at ten minutes before one. At the last session towards the end there

Commission, will be the guest preacher at the fifth Lenten Vesper Service at 4:30 in the afternoon at the Sec-been arranged and the public will be welcome.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The regular meeting for April will be held on next Thursday, April 7, at the home of Vice Regent DeCoursey on Westley street. Ordinarily the meeting would be held on April 14 but due to the many services incident to Holy Thursday, this meeting was changed by a vote at the March meeting from the second Thursday to the first Thursday.

Wednesday testimonial meeting, 7:45 P.M.

"Unusually" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, April 3.
The Golden Text is: "The world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever" (1 John 2:17).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "We then, as workers together with him, beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain. (For he saith, I have heard salvation have I secured thee; behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation)." (II Corinthians 6:2).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Now, cried the apostle, 'is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation,' meaning that not now men must prepare for a future-world salvation, or safety, but that now is the time in which to experience that salvation in spirit and in life. Now is the time for so-called material pains and material pleasures to pass away, for both are unreal, because impossible in Science. To break this earthly spell, mortals must get the true idea and divine Principle which really exists and governs the universe harmoniously" (p. 39).

That perplexing, age old question, "How to Win a Husband, and Hold Him!" the gentle art of living slowly, calmly and courteously, with consistent consideration for the rights of others; a bulwark of respect and obedience to parents and those in authority;—strangely enough, these were some of the highlights of the talk on "Egypt of Today" given by Miss Isis Al Huda of Cairo.

The regular meeting of Fortnightly last Monday, Garbed in a gorgeous costume of her native land, Miss Al Huda drew an interesting picture as she compared life that quiet, easy going, enjoyable land, to that of our hectic, ever rushing America.

The next regular meeting, on April 11, will be the Annual Meeting, to wind up an unusually interesting year. There will be a luncheon at 12:30, in Fortnightly Hall, and the business meeting will begin promptly at 2:30 as usual. Arrangements for the luncheon are in the capable hands of Mary Cass and Muriel Barnes, who earnestly request that club members obtain their reservations as soon as possible, to avoid that last minute hectic rush so devastating to the peace and quiet of the home life of an Executive Chairman.

The National Temperance and Prohibition Council, after two days of earnest study and conference, made several interesting pronouncements, one of which is the following:

"The Government's Participation in the Liquor Traffic"

"We condemn and deplore the present participation of the Federal Government in the establishment and operation of a distillery in the Virgin Islands. Government exists for the protection of the rights of the person and of the property of the citizens, and the promotion of the general welfare. Our Government is deliberately undermining the general welfare by participation in the manufacture and distribution of a narcotic poison."

MISS AVERY DISCUSSES BRITISH EMPIRE

Drenching rain did not prevent the high school auditorium being nearly filled on Wednesday evening, March 16, when Miss Eunice H. Avery gave the last lecture in the Smith College Club series on "The British Empire." Of 77 Smith College clubs only four, New York City, Westchester, Evanston and Brookline, make larger yearly contributions for scholarships at Smith. In 15 years Winchester has put seven dollars through Smith and given over $8500. Miss Avery, a Vassar graduate, has been made the first honorary member of the Winchester Smith Club in recognition of her 16 years of lecturing under its sponsorship. Mrs. Clinton Farnham, president of the club, introduced Miss Avery. The ushers were Messrs. Clarence Whorf, J. Waldo Bond, Henry K. Spencer, Charles Watson, Clinton Farnham, Prescott Wild and John Burchard.

There are three angles from which to survey the British Empire; her internal situation, her relations to her neighbors on the continent and her position as the world's greatest Mohammedan empire. The British belongs to the new era of empires. The oldest one, the Roman, limited by transportation and the power of voting, was largely Mediterranean with few and powerful citizens. The Holy Roman Empire, combining the old Roman and the temporal empire of the Catholic Church, was limited by the same factors, but this time the transportation was largely by land routes and there was delegated voting with a parliament. Politically it was a bad combination, but economically it was very well-balanced. Is it being restored, as an economic unit, at the present time? The third and present phase of empires is to gain government by the same limitations, but through modern transportation, by sea, land and air, produces a complex and world-wide pattern, and there is increased use of delegated voting, rendering the structure less widely. The British Empire and the League of Nations are comparable, resembling commonwealths, composed of fairly equal powers; Great Britain has her dominions and the League has large single powers and groups of smaller nations.

Britain's problem, both of internal adjustment and of international policy, was so large and so difficult that a government survey was made attempting to analyze the British character and determine what should replace the now inadequate tradition of "muddling through." Great Britain contains all kinds of weather effect, arctic and tropic and all kinds of landscape except arctic and tropic, varying and changing from day to day and from mile to mile. As a result she has also a large assortment of specialized dialects, temperaments and breeds of animals. She has been colonized in times past by many peoples but has herself never colonized on the continent except by her superior livestock. In spite of these great variations in the national temperament her people as a whole have great unity in most essential issues, for example the problem of Edward, and the vote on the rearmament bill.

Great Britain's outstanding accomplishment is the development of two party parliamentary government. There is an interesting contrast between the British attitude toward legislators and ours. The emphasis is definitely not on making the member of Parliament so highly paid that his first thought is to keep his job; he is paid by honor and 2000 pounds. The leader of the Opposition, however, receives 10,000 pounds, and the diplomatic service, whose perfect functioning is so vital to a far-flung empire, is higher paid than any other in the world.

Is Britain a totalitarian state? Agricultural regimentation, similar to ours, had not been an unqualified success, since it is now claimed to have caused malnutrition in a large proportion of the population. The country gets electric power under a "grid" system; it is divided into districts to which the private companies must supply adequate power at buyable prices. The six districts which are derelict in this respect are those which still contain most of Britain's unemployed. To remedy this, sites for national parks have been found in or near these districts and electricity thus lured in, with government subsidies where needed. The coal mines are in the process of being nationalized, a step called totalitarian but really just common sense.

There are two dangers from the European situation, one war, the other the loss of our form of civilization, and they could happen together or either one or the other. Britain's relations with her neighbors on the continent are centered now in an attempt to negotiate with Italy. The "life lines of the empire," the air, land and sea transport routes, are all dependent on the Mediterranean, controllable by Hitler or Mussolini and affected by the Arabian situation since all have important centers in Arab countries. Since Ethiopia Great Britain has been juggling the Mediterranean balance of power. Spain was Italy's chestnut, with Germany merely backing her up, and Mussolini has swallowed his hurt over the Vienna coup to embrace the Rome-Berlin axis definitely. He had to choose which side could give him what he wanted.

The Vienna coup more nearly balances Germany, economically, than ever in our life. With the iron, timber and grain of Austria she is near self-sufficiency, her great goal recently. Austria needed jobs and has always wanted to belong to a big German group. Since the Austrian government could not cut share in the government labor did enough red tape to pledge labor a not fight for her independence. Czechoslovakia is the next danger spot. Comparatively well-integrated since the war, with a natural amount of tolerance, she has unfortunately an under dog complex left from 300 years under Austria. To her German Austrian citizens she has been generous only in comparison with her own former treatment by Austria. Her bilingual civil service requirements have barred German Czechs from responsible positions in her parliament, and her depression relief gave preference to Czechs though the German Czech settled industrial part of the country was the hardest hit. Minorities are very important nowadays, the tools by which outsiders upset systems.

Czechoslovakia is in a dangerous position. Had she been generous enough to prevent her Germans from having a grudge she perhaps would not be. France and Russia have reiterated their promises to defend her. Russia can't do it without crossing Rumania and together with all the other interested powers is busily wooing that country. Great Britain, once sworn to defend Czechoslovakia, was not ready when the others made their threats. Her loose empire organization makes it almost impossible for her to move in a moment; she must consult her dominions. By their decision she is indirectly out of the Central European argument, pledge or no pledge. Benes, the Czech statesman, says that his country will fight for independence but that if concessions have to be made they will be made.

The effect of this on us comes back to trade. Our hardest pinch, the greatest danger to our form of civilization, may come through trade. We can't have reciprocity and most favored nation agreements with customers who can't trade. This will remove the velvet, the top ten per cent of national profit, and raise the question of how long the lower classes will stand for the increased pressure. Great Britain has to be fed from without to live through a war. For months she has been storing surpluses of food and raw materials. Over one third of her income in millions tons a week must pass Gibraltar, so that she simply will not tolerate the loss of Spain's integrity.

The Greatest Mohammedan empire in history is British. Eden went out of office on an attempt to bid off Mussolini from the Rome-Berlin axis and the Arabian nuisance campaign which was threatening to puncture the Empire's three-ny transport line. The conquest of Ethiopia put an unfriendly power on the Suez Canal for the first time. Italy has been responsible for the Arab uprisings. Italy's money has been used to foment them. She has given scholarships in Rome for any Arab student, there are Arab broadcasts heard over Italian radio tunable only to that one Italian station.

Britain's promises were broadcast to gain the Arab vote in the 1936 election. She promised to back the Arab-Arabia movement; to back the Zionist Jews; to see the French not a share of what was taken away from Turkey. Naturally this has been somewhat confusing to work out. Ibn Saud is king of most of the Arabian peninsula, with king of Yemen reigning under British protection over a small territory near the Suez and the king of Iraq controlling the section that is rich in oil. Ibn Saud has worked a social revolution in his country, with 200 new cities in the once empty desert and the Arabs leaving their tents to live in so-called agrarian communities, with sanitation and hygiene programs, nurses and schools, broadcasting stations, roads and cars. The Mohammedan nation was once entirely nomadic and nomadic by them. One of the outstanding figures in recent history is Kemal Ataturk, who broke the Turks by force of bad results of their own bad government. Ibn Saud has been promised to the same thing for the Arabs. Iraq is going slowly in modernizing, but has made remarkable progress.

All active independent Arab states belong to the League of Nations. As a group they have not yet made a really modern treaty in the world. With aggression and non-aggression a prime ingredient in every international conference since Manchuria, up to the Arab League. There is an Arab renaissance whose future no man knows.

Troop 5 Notes

The Boy Scouts of Troop 5 held a meeting Monday evening, March 28, at the Lincoln School. The troop proceeded with the usual ceremony, the Scout oath and law. The committee present were M. Vincent Gilotti, chairman and Mr. Joseph Ferro. Mr. Quinn, Superintendent of Schools attended this meeting. The troop is getting ready for the exhibition which is going to be held April 11 at White's Hall.

Troop 3

At the regular meeting of Troop 3, Monday evening, March 28, an investiture ceremony was conducted by the Scoutmaster, Mr. Dunn, in honor of Carleton Strong. Mr. Strong had completed the requirements for the Lion ranking as a Cub and therefore entered the Troop as a tenderfoot Scout. His former den-mates Stillman Hilton, Ralph Meuhlig, Herbert Clement and Theodore Ginsberg were guests at the ceremony. Committee men Mr. Moore, Mr. Grosvenor, Mr. White, Commander Rush, Mr. Strong and Mr. Fevold were present as was also Mr. Johnson, president of the Men's Club.

Saturday, March 26, nine members of the troop together with three leaders went on a hike. Firebuilding, cooking, Scout pace and tracking tests were given.

A new Scout room is being equipped to serve as a hobby and equipment room. The work of completing the room is done by members of the troop under the direction of the Scoutmaster.

Particular efforts are being made to make the coming year a banner year in the history of Troop 3 since a quarter of a century has elapsed since it was organized.

Spring is really here, for Ike and Mike, the Boat Club ducks, are back in the lake after a winter spent in Pratt's hen yard on Wildwood street. They still think it lots easier to beg a hand out than to eat the unlimited natural food in the lake.

The old racket of selling people a genealogical or historical study of their families' past is reported being worked again in this town. BOY SCOUTS NOTES

Troop 7

The regular meeting of Troop 7 was held last Monday night and a new Senior Scout Patrol was organized with eight boys and Ray Bohannon as leader. John C. Casler was elected assistant Scoutmaster. Paul Butterworth was advanced to Senior Patrol leader; Proctor Jones was advanced to a Patrol leader of Silver Fox Patrol. The Scoutmaster, Mr. A. O. Wells, together with the new assistant Scoutmaster will take 12 Scouts to Camp Lane next Saturday for tests on cooking, pioneering, mapping and the 14 mile hike.

The Boy Scouts of Troop 5 held a meeting Monday, April 4, at the Lincoln School. The troop opened the meeting with the usual ceremony, the Scout Oath and Law. The committee present were chairman Vincent Gilotti and Mr. Joseph Ferro. The troop had a debate at this meeting. The debate was about a member who wanted to join the troop. The members in the troop do not want this new member in troop 5.

The boys of troop 5 are ready to put on the play for the Christopher Columbus Lodge, which is going to be held at White's Hall.

Chairman John C. Casler has completed the canvas in Precinct 1 with a very satisfactory step-up of about 17 per cent over last year in cash and pledges.

In Precinct 4, Chairman Maurice C. Bird reports that John Dye, E. K. Anderson, Theodore Godwin and Thomas R. Reese, 2nd, have enlisted under Capt. Carl Sittinger.

Capt. Gerald Curtis has added to his team Leslie Scott, Clarence McDevitt, Hartley L. Doughty, Thayer F. Hersey and Ernest A. Knoetner. Precinct 2 work has been efficiently completed with good results under the conscientious and able leadership of Chairman T. Parker Clarke.

It is gratifying to note that many subscriptions are being doubled this year particularly those of $1 which is an evidence of appreciation on the part of the public of the good work of the Boy Scouts.

Mr. and Mrs. Edson Eugene Dewey of Washington street had as guests for the week-end, Mrs. Fred Cooley, Jr. and Mrs. Alan Peck of Pittsfield. Mrs. Dewey's mother, Mrs. Alma Smith, returned with them to Pittsfield where she plans to spend the summer.

PARISH PLAYERS PRESENT

"TO THE LADIES"

Comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly

In selecting "To the Ladies" for their spring play the Parish Players of the First Congregational Church have gone back to a play which ranks among the five or six outstanding American comedies of the century.

"To the Ladies" was written, it is believed, as an answer to "Dulcy" by the same two brilliant playwrights; but in writing, popularity and critical approval "To the Ladies" surpassed "Dulcy," and must be ranked with such fine American plays as "The First Year," "Nice People," "The Heir," and only a few others. Where in "Dulcy" the characters were at times artificial and the action exaggerated, in "To the Ladies" we find the characters entirely understandable and the action, however hilarious, at all times within the bounds of reason.

What makes the play significant is its representation, simple and with sincerity, of the love of a clever young wife for her concealed and not very able husband. The playwrights have seized upon the fact that the most precious things in life are our illusions, especially those we begin to suspect ourselves, and the young wife of "To the Ladies" has to keep up her own faith in her husband as well as save him from the awkward situations into which accident or his own incompetence has brought him. Her success in this and the methods she employs provide an evening's entertainment of thorough enjoyment from chuckles at the amusing subtleties to hilarious roars at the farcical pace in which the play is set.

"To the Ladies" written as it was by two of America's most brilliant and successful writers and played for many months in New York and on tour by the "first lady of the theatre," Miss Helen Hayes, made a definite and lasting impression on the theatre-going public of this country, and its success whenever played since its Broadway production well fits it for the closing play of this season by the Parish Players.

MR. MILLER CHURCH SUPERVISOR

Mr. Herbert K. Miller, a former well known resident of Winchester, has been appointed supervisor of the Church of the Disciples, Unitarian, in Boston.

Mr. Miller, who for the past two years has been principal of the Church of the Disciples church school, is succeeding to a full-time position as church supervisor. In this capacity he will have charge of the church's general activities, including the Sunday school and social service work, until next fall, when a successor will have been appointed to the minister. Rev. Abraham M. Rihany, D. D., whose resignation is effective at the end of May, Mr. Miller will, however, continue permanently as church supervisor.

Mr. Miller is widely known in Winchester. He was formerly superintendent of the Unitarian Church school for ten years and was active in the work of the Young Peoples' Religious Union, participating in the summer conferences held at the Isle of Shoals, N. H., for the past 17 years. He has also taken an active interest in the work of the De Molay both in Winchester and surrounding cities and towns.

METHODIST YOUNG PEOPLE TO HEAR NOTED AUTHOR

The Rev. Robert Munson Grey of the Congregational Church in Woburn will address the young people's fellowship of the Methodist Church on Sunday evening. Mr. Grey is the author of the story of God, called "I, Yahweh" which is a novel in the form of an autobiography. Dr. John Haynes Holmes said in his review of the book in the New York Herald Tribune, "There is a sweep, grandeur, prophetic eloquence in I, Yahweh which shakes one like a great orchestra." Mr. Grey will discuss how the plan of the book unfolded in his mind, and the significance of the book in our time.

TELEPHONE NUMBER 0029

No insurance and a borrowed car.

We have had several ask us why the Winchester schools have not been represented in the spelling bees which have been in progress lately. Maybe the local youngsters spell too well to bother with such competition. Or maybe spelling is just outmoded!

In explanation of the difference in the actual tax rate of $27.20 as announced yesterday and the estimated figures of the Finance Committee it can be said that the amount returned to the town by the State in income taxes was $30,000 more than the Finance Committee estimated. There were also more automobiles registered this year than last, making this return to the town, larger.

Roller skating is great fun and good exercise, but we emphatically do not believe that the traveled ways of the town constitute the best possible place for novices to acquire skating skill. The Police have rightly been skimming on sidewalk skating in the center, and we suppose the youngsters have to skate somewhere, but it seems unfair to subject motorists to the trouble involved in inadvertently striking a wobbling uncertain skater while driving on a public way.

Evidently the three recent breaks in the Locust Building together with those at Winchester Station and Butterworth's Jewelry shop have not added to the precautions taken by local merchants to secure their establishments when leaving them for the night. Over the past week-end the Police discovered a total of 15 buildings about the center with either doors or windows, or both, unlocked, inviting entrance. The authorities do every thing in their power to protect property, but in so doing they ought to have the co-operation of the property owners. No one thinks of course that buildings are intentionally left open at night, but this condition occurs so frequently here and in such large measure as to indict local store-keepers of considerable negligence in this respect. We ought to make it as hard as possible for marauders to get into our places of business, even if there is not much to get after they get in!

THERE'S SOMETHING BACK OF THIS

What would you think when you receive a letter ending like this: "Hoping you are as well and prosperous as the Roosevelt Family. I remain your friend."

SOCIAL SECURITY

Social Security. Barefaced robbery. We had no use for it when it started and we have no use for it now. Such contact of it as we come into further strengthens our dislike. If the politicians want more money to blow in, why not raise it other than by robbing every business man in the country? Just so long as this keeps up, just so long will this country have depression and unemployment. The little business man—and we mean little, not those who employ from one to five hundred persons—is using every endeavor to cut his force down to the lowest point. Why? To escape this robbery of what little profit he hopes he can make. The larger firms; those who were big enough to insure their employees, provide them with recreational and beneficial securities, are discontinuing all this real endeavor to benefit their people.

We have now computed our latest business fine, using the new and improved forms compiled for this penalty. How many? We forget. It did take us however, over four hours to answer all the questions. We have not enough money to hire experts devoting all their time to its intricacies. We were nicked just $207.90 according to our computation—which of course we know is wrong. Some of those nine million employed in handling the proceeds of this robbery call to our attention line 2 in column 20 on form 1b as carried forward to section 2 page 2 of the totals. We do know, however, that $207.90 would pay the rent on a better place of business than we ever expect to obtain.

We have yet failed to find any social security in any case in which we have come in contact, including the three in our office. While information in these cases is somewhat by hearsay, the information reported is close enough to illustrate.

Case one concerns a man with whom we severed connections. He is married, has four children and owns (or did) his home. Leaving our employ he found it difficult to secure work. Sickness aggravated the situation. He was obliged to put his oldest boy at work and his next oldest, while still in school, is reported working two nights a week. Applying for social security he was refused as he was working the two nights. He evidently has his choice of either giving up this scanty night work or going without social security. Thus far he is reported working and in the imminent prospect of losing his home.

There is real social security. The money we paid for his social security is probably going into the enormous labor costs of being blown in by politicians. We have no use for this case. Case two concerns a young man in our employ who decided to quit. Although his work was not satisfactory, we felt he had the stuff if he would use it, and went so far as to advise him to reconsider his determination. Pointing out to him that he was learning a good trade in a not over-crowded field, and even offering him a $5 increase in pay to encourage him, was to no avail. We recently received notice that he was to be placed on the social security roll. He is now aiding others in holding up the buildings about the square.

This, we presume, is as good an example of social security as we shall encounter. It does not suit us however, and we consider the money drained from our business in his case a total loss.

A third case which comes to our attention is that of a young woman, efficient, bright and capable. After leaving us, through no fault of anyone except those responsible for the present business depression, she failed to find employment. Questioned, regarding social security, she stated that she hated to apply for it and had no hopes of receiving it anyway.

Another total loss.

We never had any use for Social Security—and we don't now. If this robbery is persisted in there will be plenty of depression in this country. If the politicians want more money to blow in they should stop robbing the business man—especially the little ones. They are killing the goose that lays the golden egg.

MR. CRAUGHWELL REMEMISCES

To the Editor of the Star:

A long time ago I would like you to know that the late Patrick Holland of the plain district conceived the idea of a street across Black Ball Pond, starting from Shamrock street, that is now called Spruce street, and terminating at Railroad avenue that is now called Shore road. We were informed by the engineers of that period, who asserted that there were 90 feet of mud in that locality and in their opinion it was a waste of money to attempt to contemplate the construction of a road or street across the pond.

I shall let the reader determine what is the difference between a road or a street, and yet the road or street was constructed at practically no cost to the tax payers, due to the wonderful foresight and marvelous co-operation of the late Dr. Clarence J. Allen, chairman of the Board of Health, the late Charles Lane, chairman of the Park Board, the late Theodore Wilson, editor of the Winchester Star, William L. Parsons, chairman of the Planning Board, George T. Davidson, chairman of the Park Commissioners, Lewis Parkhurst and James J. Fitzgerald. The above named men were instrumental in eliminating a mosquito breeding bog and converting the bog into a beautiful playground and street for the last 50 years. The agitation that was manifested for a street across the pond was to keep folks from trespassing on the railroad tracks as there was a large number of fatalities on the tracks prior to the construction of Shore road.

In conclusion I desire to suggest that we name the playground or ball field, adjacent to Shore road, Allen Field, Lane Field, Wilson Field, Parsons Field, Parkhurst Field, Davidson Field or Fitzgerald Field. A long time ago Winchester was called Waterfield. It is not a difficult proposition to choose one of the seven names. Deposit the seven names in to a hat or some other receptacle and have some kindergarten pupil choose the name.

The reason I omitted Mr. Holland's name is because Holland street is named in memory of the late Patrick Holland, a respected citizen and large tax payer.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

S. O. S. FROM TENNIS PLAYER

To the Editor of the Star:

This is an S. O. S. for fair distribution of the Leonard Field tennis courts. Is it fair for people to come from the farther side of town in their cars, take possession of the courts at three o'clock and hold them till five, while others less fortunate arrive on foot, and have to sit on the bench all afternoon without even being invited to play a game of doubles? Is it fair for those who are playing to give the courts up only to their friends, while others who have been waiting are not given a chance to play? Is it fair to those on the bench to be expected to get all the stray balls, and then have those playing not even show the courtesy of giving up the court after a half hour's play? We on the bench think not. Please send help soon!!!

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE BY HELENE BOLL

Palm Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock, in Ripley Chapel, First Congregational Church, Miss Helene Boll, well-known lecturer of Boston, will give an illustrated lecture on Henry van Dyke's story "The Other Wise Man." The circumstances under which Dr. van Dyke wrote the story are as follows. For many weeks he had been suffering both mental and physical agony. He was unable to sleep. Night after night he lay and suffered. Then one night, mysteriously, the story of "The Other Wise Man" came to him in its entirety. After Dr. van Dyke recovered his health, he set to work on the geographical research needed to write the symbolic story.

The hand-painted slides were made before the war and are the only ones in existence illustrating this story. A silver offering will be taken. The public is invited.

During the service he played the Largo by Handel and at the conclusion, the favorite hymn, "Ten Thousand Times Ten Thousand." Interment was in Wildwood cemetery.

Dr. Gilpatrick's death followed a six months' illness with heart disease. He was born 57 years ago in Plymouth, N. H.; was graduated from Harvard Dental School in 1905 and, after general practice in Winchester followed by several years of study in New York, had specialized in the field of orthodontics in Boston since 1912. In addition to being a former president of the Massachusetts Dental Association he was a former president of the Harvard Dental Alumni Association, immediate past president of the Harvard Odontological Society and a member of many societies and fraternities of a professional nature.

Dr. Gilpatrick had lived in Winchester since 1905. He leaves a wife, the former Carolyn Draper Nutt of this town, and a son, William Henry Gilpatrick, Jr., a student at Harvard Dental School.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The annual meeting of the Women's Republican Club was held on Wednesday, April 6, at the Winchester Country Club. Luncheon, which had been directed by the very efficient social chairman, Mrs. Alfred W. Drew, assisted by Mrs. William Priest, was served at 12:30 o'clock. Great bouquets of lovely spring flowers lent a gay and festive background.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Vincent Clarke, president, with a few gracious and appropriate remarks, introduced the following guests, who spoke briefly: Mrs. Mary F. Jones, state committee woman, Mrs. Marcus Gray, president of the Arlington Women's Republican Club and Mrs. John Stevenson, president of the Medford Women's Republican Club. Principal speaker at the luncheon was Mrs. Lorenzo Woodside, founder and first president of the Winchester Club. Mrs. Woodside emphasized the importance of instilling in the youth of our nation high principles and ideals. Sen. Harris Richardson, Rep. Eben Ramsdell and State Committee Chairman Cass sent regrets that they were unable to attend.

The business meeting opened with the annual reports of the secretary, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth and of the treasurer, Mrs. Florence Seales, which were so concise and well worded as to be greatly enjoyed by all present. Reports were given by the committee chairman and the club was again privileged to hear Mrs. Warren Whitman, chairman of the Education Committee, present her witty, well chosen and pointed high-lights on affairs at Washington. Mrs. Whitman especially stressed the President's Reorganization Plan, the T. V. A. Inquiry and the manner of conducting the next Congressional elections. She emphasized the fact that we can render no greater patriotic service than to give of our time, our leisure, our energy to a campaign for integrity in political life; that we must select candidates now and begin to work now. Mrs. Clarke expressed the sentiment of all club members, when she thanked Mrs. Whitman for the splendid and constructive program, which she has presented to the club this year.

Guest artists for the afternoon were Jane Hill, Contralto soloist, and Mary Ranton Witham, accompanist. The prolonged applause which greeted the selections and encores was ample proof of the delight with which the audience received these beautiful and skillfully interpreted selections.

Following the musical program this ballot was declared elected for the coming year:

First Vice President—Marguerite B. Baker (Mrs. Wm. R.)
President—E. Adole Emery
Recording Secretary—Dorothy Wadsworth (Mrs. Herbert)
Corresponding Secretary—Elizabeth S. Hall (Mrs. Clifford S.)
Treasurer—Florence R. Seales (Mrs. Fred)

WHITING USING ALUMINUM CAPS FOR FAMILY MILK

No article of food that comes into your home is so rigidly guarded by health regulations as milk. From the farm to your doorstep it is protected from all possible contamination. Milk companies co-operate to the fullest extent with these regulations. The Whiting Milk Company follows a very rigid program of health protection even in the capping of their bottles. . . . the pouring lip of the bottle as well as the milk is protected. On their Grade A, Irradiated and Premium milk, they use a scientific cap and seal which protects the whole top of the bottle. A tamper-proof seal when intact shows that no impurities could possibly enter the bottle or come in contact with the pouring lip.

Now Whiting has gone another step forward, by applying aluminum caps on all their Family milk sold to the stores. It is found that aluminum, being non-porous, moisture-proof, and odor-proof, is sanitary to the last degree.

A simple twist of the palm of the hand placed flat on the top of cap releases the aluminum cap so that it can easily be lifted off. These aluminum caps are also ideal to use as covers for the partly filled milk bottle when replaced in the refrigerator.

Whiting with its program for more and more health protection in milk is greatly appreciated by their thousands of customers.

SPRING PHILOSOPHY

Brush, I've formed the strong idea
That spring can't be far from here.
I've found my ground don't hold much frost
And there's no hay left in the loft.

And all the cattle down below
Are kind a restless like, yer know,
And all my sugaring is through—
I'd like to take things sorta slow.

The grass is green as it can be
And that is sign enough for me,
And here of late I'm musing 'bout
I'd like to take things sorta slow.

And spread out 'neath some budding tree
And let its shelter comfort me
And get to thinking 'til it seems I'm drifting through a land of dreams.

A land where cares have passed away
Upon the fragrance of the day.
And with these symptoms, who could doubt
That spring's not somewhere near about.

The lecture will be held under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Medford, and will be delivered by Dr. Walton Hubbard C. S. WE CAN'T SPARE YOU!

The "key man," the valued executive, doesn't want a common cold to bar him from his desk. He can't be spared for frequent minor illnesses.

COMMON, says Webster, means oft recurring, and it means vulgar, low polluted. Now, doesn't that describe a cold? Immunization, administered by your physician, enables you to overcome susceptibility and to build up a strong resistance against colds.

WHAT TO PLANT NOW

With the coming of Spring, home gardeners everywhere are wondering how, when and what to plant on their home grounds. We are no longer satisfied with just a well clipped lawn, a tree or two, or a sprig of holly in front of the house. We desire that our home grounds be so planned and planted as to frame and complete a picture painted with the living beauty of green leaf and colorful bloom, fresh every morning, and changing from hour to hour and season to season, but ever delightful. What better investment can one make in sheer joy of living?

As most home gardeners are not acquainted with all of the various plant materials and their uses, many questions arise in their minds: "What to plant around the foundation of the house?" "How to construct and maintain rose gardens and perennial borders?" "What are the best evergreens for screening out objectionable views or for protecting the house from the dust and noise of traffic?"

At Little Tree Farms, in Framingham Centre, there is a unique service to help people with problems of this kind. All that the home gardener need do is to take a snapshot, rough sketch or plan of his property to Little Tree Farms and state his problem to one of the large staff of experienced landscape men. He will help plan, will assist in selecting the right materials, and in many instances will actually set up an appropriate planting so that the home owner may visualize just how it will look on his home grounds. Spring planting fever is in the air, and many are availing themselves of this free service.

Throughout the spring, various interesting and worthwhile horticultural demonstrations will be held at the Farms to acquaint New England gardeners with the use of various tools, the application of Peat Moss, the making of fine lawns and the use of various fertilizers and sprays.

II. M. Eddy and Her Church

On the wall of the Congregational Church at Tilton, New Hampshire, a tablet records that Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, was for thirty-seven years a member of that church. Mrs. Eddy, who died there in 1910, was in her later years expressed gratitude for her early church upbringing, as well as for the good accomplished by Christian churches everywhere. Christian Scientists gratefully acknowledge the loving care of the Bible and the patient efforts of centuries to spread the knowledge of the Scriptures, and to make them accessible to all. The Bible binds the Christian churches in the same other Christian churches in a common purpose. The Bible has made Christ the living inspiration and companion of Knowing God, Jesus knew man. Understanding God's nature, he understood that man's nature must reflect the divine nature. He understood that nothing which is unlike God can in reality attach itself to man, or express itself through man. He separated the real, the Godlike, from the false, the ungodlike. He did it for himself and he did it for others. Those whom he taught and healed received these glimpses of their true nature in varying measure. For example, the New

To pray rightly is to forgive. As C. S. Lewis says, "If you are not free from evil he must free himself from the belief that man can in reality do wrong or suffer wrong. Good intentions and promises unfulfilled are not sufficient to absolve him." He insists that our obligations must be carried out and our creditors paid. In just the same way, God's law demands that evil must be scientifically removed from the world, not just enough to let it lie dormant in consciousness. It must be seen to be neither offense, offender, nor victim. This scientific forgiveness is accomplished through prayer. Science is no arrow shot at a venture. It is not a plea for material benefits or personal favors. It is more than merely asking or demanding that the divine power must be made to intervene. Scientific prayer is a spiritual understanding that God, Spirit, is the only cause, and that He uses our prayer as the right instrument. It includes the willingness to put aside of all within our selves which obstructs our obedience to God's demands. Within God's allness no one is permitted to ignore or resist the misguiding endeavor that can have place or power. When our path seems to be obstructed by wrong or apathy of willfulness—our own or someone's—we must pray for the power to test our position by scientific prayer.

V. Christian Science Healing

world." To realize this truth is prayer, or high heels. Such prayer fearlessly affirms man's unity with God, and denies reality to whatever error may seem to cloud the patient's consciousness. It requires no aid from material remedies or from medical diagnosis. Its results prove that it is scientific. The patient's thought released from fear, and meekly receptive, he becomes responsive to the loving affirmations of his spiritual nature. With this awakening of consciousness, sickness disappears. He is healed because it never was real, and because its unreality was exposed.

VI. There Is No Matter

To bring Christ into your own world, into your own conscious experience, there are some mental windows which you must open. Obedience, watchfulness, and self-forgetfulness are three which will let much light. With these windows open you will have far less to fear from matter and its supposed laws and action. In reality there is no matter. Matter is thinking which has gone wrong. It is imperfect, incorruptible thinking. It is ignorant, and some-human flesh and mad ambition. Turn for yourself the effects of Christian Science on your health, your business, and your home. Bring Christ into your own world. Dare to have faith in the triumph of good, Dare to live by that faith. Do it with the same faith that you have by living it. When you seem to be hard-pressed, angels will come to your aid. You will draw strength, wisdom, and comfort from the inexhaustible reservoir of Love. You will be free of temptation to believe that you are sick, sinful, poor, forgotten, or unloved, and you will soar to heights of spiritual intuition, and your trust in good will command healing and salvation. This is the message of the Pilgrim Fathers is true today: "When Christ reigns, and not till then, will the world have rest" (see The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Disciples of Christ, a grand privilege to behold the coming of the Christ through Christian Science into the modern world. The events in the world of thought which have followed the advent of the recovery of Christian Science in 1866 are of surpassing significance. Mrs. Eddy's work is hastening the fulfillment of the prayer of every Christian: "Thy Kingdom come, and thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

W. C. T. U.

At a meeting of the W. C. T. U. held in Orlando, Fla., on Friday, March 17, in the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Clemens, formerly State vice-president of the W. C. T. U. of Tennessee, was the speaker. She gave an outline of the broadcast of Bertha Rachel Palmer, W. C. T. U. National Director of Alcohol Education. This broadcast was sent to every Union in the country, with the hope that someone in each group would present it in an interesting, attractive way to a large number of people. Mrs. Clemens was wisely chosen, for she has a forceful personality, and is a ready speaker. She said that there are 30,000,000 pupils in the United States, and 3,000,000 teachers and 300 teacher's colleges. If through the thorough education of the teachers in regard to the effects of beverage alcohol the 30,000,000 pupils could be taught its disastrous results, the general sentiment of the entire country would be opposed to the manufacture of alcoholic beverages. This statement reiterated in another form that which was made last month by the W. C. T. U. National President, Mrs. Ida Wise Smith, in which she said, "The manufacturers of alcoholic beverages say that if the W. C. T. U. succeed in their programme of educating the young people, our industry will be in peril."

One of Miss Loy's closest friends is Franchot Tone, a cartoonist who understands the futility of Miss Loy's love for Pidgeon.

One of the most dramatic stories of mother love ever written, comes to the screen in "Of Human Hearts," the companion feature, screen adaptation of Honore Merriau's classic story, "Bonetta's Forget," in which Walter Huston, James Stewart and Beulah Bondi head a cast of notable character players.

MALDEN STRAND THEATRE

"The Maid's Night Out," with Joan Fontaine and Allan Lane as the stars, heads the double bill opening at the Strand Theatre in Malden today. A double case of mistaken identity leads to amusing complications and motivates much of the hilarious action in "Maid's Night Out." Joan Fontaine is seen as the daughter of a fortune-hunting society mother, while Allan Lane portrays a young scientist interested in the study of tropical fish. "The Black Doll," with Nan Grey, Donald Woods and C. Henry Gordon as the stars is the second attraction on the bill starting today. This is taken from a Crime Club novel and tells how C. Henry Gordon, a cruel and shrewd financier finds the "Black Doll" on the desk in his home. It is a sign to him that vengeance is due as a result of his having slain one of his partners after the discovery of the "Black Doll" mine, many years ago. But here is a mystery story that will keep every spectator guessing up to the final scene.

"Expensive Husbands" with Beverly Roberts, Patric Knowles, Allan Jesslyn and Gordon Oliver as the stars, will head the bill for next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. This is the amusing tale of a movie star in Hollywood who has started to slip. She conceives the idea of going to Europe and marrying a title. This produces the fireworks and fun, "Some Blondes Are Dangerous" will be the second attraction on the bill starting Tuesday.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

They are fired for putting on their act for a high-powered eccentric, Gregory Ratoff. Fred Allen then lands them in a second rate night spot, where Alice Faye meets and develops a romantic interest in Tony Martin. Louise Hovick, who keeps Reno busy, falls for Tony and Allen gets her to finance a show. The song hits include "Sweet and A Song" "Got My Mind On Music," by Mack Gordon and Harry Revel, and "Half Moon On The Hudson" and "I Could Use A Dream" by Walter Bullock and Harold Spina.

THE PROPHET

In Herbert Hoover's last address he seemed to speak with great distress and I fear, all crying sadly in their beer. Well, once it might have made me sad, but now I really don't feel bad. At gardening, Herbie is no shark and he's been known to puff the mark. So if he says that all is wrong it's time to break out into song!

If you are distressed over the plumbing system in your home and really want to do something about the condition, call on the experts of Felix Plumbing & Heating Co., 636 Main St., and put an end to your troubles quickly and inexpensively. Do you want to SAVE MONEY?

The Standard Ford V-8, with 60-horse-power engine, gives you a lot of car for a little money.

300,000 new owners acclaimed the "thrifty 60" last year. Hundreds a day are buying it in 1938. Why?

Because it is priced low—includes essential equipment without extra charge—and goes farther between filling stations than any Ford car ever built. Owners all over the country report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a single gallon of gasoline.

But economy isn't all the story by any means. The Standard "60" is built with the same precision as the De Luxe "85," and has the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis. It is easy to look at and ride in —as well as easy to buy and run. There's a Ford dealer near you.

After several months' endeavor to wind up its affairs, the Calumet Club on Dix street, Winchester's oldest social organization and dating from the early days of the town, will go under the auctioneer's hammer early next month. SCHOLARSHIP FUND

In the spring of 1933, responding to many appeals, the Winchester Mothers' Association financed and awarded its first scholarship to a member of the High School graduating class. Grading public interest and support made it possible to award two scholarships in 1934, three in 1935, three in 1936 and four in 1937. These scholarships, financed by the Association through the Parents' Teachers of the Junior High, by individual contributions, and by an annual Tag Day, have made it possible for some of our outstanding high school graduates to continue their education.

The best proof of the value of this investment is the record of the scholarship winners. At Radcliffe, Smith, Wesleyan, Northeastern Law School, Tufts, Lowell Teachers' College, Simmons, Dartmouth and Harvard, these young representatives of Winchester are a credit to the town.

With the first scholarship winner graduated and the next two in senior year, it is evident that, when these students are helped through their freshman year, their own ability and efficiency will win college scholarships and opportunities for self help to complete their courses.

Richard Barksdale, the first scholarship winner, was graduated from Bowdoin last year. He was on the honor roll four years, sang on the Glee Club, and the Chapel Choir, contained the football "J. V.'s" played leading roles in college dramatics and won his Phi Beta Kappa key. This year he is taking his masters degree in English at Syracuse.

The next two winners, Esther Loftus at Radcliffe and Margaret Ekern at Smith, are completing their senior years with honor. Esther Loftus has won numerous scholarships, among them the Julia L. Richardson award. She has been doing secretarial work for the League of Women Voters, this year while majoring with honor in Radcliffe's distinguished English course. Margaret Ekern, Phi Beta Kappa at Smith, is co-chairman of the American Student Union, assistant in the Psychology Club. Last summer, she lectured in Ohio for the Emergency Peace Campaign. She has been doing original work in Social Psychology, the results of which will be published in the annual journal of Social Psychology.

With such evidence of the value of scholarships, the Mothers' Association is working to raise the funds for award in June. Each year there are high school seniors who will bring credit to those who help them to enter college. Contributions to the Scholarship Fund will be sincerely appreciated. They may be sent to Mrs. J. Stanley Barnes, treasurer, 221 Forest street.

BAPTIST CHORUS TO SING "OLIVET TO CALVARY"

The chorus choir of the First Baptist Church, numbering 35 voices under the direction of Leroy P. Bezanon, will sing the cantata, "Olivet to Calvary" by Maunder on Easter Sunday evening in the church auditorium, commencing at 7 o'clock. Soloists will be Mrs. Sadie Horne, soprano; Paul R. Bennett, tenor; and Robert Evans, Jr., baritone. Mrs. Fred C. MacDonald will be at the organ.

"Olivet to Calvary" tells of the last days of Our Lord, from his triumphal entry into Jerusalem through his trial before Pilate to his death on Calvary. The story is simply and reverently told, the musical setting being tuneful and easily appreciated by the average listener. The passages for chorus are very effective, that depicting the "March to Calvary" being especially thrilling, while such solo numbers as "Come Unto Me," "Ye Who Sing" "Not of This World" and "Droop Sacred Head" are especially beautiful.

Mr. Bezanon, who is directing Maunder's work, has been in charge of the Baptist choir during his last winter. He previously was director at the Highland Congregational Church in Somerville and has had a wide experience as a vocalist in both the church music and secular fields. It is of interest that both he and Mr. Evans, his baritone soloist Easter Sunday evening, were members of the baritone section of the Winchester Choral Society and are well known to local music lovers.

TAXING THE UNTAXABLES

Did you have to pay a federal income tax on your salary March 15? Well, none of the following did:

Governors and all other officials and employees of state governments, Mayors and all other officials and employees of city governments.

Commissioners and all other officials and employees of county governments.

Superintendents and all teachers in city and county school systems.

Presidents of state universities and colleges, deans and professors of those institutions and, yes, even the football coaches.

Justices of state supreme courts and state district judges and county judges and municipal judges and state attorneys-general and county and city prosecutors and sheriffs, and police chiefs and cops on the beat.

Now doesn't that make you pretty much of a sucker?

There are some 2,350,000 persons on the payrolls of state and local governments. They enjoy every benefit of federal government that anyone else enjoys.—(New York World Telegram.)

AS TO THIS AND THAT

Probably no other multitudinous experiments advocated to hasten our march toward the "more abundant life" has appealed to the average citizen so much as the C. C. C. In brief to enroll young men out of work and subject to divers temptations in accord with the saying that "Satan finds mischief for idle hands," to place them in country camps where the conditions would benefit them physically, mentally, and morally, to pay them wages for working and assign the larger part of sums received to their indigent parents, to return them to their homes better fitted to get jobs—all this seemed commendable.

That it has been so successful as to create a demand that it be made permanent as it ought to be if really discussion undertaken except for the purpose of taking it as an example of New Deal procedure, namely at any cost to do something that has an appearance of being good and has advantages of being good angles.

It would be surprising if ninety-nine and nine tenths of those enrolled did not feel it a grand idea and naturally parents and friends and directors and supervisors and those who sold land and lumber and supplies, all like it, but perhaps none of these is sufficiently disinterested to form an unbiased judgment.

The writer has observed several camps and has talked with many who had the opportunity to see their operation. It seems clear that in general the boys have behaved fairly well. The discipline has been somewhat lax but not too bad. The benefits have been, aside from the money paid to parents, better food and clothing and medical and dental care than would otherwise have been had, a little educationally, probably a fair physical gain from the work done in the open.

The losses have been—to quote a sympathetic but keen observer that the boys have been receiving pay for doing very little, have been given an intensive training in getting something for nothing, and that the costs have been very heavy.

The men assigned by the War Department and the Forest Department to direct the work and not to be condemned on this account. They are normal men with careers to think about. They know perfectly well that they cannot afford to be too strict, that the average Congressman will listen; all too willingly to complaints of harsh requirements, that for them "the line of least resistance" is the wise road, and so except in cases of flagrant delinquency they have gone along and done the best that they could.

The published reports have been enthusiastic over the number of trees planted, roads cut and so forth; they have disclosed almost nothing, but if all costs be included, every boy enrolled has cost the government not far from $2250 per year or at that rate. If $250 be deducted for the work done, the net cost has been about $2000 per year per boy.

To the crusader for uplift this cost may seem immaterial and to mention it may seem it is important. It is of course impossible at this time to determine how much these boys have been benefited or injured, and it may be that if a fair percentage, say twenty-five percent, were made into much better citizens the result might be worth twenty-five percent of the expenditure. It is probable that a moderate judgement is correct—a few have been appreciably helped, a large number have been harmed by not doing a day's work for a day's pay, the rest are about what they would have been anyway. A very large amount of money has been distributed and a political machine has been strengthened a little good and some harm has been the result.

It is usual for those defending New Deal panaceas to say that mistakes will occur, are normal, will be admitted and corrected, and to rebuke criticism as destructive. Not to quibble about words though the C. C. C. mistakes look more like blunders due to ignorant haste and incompetence it would be interesting to be advised as to when or where any mistakes have been admitted. As to criticism the only kind that is worth anything is the unfavorable. And one making it is under no obligation to submit a blue print for its correction. As one rides over the road this spring it is distressingly clear that the past winter left them in bad condition in all too many places. They have cost us a lot of money. We have the right and duty to ask of it men making the mistake that they be more nearly permanent. It is their job to do it and not ours to tell them how.

It is at least a tenable proposition that the C. C. C. has an economic basis, that men began to gain when they learned the advantages of saving for the tomorrow, that with the passing generations tolerance and generosity and the widest philanthropy have become established and grown as men and nations accumulated reserves, that the folly of careless spending is as bad for the nation as for the individual since when the nation spends the burden falls upon all of us, rather more proportionately upon the lowest wage earners than upon the so-called rich. We must have good roads, schools, libraries, parks, recreation, a well-kept and well-maintained and so forth. We cannot possibly do all that we would like to do. Hence it is strictly pertinent to ask that any new thing prove its case. The C. C. C. seems to cost too much for what it does.

SOCRATES SAYS—

"CONTUMACY"

(You Won't Talk, Huh?)

Chairman Arthur E. Morgan of the T. V. A., was tried by the President, who acted as Judge and Jury—found guilty of "contumacy" (obstinate resistance to authority) by the President, and punished by the President by removal from office.

Had the President's inquiry turned out to be one of those "trials of confession," the affair might have been easily liquidated.

The question now is—Are the charges made by Chairman Morgan true? The facts, whether Dr. Morgan is guilty of "contumacy" or whether President Roosevelt had a right to remove him from office, are now of little consequence.

The President is quoted as saying "Under the Constitution of the United States the Chief Executive is directly charged to take care that the laws be faithfully executed." The fact that Dr. Morgan "won't talk" can be "taken care of" by a properly constituted congressional investigation.

Dr. Morgan's removal from office is not a "hard-stick" that measures satisfactorily his charges concerning the T. V. A.

A BIG FIRE

To the Editor of the Star:
As I observe the stream-lined fire apparatus responding to a fire and see perched on top of this modern fire apparatus the call firemen, who receive $200 a year to throw out their chests and look their best fighting a grass fire, please remember that I am not sure; because here is some more.

Prior to the motorization of the fire department equipment to extinguish grass fires, consisted of a horse-drawn steamer—Mary Ann, hook and ladder and two hose carriages, all drawn by horses. The following named apparatus was drawn or pulled by hand: Black Horse No. 2, situated opposite the Mystic School on Main street; Excelsior Hose 3, Swanton street; Rufford Hose 4, corner of Main and Swanton streets and Hose 5, corner of Cambridge street and Foxcroft road.

These various companies consisted of ten men each, or in other words, 40 men received $15 per hour. But the generous Town Fathers, lo and behold, the good Samaritans, increased our salary to $35 a year. We were fined 50 cents if we were absent from a fire. If we did not like the fine we were obliged to cheerfully retire in June.

I for one believe that they did not hear the alarm that was sounded at 11 o'clock on the morning of March 12, 1931. Their reading of the thermometer registered two below zero and the wind was of gale velocity. In fact when we returned to our homes from the Welcome House fire it was necessary to cut the frozen coats off our backs.

I believe the excellent skill that was manifested in battling the conflagration of 47 years ago was the marvelous coolness of the late Chief Engineer, Eugene Ayer, the late Assistant Chief Timothy Haley, and the splendid co-operation of James J. Fitzgerald and James Noonan.

Perhaps in a later issue of the Star, Mike and I, later this time, will mention Mary Ann, which met its Waterloo on Mt. Vernon street in the year 1907.

In conclusion, I am sending an old poem for a late issue of the Star. Patrick H. Cranwell and His Pal—Mike the Paddy

BOY SCOUT NOTES

Troop 7

On Monday evening, April 11, Dexter Oliver was welcomed back with Troop 7. He has just completed two years' service in the U. S. Army, stationed at Fort Scofield, Hawaiian Islands. Dexter received his registration and very ably took charge of the troop during the marching in preparation for the Memorial Day exercises.

During the evening District Commissioner Colcord and his assistant H. K. Archibald visited the troop for their annual inspection. Mr. Colcord was pleased to find more than 50 per cent of the troop in uniform and stated that the results of his examination showed Troop 7 to be one of the best organized in town.

Many of our boys attended the Court of Review and successfully passed all requirements as follows: Ellsworth Post, first class and one merit badge.

David Burnham, two merit badges, Richard Swanson, three merit badges.

Ralph Swanson, three merit badges, Frank Strong, three merit badges, Frank Allan, three merit badges, Donald Johnson, three merit badges, Ralph Jury, three merit badges, Ray Harris, one merit badge.

A trip to Camp Lane is planned for this week Saturday. Scouts to leave the Baptist Church at 9 a. m. under the supervision of A. O. Weld, S. M., John Casler, assistant S. M., and Richard Swanson, S. P. L.

There will be no regular meeting next Monday evening, April 18 on account of school vacation.

Troop 5

The troop held their meeting at White's Hall on April 11. Acting Scoutmaster Salvatore Ferro has worked very hard to put on this act for our sponsors, the Christofo Colombo Society.

Salvatore Ferro put his troop in formation ready for action and to exhibit the boys of Troop 5. The first thing which took place at this meeting was the ceremony held by Scoutmaster Salvatore Ferro, acting Scoutmaster Salvatore Ferro and other members as the following: Chairman Vincent Giogliotti, Dominic Simonetta, Dominic Ferrina, Giuseppe Ferro and president of the society, Joseph Margari.

The ceremony considered the meaning of the law given by different Scouts, entering Scouts as the following: Francis Farrell, Dominic Russo, Anthony Saracco and Edgar Whitehouse, new tenderfoot as Frank Tranchita, Frank Santo, Edgar Whitehouse and Anthony Saracco, the first three second class scouts are Frank Ferro, Dominic Russo, Ralph Cefali and we had two scouts which have been in scouting for five years, they are acting Scoutmaster Salvatore Ferro and junior assistant Scoutmaster F. Ferro.

We gave the badges to patrol leader Gaspar Cattone and assistant Michael Saracco of the new patrol, the Blazing Arrow.

The second thing we had was first aid by Francis Ferro, Frank Cefali, Ralph Cefali, Charles Ferro, Michael Procopio and Cosimo Simonetta. Signaling came next which was done by Salvatore DeToso.

MAYOR KANE AT LIONS CLUB

Mayor Kane will be the guest of the evening of the Winchester Lions Club at Calvary Church next Monday, April 18 at 6:15 p. m. The live wire executive of our neighboring City of Woburn is expected to enlighten those who hear him of his unusual procedure of handling present day problems. Much publicity has come to his home or of late and if we do not mention the "housewife" maybe he will. Governing a city these days is some job and when an executive steps out of the usual standard groove, that's news. Dinner will be served at 6:15 p. m. and the Lions extend a cordial invitation to the public.

Reservations at $1 each may be made by calling a member or call President Dr. R. L. Emery, Win. 1179 or Secretary Fredric D. Clement, Win. 1490.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Fitch of Oxford street returned to Winchester this week from St. Petersburg, Fla., where they spent the winter.

Mr. Gallagher inquired about the city manager plan as a solution to the deplorable situation in our cities and Mr. Herter answered that that would be really the one way that you could ultimately bring about a reduction in the number of employees in our cities. He spoke about the bill permitting city managers and proportional representation which had that very afternoon been a matter of discussion in the legislature and which was passed last year only to be vetoed by Governor Hurley, and Mr. Herter observed that the legislation would very likely not be enacted until the present Mayor of Cambridge was out of office, as it is a matter of common knowledge on Beacon Hill that Governor Hurley has agreed to veto the bill so long as Mayor Lyons holds forth in his halliwick. Mr. Abbe brought out the point that the income tax tended to defeat its own ends by so heavily taxing income from sources other than earnings that many wealthy people well able to pay had removed their residence to other states, thereby materially reducing the revenue from this source, but Mr. Herter suggested that this was probably no different than the situation that exists in many other states such as New York and California.

In the business meeting before Mr. Herter spoke, Charles H. Gallagher was elected Treasurer of the Association, and Arthur Thad Smith, Jr., secretary, and the following members were elected to the Board of Directors: Ralph H. Bennett, H. L. Bennett, Mrs. T. W. Conlon, William Ferguson, Charles H. Gallagher, F. M. Gunby, Miss A. Natalie Jewett, J. A. Laraway, Harrison F. Lyman, William F. Morton, James Nowell, Joseph J. Tansey, Charles Wadsworth, Mrs. Alonzo F. Woodsie, Frank P. Hurley, James McCormick, Theodore von Rosenzweig, Frederic E. Abbe.

At the termination of his speech, Mr. Herter made a few questions and there was a brief period of very interesting discussion. Mrs. Whitman asked if it would not be possible to lay off a great many of the state employees, without impairing the efficiency of the government; to which Mr. Herter answered that considerable saving could be made along that line and that in the last analysis that was the only point at which material savings could be made in the expense of running the state, but that politically of course it is very difficult to do.

He added that the general average of our state employees is very good and that even some of the recent political appointees have subsequently turned out to be excellent workers.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest L. Parker of Wilson street are spending several days in New York City, being registered at the Roosevelt.

Sponsoring the popular "March of Time" for the second consecutive year, Servel, Inc., will be "on the air" in 1938, according to Mr. B. D. Fischer, Sales Manager of the Arlington Gas Light Company.

This outstanding program which dramatizes news events featured in the headlines of newspapers, will be broadcast over an N. B. C. coast-to-coast network for 13 Thursday evenings beginning April 7 and ending June 30.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Fire Department answered three alarms for grass fires yesterday afternoon, the first at 12.06 for a fire off Hillcrest Parkway near the reservoir. At 4.42 there was a fire off Washington street near Forest street, and at 9.18, the last of the three, off Hutchinson road.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lacroix, steward and stewardess of the Winchester Boat Club, arrived back on the job from Los Angeles, Calif., last week-end. They made as many as 650 miles some days driving east and lost one of their rear number plates in Oregon. As there was no way of getting another they continued east through Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, etc., and were not halted by the police until they reached Springfield, Mass. Going a distance of 3000 miles without a rear number plate and not being stopped make a record.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins; . . . But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us" (Ephesians 2:13, 14).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus aided in reconciling man to God by giving man a truer sense of Love, the divine Principle of Jesus' teachings, and this truer sense of Love redeems man from the law of matter, sin, and death by the law of Spirit, the law of divine Love" (p. 19).

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE

The season of the Winchester Group Theatre ended in a most successful presentation of the dramatized Jane Austen comedy, "Pride and Prejudice" Saturday night in the high school auditorium. The cast was as follows:

Mrs. Bennett Lillian R. Whitman
Elizabeth Bennet Elizabeth Adair
Jane Bennet Jane Bennett Charlotte Bennet Charlotte Bennet
Miss Bingley Betsy Jones
Miss de Bourgh Martha Hill
Lady Catherine de Bourgh Georgea V. Farnsworth
Mr. Bennet William L. Spaulding
Mr. Wickham Edmund A. Merriam, Jr.
Mr. Collins Sherman H. Russell
Mr. Darcy Jacob W. Bond
Mr. Gardiner Eugene M. Pollard
Mr. Lucas Jacob W. Bond
Mr. Meryton Roger D. Newell
Col. Fitzwilliam Roger D. Newell

Thoroughly imbued with the air of the period (1813), the cast gave the audience a good picture of the feminine foibles, the male insuperability and the colorful pageantry of early 19th century costumes and manners. Laurels may go to none of the entire cast. Dr. Eugene M. Pollard as the proud father of Mr. Bennet, did much in the way of taking home the greatest credit of those laurels. The performances were as articulate and convincing, and handled with a delicacy of touch so needed in maintaining the atmosphere of the play. Elizabeth Bennet was excellent as the being given in her careful dictation and the always kept in evidence the slight line of differentiation between her own background as a Bennet sister with a 20th century mind, which had to be subjugated to the convention of the period.

Others who showed hard work and a complete understanding of the characters they portrayed were Mrs. Joy A. Woolley as Jane Bennet, the eldest sister; Mrs. Marya Hill as Miss Bingley; Georgea V. Farnsworth as Lady Catherine de Bourgh; William L. Spaulding as Mr. Bennet; Edmund A. Merriam, Jr. as Mr. Wickham; Sherman H. Russell as Mr. Collins. Special mention is due Mr. Russell's portrayal of Collins. His sincerity of interpretation gave the right touch to the farcical character who takes himself so seriously. Lillian R. Whitman as Mrs. Bennett, Ralph T. Hale as Sir William Lucas, Miss Elizabeth Adair as Lydia, Mrs. Janet Nichols Darylme as Charlotte Lucas and Roger D. Newell as Col. Fitzwilliam did admirable work in their roles.

The very necessary, but sometimes thankless roles of maid and butler were handled expertly by Betsy Jones as Mrs. Hill and Mrs. W. Bond as Harris and Martin, both doing double duty in the lengthy play. It is now that superlatives might be used without qualms of literary correctness, as we name the good ones. W. Hayden, Jr. who was responsible for the exquisite sets, without which the play could not have been considered the success it was. Four sets were used, their charm lying in their utter simplicity and choice of color scheme handled by Mrs. Graves. The stagecraft displayed in the complete but simple changes in scenes, compared favorably with any professional production. The props were well chosen and gave truth to the production.

Always difficult, but nonetheless necessary, are the few words of criticism. The play was not without its lines, lost positions and other marred the perfection and smoothness of scene. It is not hard to realize why actors might "blow up" when one hears the uncastigated vernacular in some "bad" lines, almost impossible, but the line perfection by the balance of the cast was often forgotten through the lapses of those who proved unsure and at times speechless.

The plot of the play, of course, is frail. The version used by the Group Theatre was that of Mrs. Steele Mackaye, and dramatized the well known story of the English country wife who, in spite of her position, came through her marriage, and whose sole interest is marrying off her three daughters as they reach the age of reason.

The eldest daughter sincerely falls in love with her wealthy neighbor, who returns the affection, and the youngest and giddiest member of the trio falls prey to the doubtful charms of a young officer in the militia. Elizabeth, the other daughter, has the courage of her convictions and refuses to be intimidated or awestruck by the obviously material charms of a rather difficult snob, Mr. Darcy. It goes to show, after all, that passion, or to put it a bit more mildly, love conquers all, even overcoming such insurmountable obstacles as pride of birth and family opposition.

It is a shame that the play, for it is on their apparent weaknesses, which cover a strength of purpose, that the story is based, yet the Saturday night performance, the play, belonged to the gentlemen of the cast who were much the stronger in characterization.

With all the production, directed so ably by John E. Wakefield, was well received; a most responsive audience was amused and entertained, which in good part is sufficient criterion for successful theater.

FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Annual Meeting

Another all too short club year has been folded away into history—the annual meeting has vanished over the horizon, but will ever remain in the happy hearts of every Fortnightly member enough to have been present at that memorable occasion, Monday, April 11. The luncheon, (and the fun) began promptly at 12:30—when 150 lovely club members sat down together for the last time this year. In introducing Harriet Hildreth, the guest of honor, president Claire Reynolds expressed the great pride of Fortnightly in the many club members who play an important part in the Federation and other prominent clubs. This list includes Harriet Hildreth, First Vice President of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs; Eleanor Hudson, Chairman, Preservation of Antiquities Committee; Alice R. Andrews, Preservation of Antiquities Committee; Gladys F. Dutton, Co-operation with War Veterans Committee; Gladys Wilson, President, Eighth District Presidents' Club; Elizabeth Hall, President, League of Women Voters; and Irene D. Clarke, President, Winchester Women's Republican Club.

Mrs. Hildreth responded to the introduction with a few words of greeting, an expression of great pride in her home club, and the hope that they in co-operation with other State clubs, could do something to change the appalling statistics which place our country as Number 1 in the Crime list, and Number 1 in the use of the Marijuana weed.

Mrs. Reynolds then introduced the Federation Secretary, Jane Robinson, who had information to divulge regarding the doings at Swampscott. In a masterful speech, our Jane announced that a group of competent actors would present the information most capably, so turned the job over to "Little Miss Snow White," formerly known as Elizabeth Hall, who, in a tiny high voice called forth her gallant squad of dwarfs, "Dopey," Madeline Zimmerman, "Sneeze," Jane Robinson, "Sleepy," Edith Maddocks, "Happy," Elizabeth Speedie, "Doc," Lillian Whitman, "Grumpy," Ellouise Graves, and "Bashful," Therese Mann. In stirring tones, these funny little fellows gave the message something like this:

Hi-ho, hi-ho,
To Swampscott; we must go

May twenty six Let that date stick Remember!
Our lovely Harriet Hildreth
President will be Come one, come all and hear the call Of Fortnightly!

Then gathering around the guest of honor, they serenaded her in another of their famed numbers—"One Song" Harriet—Harriet Hildreth.
We sing this song to you,
Four Club, dear old Fortnightly
Is ever wishing you good luck for you!
May your administration
Be filled with joy for you.
This song Fortnightly's singing:
Dear Harriet, we're proud of you!

The annual meeting started promptly at 2:30, and was followed by a splendid program of chorals by the Fortnightly Glee Club directed by Mary Ranton Witham, and accompanied by Miss Lucy Wilcox. Miss Marian Hertha Clarke, a prominent radio personality, gave an interesting inside story of what goes on behind the Mike. Miss Clarke is a brilliant speaker with a fund of interesting radio knowledge, and a perfect, clear, radio voice.

Although this is a "holdover" year, with no change in officers, there were several changes in Committee Chairmen, and it was with a great deal of interest that we listened to Florence Adriance, Chairman of the Nominating Committee, give the report of the election, as follows:

"SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS" AT THE UNIVERSITY

Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs, starts a five day engagement at the University Theatre in Cambridge on Saturday of this week. To give everyone the opportunity to see this grand Walt Disney feature, the management has arranged extra morning performances (9 and 11:15) for the opening, Saturday, and also on the holiday, next Tuesday. Four complete shows starting at the usual 1.30 time will be the University's policy on Sunday, Monday and Wednesday, the remaining "Snow White" play dates. As always, mezzanine and orchestra loge seats may be reserved in advance for all performances.

In glorious colors and peopled with adorable creatures, Walt Disney brings enchanted life to a story known and loved for many generations and by all ages.

READING THEATRE

One of the year's outstanding spectacles will be shown starting Sunday at the Reading Theatre with the coming of "The Bad Man of Brimstone," starring Wallace Beery in an epic saga of the lawless West.

Staged against the grim background of the West's most rugged panoramas, "The Bad Man of Brimstone" presents a saga of the unregenerate town of Brimstone, ruled with a ruthless six-gun by Wallace Beery.

On the same program will be Jane Withers and Stuart Erwin in "Checkers," and today and tomorrow the notable feature bill includes Warner Oland and Keye Luke in "Chan at Monte Carlo" and Wendy Barrie with Kent Taylor in "Prescription for Romance."

WINCHESTER HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Winchester Historical Society was held on April 7 at 8 o'clock at the Public Library.

The annual report of the secretary showed the society to be in a thriving condition. A large number of gifts have been received during the year, mostly old books and letters, and photographs of people formerly prominent in the town. There were also several photographs of the centre of the town taken several years ago, which were particularly interesting. Other gifts received were an old-fashioned doll and an old fire bucket.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:
President—Mrs. Nathaniel M. Nichols
First Vice President—Marshall W. Symmes
Second Vice President—Carl F. A. Siedhof
Secretary—Miss Clara R. Russell
Treasurer—Edward B. Ladd

Directors—Ester E. Andrews, William N. Bees, George T. Davidson, Mrs. Ernest R. Allen, Alfred H. Hildreth, Miss Clara Quimby, Edgar J. Rich, Mrs. Hudson Harry T. Winn, Dr. J. Harter Blaisdel

At the conclusion of the business meeting Mrs. Nichols presented the speaker of the evening, Rev. Laurence L. Barber, the president of the Arlington Historical Society and pastor of the Orthodox Congregational Church of Arlington. Mr. Barber's subject was "The Quest of the Quaint." He defined quaint as meaning "Strange, especially old-fashioned, but pleasing in character and appearance." He contrasted the independent life which our New England ancestors lived, when they produced practically all the food they ate and the clothes they wore with our modern way of living. He also spoke of the difference in home life, when people stayed home most of the time and were dependent on each other, and quoted a passage from Whitcomb's Snow-Bound to bring this out with telling effect. In the quest of the quaint he spoke of how large a part sentiment plays. He exhibited a pewter cup on which there are the birth-marks of six generations and an old hand-made chair, in which many of the measurements were not exact, stating how much more these articles meant to him than if they were more perfectly made. He also showed two of the quaintest beautiful things made in this country, one of them made in 1745.

Mr. Barber was a particularly interesting speaker and entertained us with many anecdotes showing the Quest of the Quaint led to many strange places.

OBSERVATIONS

By The Observer

It is a safe bet that there is not an American in Winchester who has seen all of America.

The other day a very bad Winchester boy got his just deserts when he only got dinner and no sweets.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE WINCHESTER TAXPAYERS' ASSOCIATION

During the fiscal year April 1, 1937 to April 1, 1938, our membership increased from 288 to 453, or more than 57 per cent, so that the Association is now in a very healthy condition.

At a November meeting, the Board of Directors elected F. M. Gunby, president of the Association, Charles Y. Wadsworth and Mrs. T. W. Conlon, vice presidents.

The principal local activity during the year was an exhibit of hidden taxes in the Locust Building during March. This worked out so successfully that many other associations in the State are putting on exhibits patterned after ours here in Winchester.

The directors at a meeting in February, after considerable discussion, went in record as being opposed to the proposed Emergency Relief Tax, generally known as the Sales Tax.

A careful check of local finances made through the Town Finance Committee disclosed that our Town continues to be operated in an economical and efficient manner.

We have been constantly in touch with the State Federation and report that it is continuing its excellent work on Beacon Hill and merits our full support.

For 1938-39, your Association proposes to continue keeping its watchful eye on local affairs, and in general to further honest and efficient government at the least possible cost.

MRS. ROGERS ACTIVE AGAINST REORGANIZATION BILL

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers is being deluged with letters and telegrams from all over the country, thanking her for her help in defeating the Reorganization Bill last Friday.

Mrs. Rogers, in her position as ranking minority member of the Committee on Civil Service of the House of Representatives, took an active part in opposing the measure, especially the section of the bill which would have done away with the present set-up of the Civil Service Commission.

She offered several amendments to the measure, each providing that the Commission be maintained in its present status.

Mrs. Rogers felt that the measure involved additional expenditures, and that its defeat will cause more confidence throughout the country, with the result that business will improve.

WINCHESTER OPENS APRIL 26

Winchester High School opens its current baseball season on April 26, meeting Lexington High in a Middlesex League contest at Lexington.

Next week will be vacation week and Coach George Lauer has been working his big squad hard to get a line on his more promising material before this layoff period.

About 50 boys reported for baseball this spring, and thus far the squad has been reduced to 33. Cold weather has retarded the development of the squad, but Winchester is well fixed in the all important pitching department, and if a capable catcher can be developed, should have little trouble winning most of its games.

"Gerry" Fiesciello, rugged football star; Louis Errico, varsity basketball player; Gainey and Ramsdell are the leading candidates for backstopping honors, with Ramsdell alone having previous high school experience.

Edgar Preston, Boston & Maine tower man discovered when he arrived for work early Monday morning that a number of large stones had been rolled down the embankment onto the railroad tracks south of the tower, causing a dangerous condition. Railroad men removed the stones, and the Police were notified.

HUSBANDS' NIGHT AT THE PLAY READINGS

Friday, April 22, will end for this year the series of play-readings by Mrs. Phyllis Thaxter. The hour for the last play has been moved from the afternoon to evening in order that the men may be present.

Preceding the play, at 7:45, the Tuesday Luncheon Group, Mrs. Warren Jenney, president, has arranged for an informal reception, which will give an opportunity to meet Mrs. Thaxter.

At 8:15 she will read "I'd Rather Be Right." It sounds like a daring project, to present that laughter-piece single-handed, without either music, dancing, or George M. Cohan. But other audiences to whom Mrs. Thaxter has read "I'd Rather Be Right" testify that her one-person presentation is thoroughly enjoyable.

For the April 8 reading, Mrs. Thaxter let her audience choose from three widely different plays, "Father Malachy's Miracle," "Of Mice and Men," and "You Can't Take It With You." They chose the whimsical comedy of the hobby-riding household where hood kinsmen, in-laws, and the ice man (who came to leave ice and stayed on seven years) go their gentle-hearted, affectionate, happy ways. Ten were served to many after the reading. At the ten tables were Mrs. Donald Heath and Mrs. R. E. L. Moehan.

FORTNIGHTLY GLEE CLUB TO SING

A special honor has been accorded the Fortnightly Glee Club, an invitation to sing at the Fine Arts Conference of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum on next Monday afternoon, April 18. The program, which includes an illustrated talk by Cyrus Dallin and selections by a harpist of the note, will be further enriched by the following songs by the Glee Club under the direction of Mary Ranton Witham: Silent Strings by Bantock; O Bone Jesu by Palestrina; The Flowers of the Forest, an old air arranged by Robertson; Peter Piper by Bridge; Dedication by Franz Dagegott; May Day Carol, an English folksong arranged by Deems Taylor; L'heure Exquise by Iahn (with soprano solo by Isabelle Winship); Carol of the Russian Children, arranged by Trehearne; and Through the Dark the Dreamers came by Mabel Daniels. Some of these numbers were included in the program so beautifully rendered at the annual meeting of the Fortnightly last Monday.

WILL ATTEND SMITH LUNCHEON

Mrs. C. S. Farnham as president of the Winchester Smith College Club will sit at the head table at the annual luncheon of the Boston League of Smith Clubs at the Somerset, Saturday, April 16. Another Winchester graduate is active on the general committee. She is Mrs. Harold Farnsworth. Miss Adelaide Homer is a member of the ushers' committee which will see the seating of the more than 300 Greater Boston alumnae who will gather to hear President William Allan Neilson of Smith speak.

Other Winchester alumnae who have sent in early reservations are Miss Mary Persons and Mrs. H. H. P. Wright.

Floyd W. Tremberth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Tremberth of 74 Woodside road, has recently been elected Steward of his fraternity Alpha Kappa Pi. Mr. Tremberth is a Junior in the Engineering School at Tufts College.

EPIPHANY LUNCHEON BRIDGE

Mrs. Torr Harmer Returns to Helm

It's a test of a good administrator that his organization will work efficiently without his keeping his hand on it every bit of the time. To this test Mrs. Torr Harmer, chairman, has recently put her organization of committees for the Epiphany spring luncheon bridge. During her ten-day absence on a leisurely motor trip southward her helpers have pushed forward plans for this event, which will take place at 1 o'clock, Wednesday, April 20.

Prizes for each individual table are being provided by Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter. Score cards are in charge of Mrs. Paul Roberts and Mrs. Egnar Bratt. Assisting with the ticket sale is Mrs. S. Walter Taber. The food sale, which will simplify the problem of the family dinner when the lady of the loaf returns late from the hard-fought bridge field, is being managed by the Evening Branch of Epiphany women, Mrs. John Hanlon, chairman. The preparation of the luncheon dishes is so efficiently organized and duties so distributed that there is no danger that "too many cooks will spoil the broth." Guests will meet an attractive spring menu.

MRS. VINCENZINA SANTO

The funeral of Mrs. Vincenzina Santo was held Tuesday morning from the residence of her brother-in-law, Joseph Santo, 50 Harvard street, with high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

Mrs. Santo, wife of Dominick Santo, died Friday afternoon, April 8, at St. Margaret's Hospital in Coalville, Pa. Besides her husband she is survived by her parents and six brothers.

COLLEGE CLUB ART GROUP

On Friday, April 15, the College Club Art Group will meet in Boston at the Vose Galleries at 559 Boylston street, promptly at 10.30. Mr. Vose is the speaker of the morning and will talk on "How to Choose Pictures for the Home." He has been most cooperative with the leaders of the Landscape Group and this will be a rare opportunity to hear one of the most eminent art authorities in Boston and also to see some of the pictures of his valuable collection.

On exhibition will be paintings of ships and the sea by Frank Vining Smith and water colors by F. Mitchell Hastings. The Vose Galleries are located conveniently near a number of other art galleries in the vicinity of Copley Square, and everyone will undoubtedly visit one or more of them. IT SEEMS IT'S A CAR FOLKS WON'T DO WITHOUT!

WE were pretty sure we had a great car when some months ago we checked the final blueprints on the 1938 Buick.

It had the new and mighty DYNAFLASH engine for sparkling action—the sensationally desirable TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING for a lullaby of a ride.

Looking ahead in that promising day, we figured we had every chance of getting our sales share by reason of what this car gave the buyer for his money.

Now, when times are sterner, it appears we built better than we knew—we've got a car folks just won't do without!

Just below Medford center the smell reminds one of the aroma from our mill pond at this time last year. Medford probably enjoys the sewer discharging into its river as well as Winchester did its Aberjona nuisance.

"Joe" Dineen, smooth working shortstop of the Millionaires and former high school infielder, is one of the candidates for a place on the Tufts varsity nine this spring. The Winchester boy played regular second base on the Jumbo freshman nine a year ago but with Capt. "Bennie" Collier available for duty and constituting one of the best keystone men in college ranks, his chances for the varsity at this position are slim. "Joe" has, however, been hitting well this spring and of late Coach Nash has been trying him in the outfield. He's the sort of boy a coach likes to have around, and it won't be surprising if he crashes through somewhere before the season's close.

A few days ago an out-of-state automobile stopped while going through the center and the lady who was driving got out to do an errand, leaving the machine unlocked and what appeared to be a valuable fur piece upon the seat. Officer Dempsey, who was on traffic duty, noticed her carelessness and kept an eye on the car until its owner returned. The lady, while appreciative, laughed off Officer Dempsey's reminder that she had been careless in leaving her fur piece in an unlocked car, but if she had returned and found her property missing, the joke would have been hard to find. The Star has on previous occasions warned its readers about leaving valuables in unlocked automobiles, not that locking the doors is infallible by any means. "When you do not however, you are 'asking for it'" and although he is pretty prevalent, Henry may not happen to be around to prevent your getting it!

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH SANG "OLIVET TO CALVARY"

Easter Sunday evening the robed choir of the First Baptist Church, comprising 35 mixed voices under the direction of Leroy P. Bezanon, sang the cantata, "Olivet to Calvary," by Maude in the church auditorium. Soloists were Mrs. Sadie Roberts, soprano; Paul R. Bennett, tenor; and Robert Evans, Jr., baritone. The church organist, Mrs. Frederick C. MacDonald, played the organ score, and preceding the cantata there was a brief service of worship conducted by the pastor of the church, Rev. R. Mitchell Rushton.

An audience of good size listened with the closest attention to Maude's beautiful music which was given a most creditable performance by the choir. The singers were quite evidently imbued with the simple dignity and reverence of the score, their sincerity of expression and an offsetting slight technical imperfections which the critical ear might have detected. The choral numbers were sung smoothly with a pleasing tone, with especially noticeable in the softer passages such as those which occur in "Night on Olivet" and "O Thou Whose Sweet Compassion."

The soloists all contributed to the pleasure of the cantata. Mr. Edwards, who was handicapped by a cold, sang the aria, "Ye Who Sins" effectively, and Mrs. Horne was equally effective in her performance of the appealing "Dread Sacred Head" which preceded the finale. Mr. Evans sang the beautiful "Come Unto Him" with fine feeling while his performance of the trying unaccompanied recitative passages left nothing to be desired in pitch or diction. His singing of the low notes in the aria, "A New Commandment" and of the climactic high note in the passages portraying the crucifixion was cleanly cut.

Mr. Bezanon wisely chose a rather leisurely tempo for the cantata which permitted his singers to get the utmost in expression. He conducted unobtrusively and insisted upon the same careful reading of the two incidental hymns which occur in the score as the more spectacular passages. He also contributed the solo passages written for Pilate. Mrs. MacDonald played the organ accompaniments effectively and in a manner which proved helpful to both soloists and ensemble.

BURR-O'NEIL

On Easter Sunday afternoon in St. Mary's Church, Miss Frances Barbara O'Neil of Washington street, came the bride of Robert Leonard Burr of Pond street, Stoneham, Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick performed the marriage ceremony at 5 o'clock, and the wedding music was played by Frederick Strachan of Belmont.

Miss O'Neil was given in marriage by her uncle, John J. McCarthy of the town. She wore a princess style wedding gown of white lace with a conventional tulle veil and carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, white roses and valley lilies. Her only attendant was her sister, Miss Helen O'Neil of this town. She wore a blue marquisette dress with matching hat and carried tulle train roses.

Mr. Burr had for his best man Wilbur Avery of Stoneham, and the ushers were John J. O'Neil of Boston, brother of the bride, and K. Arnold Newcomb of Stoneham.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Calumet Club with the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy, and the parents of the bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Burr of Stoneham, assisting in receiving.

Upon their return from a wedding journey to New York Mr. Burr and his bride are to make their home in Winchester at 206 Washington street. The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School. Mr. Burr, a Stoneham High graduate is associated with the E. L. Patch Company of Stoneham.

SCHOLARSHIP TAG DAY

On Friday, April 22, the yellow cases of the Scholarship Tag Day will make their annual appearance in Winchester, carried by mothers from every chapter in the Winchester Mothers' Association. Each dollar and every penny dropped into these boxes, will help to open the door of college for some High School senior who represents, in character and scholarship, the high ideals of the Mothers' Association, but who lacks the financial means for further education. The number of students who will receive this opportunity depends upon contributions to the Scholarship Fund.

Eleven Winchester boys and girls, who won these scholarships in former years, are now representing Winchester, with honor, as undergraduates in nine different colleges and universities. The first winner was a graduate with high honors at Bowdoin, last June. Such a record leaves no doubt as to the value of this investment in education and brings credit and satisfaction to all those who have generously supported these scholarships.

Tag Day is the opportunity for every citizen of Winchester to cooperate with the Mothers' Association in the enterprise, which is the climax of its service to the youth of Winchester.

Friday, April 29, Carry Cash For The Yellow Boxes.

"He Giveth His Beloved Sleep"—Psalms

A quiet little woman. With a warm and tender heart. With cheerful sunny smiling hands. She always did her part. Her kindness and her sympathy. She gave to those in need. For love was first and ever. Her heart was open to all. A faithful wife and mother. True and loyal friend. This quiet little woman. Lives in the life. That knows no end.

FIESTA FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

At the En Ka Fiesta May 21 the grubs booth will be a mecca for the younger generation. Huge bass drums, snare and cymbals, and special drums will contain grubs for the tiny children. Mrs. W. Campbell Ross, chairman of this attraction, tells us that her committee, Miss Barbara Goodhue, Mrs. Hazen Ayer, Mrs. Harold Dodge, Mrs. Theodore Elliott, Mrs. Walden Hersey and Mrs. Dana Sawyer will be dressed in bright military costumes: blue jackets, red and gold braid, red skirts and cunning. Mexican soldier uniforms. The youngsters at the Fiesta are sure to look around this exciting booth.

"The Sign of the Sombbrero" is the name of the booth. Mrs. A. Allen Kimball and Mrs. E. O'Neil will be in charge of the booth. At a sidewalk cafe they will serve you a delicious luncheon or a real Mexican meal while you sit at gay foreign tables watching your friends playing on the merry or wandering around the beautiful island Garden Shop. The menu for the day reads: sandwiches, chicken salad, fruit, cake and coffee, and for the evening: Mexican coffee, the sombrero salad, Spanish peanut cake and Pina Fria, an unusual Mexican drink. Mrs. Pride and Mrs. Kimball will be assisted by Mrs. C. F. Eberle, Mrs. W. E. O'Neil, Mrs. E. O'Neil, Mrs. E. W. Zimmerman, Mrs. P. T. Budgett, Mrs. A. T. Buntun, Mrs. E. R. Dolan, Mrs. G. R. CONCERT TO HONOR MUSIC WEEK

The first week in May is the 15th nationwide observance of National Music Week. The purpose of this celebration is to promote and stimulate the desire for a variety of activity which will increase the public's enjoyment of music.

Winchester will begin its observance of music on April 29 with a very outstanding concert on April 29 at the beginning of the week. It is the evening of familiar music to be given by three well known and active choral groups: the Winchester Chorus, the Fortnightly Glee Club and the Winchester Double Quartette. Mary Ranton Witham is the director and the accompanists are Gladys O'Donnell and Lucy L. Wilcox. Louise Allman, violinist, is the assisting artist.

Since there seems to be a decided trend back to the "Concert Hall" after years of satisfaction with radio—since the numbers offered are not only excellent but also popular—it is in appeal it is felt that residents of this town should not fail to hear this outstanding program.

LOCAL TRUCK WRECKED IN MEDFORD CRASH

A Ford truck, owned by the J. J. Fitzgerald Contracting Company, was badly wrecked Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock when it was in collision on Mystic avenue in Medford, with an International oil truck, owned by A. A. Farnsworth of Cedar road, Medford and driven by William J. Shallow of Broadway, Cambridge.

At Fitzgerald's office it was reported that the truck was stuck north on Mystic avenue when the oil truck, to avoid a collision with another machine, cut to the left of the road and into their machine. Their driver, Arthur J. Carr of 116 Sylvester avenue, was shaken up and sustained injuries to his knee.

It was at first thought that the knee was broken, but X-ray pictures proved that the knee was merely dislocated at the Winchester Hospital Carroll was able to go home.

WINCHESTER AT LEXINGTON

Winchester High School opens its 1938 baseball season Tuesday afternoon at Lexington, meeting Lexington High in a Middlesex League contest.

The locals have had a complete layoff this week, due to vacation, and may not be too sure of themselves against the Minuteboys. The latter have lost all three of their starts to date, but have had the advantage of plenty of actual competition and will be much further along than the locals in every department of the game.

Nevertheless most fans will pick Winchester because it ought to have a lot better pitching than Lexington and pitching just about pays off in schoolboy or in fact any other baseball.

Coach Lauer will pick his hurler from among the Johnsons, "Artie" and "Carlie," "Al" Diminico, Harris and Styles, Ficciello, Louis Erico, Gaiety or Ramsell will do the catching, but they will depend on this particular portfolio.

Captain "Junie" Donaghey is set to play first base with Carr on second, Kenney at short and either Murdoch or "Tony" DeToso at third, "Glen" Baisstow, Connors and either Byron or Hartlyn Horne will play the outfield.

Of these boys, the Johnsons, Diminico, Donaghey, Kenney, DeToso or "Tony" DeToso at third, "Glen" Baisstow, Connors and either Byron or Hartlyn Horne will play the outfield. Of these boys, the Johnsons, Diminico, Donaghey, Kenney, DeToso or "Tony" DeToso at third, "Glen" Baisstow, Connors and either Byron or Hartlyn Horne will play the outfield.

VALLEY—LYONS

A marriage of Winchester interest took place in St. Joseph's Church, Malden, on Easter Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Gertrude Eleanor Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Lyons of Fremont street, Malden, became the bride of Frank Henry Valley, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henry Valley of Elm street, Rev. Edward J. Sullivan, S. J., a cousin of the bride, performed the marriage ceremony which was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Lyons was attended by her sister, Miss Dorothea Lyons, and James Valley of Woburn, was his brother's best man. Ushers were Edward Lyons of Malden, brother of the bride; and Edward MacDonald of this town.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin, trimmed with Chantilly lace, and a tulle veil arranged with a wreath of orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The groom wore a blue marquisette dress with a matching tuxedo and carried pink roses.

Mr. Valley and his bride are spending their honeymoon in Washington, D. C., and Virginia. Upon their return they will make their home in Winchester at 67 Forest street.

DAYLIGHT SAVING BEGINS

New Time Schedule on Steam Railroad

Daylight saving begins Sunday, when all clocks in this State will be advanced one hour. Along with daylight saving, the train time on the railroad will be altered to conform with the change. Week-day trains for Boston will remain virtually the same, there being only two changes. Likewise two changes will be made in trains coming from Boston. Sunday trains will have one change in and one in the outward direction.

Residents using the steam trains should secure data on the new time. They can obtain convenient pocket size time tables of the following Winchester firms:

Winchester Trust Company, Winchester National Bank, E. H. Butterworth, Jeweler, E. B. Barnes & Co., Dry Goods, Everett Hambley Auto Repairs, Michael J. Queenin Taxi Service.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETY

The last regular meeting of the Young People's Society will be held at the Congregational Church parish hall on Sunday evening at 5:30 p. m. (Note the change of time).

The program will be in charge of the officers. There will be an election of new officers to serve next year for the society. There is great interest and secrecy as to who will be the new members of the executive committee board.

The Church School has recently purchased a new motion picture machine for the use of the Sunday School and the Young People's Society. We shall use this machine on Sunday as a part of our program. The picture to be shown is, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back." This is Jerome K. Jerome's famous story. Because of the length of the picture, the meeting will have to begin at 5:30 instead of the usual time.

As is the custom for the Society at the last meeting, the eighth graders are invited as our guests, for next year they will be members of the group.

DOWNS ON BOARD OF GOVERNORS

John W. Downs of 4 Dartmouth street, has been honored by election to an office in the Boston City Club. Mr. Downs was elected to serve a three year term on the club's Board of Directors at the annual election of members held recently at the City Club, 14 Somerset street, Boston.

Mr. Downs is the general counsel of the Insurance Federation of Massachusetts and was one of eight members selected to serve on the new group of board members.

LOCAL ART EXHIBITION MAY 1

Those who are to exhibit in the Exhibition of Local Art which opens May 1 in the Library Art Gallery under the auspices of the Winchester Art Association are reminded that entries must be left at the library, with Mr. Eason or with some member of the Art Association who will be there to receive them, either today, tomorrow or Monday, April 22, 23 and 25. No entries will be received after Monday.

Every effort will be made to ensure the safety of the entries, but it should be understood that they are entered positively at the owner's risk. An entry fee of $1.00, to assist in defraying the expenses of the exhibition, must be paid by exhibitors who are not members of the Winchester Art Association.

Judges for the exhibition have been announced as Miss Katherine Sturges, Elmer W. Green, Jr., and Stanley Woodward. Provision is being made for a popular vote for the best entry of the exhibit and during the month that the exhibition will run there will be an evening devoted to a friendly criticism by a competent critic.

Mrs. John Lobinger, Mrs. Frederick Norton and Mrs. Fulton Brown are serving as the Art Association's committee in charge of arrangements for the exhibition which is the first of its kind the local organization has sponsored.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE DINNER

Mr. Carleton N. Jones will be the principal speaker at the annual dinner and ladies' night of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary and the Lions Clubs, Thursday evening, April 28, next, and his topic will be "My Experiences in the Coal Fields of Pennsylvania." Mr. Jones was born and brought up in these coal fields and is fully familiar with his subject.

The other speaker will be Mr. G. Roland Carter, manager of the local theatre whose subject will be "The Motion Picture Theatre and Its Relation to Community Life." Mr. Carter is an interesting talker and we know you will be interested to hear what he has to say.

Dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock and Fred will be the entertainer. Tickets may be obtained at Henry's, McCormick's (Knights), the Star, and the Chamber of Commerce office on Common street.

We advise that you secure your tickets early.

WADE—SALTMARSH

Winchester people will be interested to learn of the marriage last week of Miss Margarette Saltmarsh of this town and Mr. Howard R. Wade of Somerville. The marriage took place in Somerville on Wednesday, April 13.

Miss Saltmarsh has been almost a lifelong resident of this town, and is a graduate of the Fortnightly at the Leese School of Domestic Arts in Cambridge.

Mr. Wade was born in Springfield, Ill., but lived 18 years in Canada. He is a graduate of the Fortnightly at the Leese School of Domestic Arts in Cambridge.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade are making their home in Somerville.

GIFT PRESENTATION

Mrs. Robert Reynolds was the recipient of a very lovely traveling bag on Wednesday afternoon, at a tea given by Mrs. Clifton Hall and Mrs. Adeline Emery at the home of Mrs. Hall on Lawrence street.

The 1937-38 board members of the Fortnightly were the guests and donors of the gift. Mrs. Robert Reynolds is a resident of the Fortnightly at the triennial session of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Kansas City in May.

Mrs. Walter Winslip entertained the group with a selection of songs. The tea table was attractively arranged with spring flowers and the pourers were Mrs. Robert Reynolds, Mrs. Thomas Barnard, Mrs. George French and Mrs. Walter Tice.

Mr. Shultis, who is the son of Newton Shultis and the late Blanche Van Bogart Shultis, formerly of Winchester, is now a student at Phillips Academy at Andover and Worcester Academy and attended Amherst College.

The wedding will take place in the early summer.

Come and enjoy an evening of familiar music.

HALL THROUGHS FOR POLICE-MEN'S BALL

Once again the "S. R. O." sign had to be dusted off Monday evening when the Annual Concert and Ball of the Winchester Police Relief Association attracted a crowd to the town hall that taxed the ancient structure to its utmost capacity. The pouring rain storm may have kept some from attending, but if so, it is fortunate for the perspiring ushers would have found it difficult to have placed any more than those present. When the Selectmen their ladies and their clerk were ushered to reserved seats at the front of the hall at 8 o'clock there were few empty places to be seen.

Phil Marshall's Orchestra played while the audience was being seated and also played for the show, adding considerably to the effectiveness of the evening. The hall was attractively decorated with bunting and the members of the Police force in their correct tuxedos added a festive note.

The vaudeville show was one of the best seen in the town hall for some years and among the best the Police have sponsored. Florence Fleming and her big acrobatic double duty as a pleasing entertainer and mistress of ceremonies holding her own in by-play with such of the performers as sought to "wise crack" at her expense.

George Watt, a colored song and dance man, got the ball away to a flying start with an excellent bit of tap and eccentric dancing, interspersing the work of his educated feet with antics which the crowd found amusing.

Following him came the Roberts sisters, three little maids in blue, who proved among the most versatile entertainers of the evening. Pleasing singers, clever instrumentalists and dancers, they finally brought down the house with a combination dancing-tumbling act that was as good as it was new.

Elliott and Charlie proved that the old ventriloquist and his dummy are still popular when their act is well done, spontaneous laughter being provoked by the antics of Charlie's quips. Potas and Folsom, the long and short of it, proved tops as comedians and also high grade tumblers, their mock adagio dancing and general clowning, in fact, with the mistress of ceremonies getting them the nod as the most popular act of the evening.

Wee Willie Dee had a novel act of legerdemain and highly mystified his audience as he took lightly of cigarette after cigarette out of the air. When he finally snatched a lighted briar-root pipe from the ether and produced an honest-to-goodness rat he proved to be a breathless finish a high grade act.

Morton and Russell, a dame and a gob, were a hilarious finale. Miss Morton proving an excellent foil for the clowning of her husband. The latter's stuttering monologue convulsed the audience.

Daniel Healey, leading American tenor who came over from New York for the show, was taken suddenly ill while awaiting his turn back stage and was unable to sing. He did go to the microphone and express his regrets, leaving the hall soon after.

K. M. White of the White Entertainment Bureau of Boston was on hand to personally supervise the performance.

Following the entertainment, the hall was cleared by Custodian "Ed" Callahan and his assistants, dancing being enjoyed until 1 o'clock Tuesday morning. It wasn't until midnight was approaching that the hall was clear enough to permit the real dance to "start their stuff" but the air seemed to be enjoying themselves and no untoward event occurred to mar the evening.

Patrolman Archie T. O'Connell, as president of the Police Association, in general charge of arrangements with Patrolman James P. Donaghey in charge of the entertainment. Chief William H. Rogers was floor marshal, with Lieut. Edward O'Connell as general floor marshal, Patrolman Donaghey, floor director; Sergts. Thomas F. Cassidy and Charles J. Harold, assistant directors; and Sergt. Joseph Derro, chief of aids.

Aids were Patrolmen John J. Dolan, Winthrop Palmer, John E. Harmon, Clarence Dunbury, John H. Boyle, James E. Farrell, James F. Hogan, John J. Murray, James F. Noonan, Joseph L. Quigley, William F. Cassidy, John J. Regan and D. Irving Reardon. Lieut. John H. Harold, retired, was honorary aid.

NEW MARKERS

Those who have visited the Selectmen's office this week have admired the handsome new mahogany desk and the new carpeting of the Board and the Selectmen's clerk.

The markers are the gift of Park Commissioner George T. Davidson and were made at the Recreation Center on Mt. Vernon street by the superior work of the selectmen's carpenter and finisher of wood.

Mrs. Agnes Saunders, assistant supervisor at the Center, secured the heavy East Indian mahogany through a friend, and the markers were milled out by Mr. Ellsworth Howard at Milton.

Three sided and more than a foot in length, the markers were then carved with the names of the Board and their clerk, after which they were hand rubbed to a beautiful finish. This is the sort of work Mr. Moody is teaching the boys at the recreation center and it goes without saying that he has had the real boosters in the Board of Selectmen.

CHANGING OF THE GUARD

In France the latest government has packed its grip and out has went. It doesn't take much over there to give a Deputy the air. The Premier is in and out like boxes at a title bout. I can't see how they earn their pay, resigning every other day.

The men of Fells Plumbing & Heating Co., 609 Main St., have rightfully earned their reputation for reliability. Whether they do a small repair job or a complete modernization job you can expect prompt service, expert workmanship and the use of quality, durable materials. Let them give you an estimate on the plumbing work needed in your kitchen and bathroom.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

Girl Scouts—Community Asset

Early in 1936, when the floods that raged through the eastern states were carrying desolation and disaster into nearly all the riverside cities and towns, the burden of the work that was suddenly put upon the normal relief agencies was overpowering. Citizens of all communities volunteered for whatever jobs most needed doing, in an effort to minimize as much as possible the aftermath of the catastrophe.

In Binghamton, N. Y., in Hartford, Conn., in Allentown, Penn., and in many other communities, special groups of Girl Scouts were among the first to offer their services.

Girls who had been trained in first aid and community service threw their efforts into assisting district nurses and local Red Cross workers, caring for children, cooking for families, delivering supplies, assisting in all the myriad tasks that confront a city which is unorganized for the relief of sudden widespread distress.

Those girls did their communities a genuine service. But there are many other scouts, whose activities are carried on under less spectacular conditions, who serve their communities just as loyally. There are troops who do regular work with district nurses, soap kitchens and community relief agencies. There are troops that have adopted families, and others that serve breakfasts to underweight children in their schools. Girl Scouts have planted thousands of trees in community parks or waste areas. They have collected and repaired clothes for the unemployed, they have run thrift shops which not only financed the troops, but became useful redistribution points for community properties.

The variety of the work is important, because it indicates the extent to which the Girl Scouts are becoming conscientious members of the community at large. The sincerity, care and faithfulness with which the Girl Scouts have carried out all these varied projects is even more important. The continued co-operation with the community of girls of Girl Scout age is a long term investment for both the girls and the community. Girls whose interest in civic affairs is awakened through real contact with them, will grow up with a clearer knowledge of, and sympathy with, the problems of the communities in which they themselves live. And the communities of tomorrow will need such women and will benefit by their presence.

This year the Girl Scouts are celebrating their 25th birthday. During these years Girl Scout leaders everywhere have increasingly applied the programs and ideals of the scouts to the daily environments and lives of the girls. With the assistance and guidance of local agencies they hope and expect to continue to bring the Girl Scout programs of health, kindness, co-operation, and love of the outdoors, into the progressive activities of their communities. [Copied from the Savannah Morning News.]

Troop 3 under the leadership of Miss Anita Wilson and Miss Margaret Millican held an informal reception and gave a very pretty candle-light "After Dinner Coffee" in the Unitarian Church last Thursday evening to which Council members, Captains, Advisory Board and Mothers were invited guests.

There are 23 junior and senior girls in this troop, two girls pouring at each attractive table during the evening.

Mrs. Emerson Priest of Euclid avenue recently won second place in the Newton table tennis club annual women's tournament. In the playoffs were Mrs. Ernest Gross and Mrs. Emerson Priest, Mrs. C. Cole and Mrs. A. Pistorino and Miss June Eaton, all of this town.

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

Miss Wallace's sixth grade in the Wyman School gave a program Monday, April 4 to close their study about the Middle Ages. They invited Mr. Quinn, Miss Lewis and Miss Rix and her class. A few children gave reports concerning inventions and discoveries which changed the life of the people during this time.

The entire class sang a song named "Robin Hood." Poems about Knight-hood and chivalry were read. There were several scenes made using packing boxes as a stage. Some of the scenes were the exterior and interior of a castle, jousting, monks in a monastery, serfs tilling the fields, and a modern living room to show the changes in heating and lighting and in furniture. The chairman of each group told briefly about the scenes.

SCENE FROM "LIBEL"

WINCHESTER UNITARIAN PLAYERS TO PRODUCE "LIBEL" APRIL 29 AND 30

Above appear Thomas Foxley, K. C., (left) and Sir Wilfred Kelling, K. C., two of the important characters in "Libel." Edward Wool's gripping drama which is having its first amateur performance hereabouts by the Winchester Unitarian Players on Friday and Saturday evenings, April 29 and 30. In the local production Thomas Foxley (portrayed above by Wilfred Lawson) is played by John Burchard, Gerald V. Hills is playing Sir Wilfred (the role portrayed in the cut by Ernest Lawford). Both Mr. Lawford and Mr. Lawson were members of the cast in the Manhattan production of "Libel" in 1936.

Sir Wilfred is a gentleman but owes much of his legal eminence and prospects to a hardly less considerable capacity for intrigue. Of the same class he has been briefed by Sir Mark Loddon to prosecute the latter's libel action against the "Daily Gazette." Mr. Hills, who plays Sir Wilfred, has appeared frequently in amateur plays in Winchester with the Legion, the Group Theatre, the Fortnightly and the Unitarian Players and can number among his outstanding successes the roles of Mason in "Journey's End," Christopher Trent in "The Man Who Stayed Home," Theodore Finley in "The Three Wise Men," Lord Grenham in "Aren't We All?" and James Fraser in "The First Mrs. Fraser."

Thomas Foxley, counsel for "The Daily Gazette" has fought his way to an enviable forensic position in the face of sustained professional prejudice against his origin and methods.

Mr. Burchard, who assumes the role here, has taken active part in local dramatics with The Group Theatre for whom he produced and designed the scenery for "Porgy and Bess," the Parish Players for whom he has played comedy parts, the Legion in their productions of "Hawk Island" and "Spread Eagle" and the Unitarian Players with whom he made his first local appearance as Nick Potter in "Holiday" and his most successful appearance as the District Attorney in "The Bellamy Trial," a role to which that of Thomas Foxley is an essential English counterpart.

WINCHESTER HOSTESS PROMISES "A PENNY FOR YOUR THOUGHTS"

On Friday, April 29, a Winchester hostess is giving a party which will make good the old jesting offer, "A penny for your thoughts." In fact, she is hoping that even one single thought by each guest will be worth more than a penny. And that thought can be taken before coming to the party so no one need stay away for fear that all her thoughts will desert her at a dramatic moment when it is demanded that she produce a penny-worth of thinking.

The hostess will be Mrs. C. F. Perkins of 12 Yale street who from 8 to 5 April 29, will entertain at a Bundle Tea, for the benefit of the Penny Wise Thrift Shop.

COLLEGE CLUB ART GROUP

On Friday morning, April 15, the College Club Art Group gathered for its final program at the Robert C. Vose Galleries, 550 Boylston street in Boston. Although the announced subject was "American Landscape," Mr. Vose exhibited and discussed not only numerous landscapes, but other priceless treasures of his private collection which has been accumulating through three generations. Not on the program, but very much appreciated by the group was the appearance of Mr. Eben F. Comins, portrait painter, who is exhibiting his work at the Vose Galleries until May 7. Mr. Comins consented to tell some of his experiences and interesting anecdotes about his famous sitters, including several Supreme Court Justices and Vice President Garner.

Many of the group visited other galleries in the vicinity of Copley Square where there are a number of interesting spring exhibitions. Altogether, a most worthwhile morning to bring to a close the course on American Art which the College Club has sponsored this year. All who have had the privilege of attending are agreed that it has been one of the most satisfying courses ever offered by the College Club and hope that next year the program may be equally good. All who have contributed their efforts have been most generous and the continued large attendance has given the best evidence of the appreciation of their excellence by the whole group.

Current Exhibitions of American Art. Artists' Guild, 162 Newbury street. Paintings by Alfred T. Hibbard, April 30. Copley Society, 236 Commonwealth avenue. MRS. LORA A. UNDERHILL

Mrs. Lora A. Underhill passed away at her home, 25 Faneuil Street, Brighton, April 18, 1938, in her 90th year. She was the widow of Charles W. Underhill and daughter of the late James A. and Nancy D. Woodbury, formerly of Winchester. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. George E. Foster and Mrs. Frank M. Peck; also nine grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Underhill was a genealogist of considerable note and was engaged in genealogical research work for many years.

SMITH—McNAMARA

The marriage of Miss Eleanor Louise McNamara, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. McNamara of Mount Pleasant, Burlington, to Harold Royal Smith, son of Mrs. Charlie O. Smith of Pickering street and the late Mr. Smith, took place at 4:30 on Easter Sunday afternoon in St. Charles Church, Woburn, with Rev. Fr. Francis Twoomey officiating.

Miss McNamara was attended by her sister, Miss Claire McNamara of Burlington, and James Norbert Smith of Medford, was his brother's best man. Ushers were John J. McNamara, Jr. of Burlington, brother of the bride and the bridegroom's brother, Earle Smith of Newton.

The bride wore a gown of white satin with a net veil arranged with orange blossoms and instead of the conventional bouquet, carried a white missal with white ribbons and valley lilies. Her attendant wore a peach "re" dress, trimmed with aussyline de sole, and a hat and slippers of aqua. Her flowers were tallismen roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mrs. McNamara and Mrs. Smith, assisting in receiving, Mr. Smith and his bride are spending their honeymoon in New York City and upon their return, will make their home at 627 Main street, Woburn.

The bride is a graduate of the Burlington Union School and of Lexington High School, class of 1932. Mr. Smith, who is associated with Richardson's Market, is a graduate of Winchester High School.

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Low of Woburn were also present from an extended trip to Mexico.

DAM SHOULD NOT BE LOWERED

To the Editor of the Star:

I was very much disappointed to find the Winchester Town Meeting voted authority to the Park Board to lower the crest of the Mill Pond Dam near Main street by taking off one foot. Since the vote was taken I have heard considerable criticism by the citizens of Winchester of the action of the Town Meeting.

It seems to me that the Park Board has been allowed to have too free a hand in the control and improvement of the Aberjona River. They have already taken the water from the Mill Pond through three different winters and have exposed the concrete in the dam to thawing and freezing, which is very detrimental to concrete and it is remarkable that the dam stands at the present time. After lowering the water they have put in gangs of men and, in handling the mud from the pond, have allowed thousands of yards to lodge in the lower part of the river and Mystic Lake for which the State is now being asked to contribute $150,000 for disposal.

On investigation I find that the Town Engineer has not been consulted regarding the expediency of this move, nor can I find where any other authority on construction has been consulted. I also find that the bridge constructed by the Park Board over the River on Railroad avenue has settled about 18 inches and, if the water level of the stream is lowered another foot, it will undoubtedly contribute to further settlement of the bridge and incidentally of the playground.

The Town maintains a capable engineering department at the service of all other departments of the Town and if, in the opinion of the Park Board, the Town Engineer was not considered competent to pass upon this proposed move, then it should be shown that they consulted other, and presumably more competent, authority. Failing in this, the Park Board, in my opinion, again demonstrates its own incapacity.

Yours respectfully,
George M. Bryne

YOUNG PEOPLE OF EPIPHANY ACTIVE IN EASTER ACTIVITIES

These members of the Fireside Group assisted the Altar Guild in decorating the Church of the Epiphany for the festival service of Easter: Lee Clark, Harry Dodge, Bessie Fogz, Nancy Kelley, Elizabeth Nichols, Mildred Rogers, Bernice Taber, Meredith Wagner and Nancy Wyman. They helped also in arranging the small blooming plants that were to be given to each member of the Church School at the final service of Easter Day, the festival of carols at 4 o'clock. The characteristic lilies of Easter dominated the chancel picture, but the vivid color of the geraniums for the school, massed at the side of the chancel arch, glowed like a tapestry hanging.

After the final service potted lilies were distributed by the same committee to members of Epiphany parish who are ill. The Church School sent a special message of thankful remembrance with the lily which went to Deaconess Helen P. Lane, who for years was the head of religious education in the parish until ill health compelled her resignation.

A group of boys from the young people's group assisted the vestry as ushers at all the Easter services. They were Leslie Curtis, William Ford, John Gleason, Leonard Sherman and Walter Taber.

On this afternoon the dramatic group under the direction of Mrs. Anita McFarland will present the second edition of Guild News. The first edition was published in 1933, so there is five years news to be presented this year. The News is in magazine form and includes a cast of over 40 members and their children. There is a clever cover design, editorial page, children's page, fiction, bachelor's dream and semi-minstrel show.

Don't forget to make your reservations early for the pop concert Saturday, May 14.

PAGEANT

The pageant, "The Children's Vision" put on by the Second Congregational Church last Sunday evening, was one of the most beautiful and artistic ever put on in any church. This was the verdict of each and every one who was fortunate enough to be present at its presentation.

The chancel and pinnacles were banked with evergreen trees and the costumes were rich and careful to detail. The lighting effects could not be improved upon. The music of the angelic choir hidden behind the "blind" of evergreens was inspiring.

Lack of space forbids that we go into detail as we would like to do, but the entire effect and rendition was spiritual and inspiring, and showed the result of conscientious work and rehearsals by all those taking part.

The pageant was given under the efficient direction of Mrs. Eibel Goodwin, and the glorious lighting effects were arranged and handled by Mr. Harry Goodwin.

TOWNSEND MASS MEETING

Capt. Russell R. Hand, a member of the Townsend Legislative Committee in Washington, D. C. will be the speaker at a mass meeting to be held in the Arlington Town Hall, Tuesday, April 26 at 8 o'clock.

An excellent musical program has been prepared. The public is cordially invited to attend. Admission free.

EXHIBITION BY CATHERINE RICHARDSON AT LIBRARY GALLERY

Those who enjoy portraiture and pictures of dogs will find the current exhibition by Catherine Richardson at the Library Art Gallery of more than passing interest. The Winchester Art Association is sponsoring this group of pictures by Miss Richardson, who studied under Philip Hale, both in the Museum School and in his studio, subsequently spending two years abroad copying pictures in museums and working in various studios. She worked in the studio of Jeanniot, who was the only pupil Degas ever had, and used the palette that belonged to and was used by Degas.

Miss Richardson's first exhibition was in Boston in 1923 and she has given many succeeding exhibitions in that city, also exhibiting in the New York Central Art Gallery.

Recently she has been doing portraits of dogs exclusively and among those being shown here is a fine study of George West's prize greyhound, considered so beautiful a dog that when it dies it will be stuffed and sent to Yale as the most perfect specimen of its kind.

This picture is entitled "Duke of Wales" and the way in which it got its name is interesting. When Edward, Duke of Windsor, visited this country as Prince of Wales, he went to the kennels of Mr. West and noticing that the dogs all wore the kennel initials, "D. W.," on their collars, asked that a dog be named after him, "David Windsor." This was done, but when it was found that there was listed another dog called "David Windsor" the name was changed to "Duke of Wales" and as such the handsome animal is now known.

Besides "Duke of Wales," Miss Richardson is showing "Cocoa," a cocker spaniel, "Patsy," a dachshund, "Preston," a Gordon setter, and others. Among the subjects of her adult portraiture are "Robert Hilyer," "Girl in White," "Sykes" and "Mrs. Nathaniel Whittier." The portrait of "Isabella Gardner" is that of a young girl and there are several portraits of children, including members of the Elliott and Shipley families.

The exhibition opened this week and continues until May 1. The public is cordially invited to see and enjoy it.

MAYOR KANE VISITS LIONS!

The Winchester Lions Club was honored by the presence of His Honor, The Mayor of Woburn, William E. Kane last Monday evening at the Calumet Club with about 40 present. After dinner President "Bob" Emery introduced Frank Hurley our first vice president as toastmaster of the evening who outlined the duties and difficulties of the present day executive then presented Mr. Kane.

The Mayor of Woburn, a quiet type of man with a keen eye impressed the gathering with his sincerity and forcefulness of purpose as he exposed his problems to bring our neighboring city out of the "red." He claimed he did not really seek the office and that his platform was virtually Republican although he himself is a Democrat. Evidently his promise to clean out all deadwood, reduce operating expenses and enforce rigid economy to lower the exceptionally high tax rate applied to the people.

His budget and recommendations are evidently blocked by the City Council and various departments which forces him to put the questions to the voters by a plebiscite to take place shortly. In politics one does not see their toes stepped on or those of their relatives or friends, if involved, so oft times no action is the result. The Mayor has a tendency of debt to face accruing from previous borrowings as a result of poor tax collection and wastage of money.

Many more drastic changes too numerous to mention are on his ticker and we sincerely hope that he will prove to be the man of the hour.

SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. Mary Penta of 336 Washington street was pleasantly surprised last Tuesday night when she returned home after visiting friends, and found another very large group of friends waiting for her to help her celebrate her 48th birthday. The party which was a complete surprise to Mrs. Penta was given by her daughters, and included about 40 guests from Winchester, Woburn and Boston. Mrs. Penta was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and after expressing her thanks, a collation was served and a social hour enjoyed.

W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Nellie C. Burger, Recording Secretary of the National W. C. T. U., has written the following appeal to Christian women.

What Does the W. C. T. U. Offer the Christian Woman?

In the beginning of our 1938 national membership campaign it is well to consider what the W. C. T. U. offers the Christian woman in exchange for her membership and loyalty.

She pays her dues, yes. She adds one to our membership, yes.

She assists in the activity of the local union, yes.

But what does she receive in return?

She hears and heeds the deep heart throb of humanity.

The W. C. T. U. brings her closer to its real need and gives her an opportunity for definite effort to answer that need.

The W. C. T. U. gives her fellowship with all churches and faiths. Sectarian boundaries disappear and the fruitful association of other Christian women, of every faith, of every clime, is a wonderful experience in life. It enriches her soul and fills her with the satisfaction of unified, consecrated Christian endeavor.

The W. C. T. U. is an opportunity for service of a very definite nature. True, all churches believe in temperance and have some education along this line, but the W. C. T. U. is a "clearing house" for all churches. It offers a splendidly outlined program for applied Christian service in the field of temperance. The liquor traffic recognizes the W. C. T. U. as a voice of the church and is dismayed that this voice is becoming increasingly articulate. The activity of the W. C. T. U. is a banner which is scanned by the liquor forces and which "fills them with alarm."

The W. C. T. U. broadens the horizon of the Christian woman to be a part of a great, organized world movement. Its missionaries twined the white ribbon around the world, and this wrought a bond of unity and understanding among the nations.

The W. C. T. U. gives the Christian woman an opportunity to count her blessings and in sheer thankfulness to pass along to others, less happily situated, the joys of her life. To feel that the whole world is a little better, a little more home-like and safer through her individual effort is recompense enough.

Will you, dear Christian friend, avail yourself of this opportunity for self-culture and Christian understanding?

We invite you today.

We cordially welcome you.

We extend to you the hand of sisterly greeting.

Will you join the W. C. T. U. in honor of the heroic leadership of Frances E. Willard?

Will you?

FLORENCE CRITTENTON BRIDGE

A great deal of interest is being shown around town in the annual luncheon bazaar of the Florence Crittenton League which is being staged this year at the parish house of the Unitarian Church on Wednesday, April 27 at 1.15 p. m.

Mrs. Harold B. Richmond of Swan road, the capable chairman in charge of arrangements, feels the success of the party is already assured and urges all interested who have not made reservations to do so as soon as possible in order that none shall be disappointed.

Assisting Mrs. Richmond on the committee are Mrs. Francis E. Booth in charge of tickets, Mrs. Fred Ritchie, Mrs. Wilbur Kinsley, Mrs. Albert Crockett, Mrs. Harold Bates, Mrs. Raymond Dexter, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Mrs. Roland Fletcher, Mrs. Charles Hart and Mrs. Vincent Clarke.

Mrs. Fred Aseltine is in charge of the sale of home made food which is being donated by the members.

Mrs. and Mrs. L. C. Young of 59 Mystic Valley Parkway spent the past week-end at their summer home in Wellfleet on Cape Cod.

WINCHESTER DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION

Spring, temperamental season that it is, infected the annual meeting of the District Nursing Association with a peculiar malady. Symptoms: restlessness, excitability and finally fainting. No temperatures or pulse readings were taken and the patients finally recovered enough to take the regular "afternoon tea" diet. There were evidences of the infection as soon as members gathered in the game room of Mrs. Farnsworth's delightful home. As the afternoon wore on the excitement and the warmth increased. Someone opened a window. A gale swept the room. For a little while it looked as if the Winchester District Nursing Association were playing "Going to Jerusalem." When everybody had changed chairs with everybody else the speaker picked up his whopping cough where he had left it and went from there. There was much interest in the exhibit of prize posters. Guests from the Cambridge Visiting Nurse Association were so impressed with the high talent shown and the wide appeal of the subjects that they want to borrow several of the posters. They plan to conduct a similar contest in Cambridge and want our posters for inspiration!

Mrs. Schneider, the president, called the meeting to order and gave a brief and stimulating outline of topics of interest in public health work. The secretary, Mrs. Spencer, gave a comprehensive report of the activities of the association for the year. Beside nursing is, of course, the chief function of the organization but it has been alert this year, as always, to fill and fulfill its obligations to the community. This it does in several ways: by studying services and work done in other communities, with the idea of adapting them when possible; by educational work for the Board and in the town; by promoting new, but tried methods of Public health work. The gratitude of the Board was expressed to all individuals and organizations who have helped in making this a successful year.

Mrs. Pond, the treasurer, amplified her report, making it not a group of figures but a picture of the financial position of the Association.

Four thousand calls have been made by the nurses this year, Mrs. Gormley reported. That means that all through the year, in all kinds of weather the nurses have been going into your home and mine and our neighbors everywhere to bring help and relief. Mrs. Gormley spoke feelingly of the chronic patients who are visited year after year and who need these visitors for the cheer they bring as well as for the help.

Mrs. Gormley completes 20 years of service this year and is celebrating by going to England. The Board gave a party in her honor on Friday the 15th at the home of Mrs. Paul Elliott.

Reports of the various committees followed. The ballot for the coming year was presented by Mrs. William Cusack. The following Board of Directors was elected:

President—Mrs. Ben R. Schneider

Vice President—Miss Adelaide Homer

Secretary—Mrs. Henry S. Sweeney

Treasurer—Mrs. Gardner D. Pond

Chairman—Mrs. J. Warren Shawmaker

Charles E. Young, Mrs. James S. Sloumen, Mrs. Errol P. Horner

Nursing Committee

Chairman—William A. Kuefer, Mrs. Richard Parkhurst, Mrs. Clarence G. McDevitt, Jr.

Publicity Committee

Chairman—Mrs. Paul R. Elliott, Mrs. Prescott R. Taylor, Mrs. E. Craig Greiner

Members Committee

Chairman—Mrs. Colver P. Dyer, Education, Mrs. Malcolm S. Nichols, Mrs. Ronald Bradlee, Mrs. Vincent P. Pond, Mrs. Ralph Jope

Nominating Committee

Chairman—Mrs. Paul R. Elliott, Mrs. Joseph Worthen, Mrs. Thomas M. Richter, Jr.

Dr. Richard Clarke, who introduced the speaker, called attention to the fact that methods of preventing and treating communicable diseases are continually changing and that Dr. Eley as Associate Director of Communicable Diseases at the Children's Hospital could speak from a vast store of experience.

Dr. Richard Cannon Eley spoke first about scarlet fever. It is primarily a children's disease, rarely found in babies under 6 months. Value of the Dick test is questioned though it is now being tried on a large scale, over a ten year period in Natick and Wellesley. Disease does not spread easily but requires a good contact. Skin tests should be made before the anti-toxin is used or terrific reactions may result. Convalescent serum, occasionally used, is difficult to get. Diphtheria is well under control in all figures but a picture of the financial position of the Association.

Measles are very serious in children under three; 50 per cent have died by the age of five. It may be prevented or modified after exposure. In an average case it is perhaps wiser to let the infection run and have a modified case with subsequent immunization.

It is interesting to note that Massachusetts is the only state in the Union where accepted serums and vaccines are available free.

Whooping cough is the only communicable disease to which very young babies have no immunity. Fresh vaccine may help a child but it must be used four months before exposure. There are no skin tests which will decide the question of immunity.

Eighty per cent or more of the population are immune to infantile paralysis either naturally or because they have had the disease in a mild form with no resultant paralysis. There are no acceptable vaccines available and none have been used in the Children's Hospital for three years. Wonderful work is being done in the treatments of patients after paralysis has taken place. Dr. Eley showed pictures of tests and treatments during the early stages.

Mr. Glen H. Browning of 7 Appleachon road has returned to his home from New York.

EPHANY WOMEN PRESENT UNITED THANK OFFERING

Tuesday, May 3, at 10:30, women of the Church of the Epiphany will come together at a special service, at which they will collect and present their semi-annual thank offering.

For 51 years these united thank offerings have been received and used in the Episcopal Church. They spring from an old and deep impulse in human nature. When one's ship came safely home after great perils, one gave thanks, and one sent a gift to the men who, old and poor, lived by the thoughtful generosity of other people, younger or more fortunate. Or when happiness had come in full measure, when a son came home safe from war, when a king was crowned or a young lord rode home from his wedding, he turned a thankful thought into a gift for others. A Boston woman, Mrs. Richard Soule, 50 years ago saw the spiritual significance to women of forming the habit of grateful thoughts and of turning each of such thoughts into a deed. The reminder which women began to use was a blue box. It has become widely known. It stands on hearth and desk in Boston. It sits on a shelf in Montana kitchens. It reminds women on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday of the words heard and said on every Sunday, "for it is Thou only, that makest us to dwell in safety."

It serves equally well those who know plenty and those who know dearth. When thankfulness abounds but money is lacking, women still find ways of turning each thought into a deed. There are ways of blue box accounting that work to send help to those in need when nickels and even pennies are few and far between. Twice each year these offerings are collected. They go to open up and support mission work near and far—"to Hindu villages, to Igorote hills, to Indian reservations, Africa, kralis, to isolated farms in Maine and to ranches in the Southwest; to the children whom none have blessed, to the famished whom none have fed, to the sick whom none have visited, to the fallen whom none have comforted."

The thank offering is teaching women to give. When the first offering was taken, at Chicago in 1886, 500 women, meeting together, gave less than $100. In 1889 the "Thank Offering" sent a missionary to Japan and built a chapel in Anvik, Alaska. Now it supports 151 women missionaries and has built schools and hospitals at home and abroad. The thank offering in the Parish of the Epiphany is in charge of the parish treasurer, Mrs. Clifford Towner. The diocesan chairman of the United Thank Offering, Miss Josephine Baker, will be present at the Winchester service.

SURPRISE PARTY

Mr. Edward P. "Mack" McKenzie of Hemingway street was pleasantly surprised last Saturday evening when he was tendered a birthday party at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph P. McKay, 23 Clinton street, Woburn. Mrs. McKay and her daughter, Mrs. Anthony Lucchi, were joint hostesses for the affair, at which the feature event was the receipt of telephoned congratulations from Mr. McKenzie's son, John, in Banes, Cuba. Mayor William E. Kane of Woburn presented "Mack" with a purse of money in a suitably inscribed billfold, the gift of those present, extending it with the wish that all might attend the recipient's hundredth birthday festivities. Refreshments were served and an entertainment enjoyed.

SERVICE CLUB MET

The monthly meeting of the Past Noble Grand Service Club was held Tuesday evening at the home of Sister Ella Good on Franklin avenue in Medford. After the business session there was an entertainment by "Scrap" and Tony, followed by motion pictures taken by Sister Ruth Good on her recent trip to Ireland. Delicious refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Sister Good is showing her pictures again on May 31 at 8:30 at the home of Sister Ethel Horn on Lebanon street.

EN KA GALA NIGHT AT WINCHESTER THEATRE

Wednesday evening, May 11, at the Winchester Theatre, will be "En Ka Night." The two feature films will be "Gold Is Where You Find It" and "I Met My Love Again." Members and all interested persons are most cordially urged to be present at this gala occasion. A special trailer, showing pictures of previous En Ka Street Fairs will be a feature of the program. A number of girls, in costume, will be there to tell you of the coming Street Fair, a "Tropical Fiesta" on the Town Hall grounds, Saturday, May 21.

This special community evening is dedicated to the great number of members, husbands, merchants and workers, who are giving so generously of their time and interest, assisting in the preparations for the Fair. It is being announced as an unusually good time and several dinner parties, it is reported, have been arranged.

Call the Theatre box office for your seat reservations in this enterprising group at their theatre party and hear about the plans for the "Fiesta," the proceeds of which are used for En Ka Winchester charities, that include, this year, the Winchester District Nursing Association, the Community Centre, the local Hospital and our Home for Aged.

WEEK-END FIRES

Last week-end's activity for the Fire Department commenced at 2:15 Friday afternoon when Box 54 came in for a fire at the home of Mr. Irving E. Jennings, 2 Palmer street. The Fire apparatus was held up by a train on the crossing in the center and when the firemen arrived at the Jennings home they found the house full of smoke from a rather brisk fire in the basement. Three lines of hose were laid and the men were busy for nearly two hours before the "all out" was sounded. The fire was limited to the cellar, and was thought to have started by spontaneous combustion in some trunks of personal effects stored there. Several of the floor timbers were charred and the smoke damage throughout the house was extensive. Estimated damage figures ran from $700 to $1000.

In addition to this fire the department was called at 2 o'clock to put out a grass fire on Cemetery land at the rear of Middlesex street, and at 2:30 there was another grass fire on Ardley road.

Saturday morning at 11:10 there was a grass fire on Chesterford terrace, and at 12:25 a boys' camp fire set fire to brush off Agawam road. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon there was another brush fire off South Border road at the Medford line.

NATIONAL AIR MAIL WEEK

On May 15, the Post Office Department will celebrate the 20th anniversary of the inauguration of the United States Air Mail Service and will observe National Air Mail Week, May 15 to May 21, inclusive.

The purpose of National Air Mail Week is to acquaint the American public with the growth of aviation and more especially the benefits derived from use of the Air Mail Service, which has grown from the 218 mile single route established by the Post Office Department between Washington and New York on May 15, 1918, to a comprehensive nationwide system, consisting of some 32,000 routes and with almost 65,000,000 annual flown miles.

Air Mail travels three to four times faster than ordinary surface mail, crosses the continent overnight, and costs only three cents more than ordinary postage.

A special cachet (rubber stamp impression) will be placed on all Air Mail posted at this office during National Air Mail Week at the request of the sender. This cachet is circular in design, with "National Air Mail Week" appearing in the outer circle and embracing the seal of the Town of Winchester, under which is the word "England." A beautiful New England Town, Winchester, Mass.

As a special local feature of National Air Mail Week an amphibian will take off from Hoven Pond, Woburn, on May 19, and will fly all Air Mail posted in Winchester and Woburn on that date to the East Boston airport for further dispatch.

All those interested in the development of baseball among the young men of the town are reminded of the whist which the Winchester Cubs are sponsoring next Wednesday evening, May 4, at 8 o'clock in Knights of Columbus Hall over Randall's on Mt. Vernon street.

"Paysan" Marrone, manager of the Cubs, announces the proceeds from the whist will go toward defraying the expenses of the team's coming baseball season.

For several years now the Winchester Cubs have had a team on the diamond during the spring and summer, giving town boys a chance to play competitive ball and generally making a very creditable record.

Every effort has been made to ensure those attending the whist a good time, and a number of prizes will be awarded. Why not help the Cubs help local baseball.

FISHING HEREABOUTS!

With the fishing season on, it might be interesting to residents to know about the possibilities here in town. Winter Pond has been stocked with black bass, pickerel, perch and horn pout and the fishing there is good. Wedge Pond has also been stocked with the same type of fish as Winter Pond, but fishing is only fair. Due to the number of minnows which the fish feed, both these ponds unfortunately have large numbers of carp in them. These are not only valueless fish, hard to catch, etc., but they eat the eggs of other fish. Both ponds are full of fish called "kibbies or pumpkinseed." These fish feed largely on the eggs and larvae of mosquitoes.

Mystic Lake during the last few years has been stocked with black bass, calico bass, trout, white perch, yellow perch, pickerel and salmon. How many survived the deluge of sewage last year is a question. Some did because they have been seen this spring. It is said they lived by remaining in the many springs at the bottom of the lake or else going into the brooks which run into it. Some fine catches of bass, pickerel and perch have been made during the last few years. A good place to fish is either in the narrows in front of the Winchester Boat Club or else from out in the rear of the Langley estate.

Long Pond is an excellent place to catch horn pout although they run rather small. Herrick's Pond has now been drained but many fine catches have been made there in years past. The pond in the woods above the Winchester Country Club used to have an English fish in it called roach but this went dry a few summers ago and all the fish died. The Pond off Ridge street owned by the Smith family is now posted as private but there used to be good fishing there and we hear there still is. The three reservoirs are said by those who know and don't get caught to be as good fishing as there is in the whole nation.

Horn Pond in Woburn is excellent fishing and it has been stocked by the State this year with trout. It also contains pickerel, bass, perch and horn pout. Whittemore Brook in Medford still has a few trout but the brook which runs from the bank of our South Reservoir also has trout. The brook which runs through the Country Club has trout but this is private and fishing forbidden. Trout have been caught in the brook which runs north from the North Reservoir. Our Aberjona River seems to be bare of fish this year due to sewer troubles last year. The Shaker Glen brook in Woburn which runs into Horn Pond has many trout but they are hard to catch perhaps due to abundant feed. Fish have been caught in the Woburn Reservoir on the top of Horn Pond Mountain. The either came there by having the eggs pumped up there in the water or else brought there on wild ducks wings.

The only fish on which the law is off now are trout and perch but it goes off on the others soon. There is good fishing right here in town but watch out and have your license with you as the game warden makes frequent trips around.

Mothers' Day Cards. You will find a card to please you in the assortment at the Star Office.

WINCHESTER WINS OPENER

Johnson Hurts and Bats to 7-0 Victory Over Lexington

Winchester High got away to a good start for its baseball season at Lexington Tuesday afternoon, winning its Middlesex League match from Lexington High, 7-0.

Tall "Artie" Johnson, veteran southpaw, pretty much conducted the local to their victory, limiting the Minutemen to a pair of hits while fanning 18 and issuing but a single free ticket. On the offensive Johnson clouted out a hefty homer for the longest blow of the afternoon while "Clem" Bairstow and "Junior" Donaghy, after his insertion in the game, drove out doubles.

Donaghy gave his hurler good support, and Lexington never really threatened. Hartly Horie and Louis Ericke each got two hits out of three times up. The summary:

JUNIOR FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The last regular meeting of the Junior Fortnightly, for this season, was held at Fortnightly Hall on Monday evening, Miss Eleanor Allen, presiding.

Mrs. Reginald Robinson, Junior Advisor of the Fortnightly, showed several reels of a movie taken by her of a trip through the Gaspere Peninsula.

An important business meeting was held, the nominating committee being selected to make up the ballot of the following season's officers. Announcement of the annual meeting, to be held at Monday, May 9, was made. The dinner and election of officers is to be held at Seiler's 1775 House on the Concord Turnpike. Transportation for all members has been arranged. All members plan to attend the annual meeting and notify Mercedes Speedie at Win. 0639 for reservations.

FISHING PARTY

Four local anglers, former Selectman Edward H. Merrill, Robert A. Reynolds, Police Lieut. Edward W. O'Connell and Fred Scholl, Jr., spent the past week-end fishing at Lake Sunapee, N. H. Lieut. O'Connell hooked two trout which were said to be the first taken from the lake for some time. Messrs. Reynolds and Scholl each got a salmon, but available reports of the expedition are strangely silent about the size and quality of the Merrill catch. How about it, Ed?

THE PARISH PLAYERS GIVE FINALE BEFORE ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE

Mrs. Elouise T. Graves and Francis R. Hart, Jr. Give Stellar Performance

As the final curtain fell on the last act of "To The Ladies" a light comedy written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly, and presented by The Parish Players of the First Congregational Church, in "The Little Theatre Beneath A Spire" on Monday night, a splendidly enthusiastic audience could have secured a composite impression of the individual reactions of the several hundred persons who all but filled the small theatre, the dominant theme of that impression would have been one of complete satisfaction. Satisfaction of that persistent human demand for entertainment, and for entertainment which possesses the quality of being enjoyed by the younger, or perhaps downright wholesome good fun.

And it was wholesome good fun which characterized the performance of "To The Ladies." The first few minutes of the opening scene, with the two leading characters on the stage, sounded the note upon which the enjoyment of the whole play depended. A kindly, sympathetic but none the less humorous, revelation of delightful human frailties. Throughout the play, in spite of the fact that the imagination and common sense might be strained a bit to accept each new situation which developed in the fast-moving plot, one could easily ignore such strains in the thorough enjoyment of these very situations.

While there are some 15 or more characters listed in the cast, the play is really a two-character or, perhaps, a two-and-a-half-character play, in that all the other characters served merely to bring out the delightful human and natural peculiarities of Leonard Beebe, the super-credulous young clerk; of Elsie Beebe, his super-intelligent, understanding and loyal wife; and of John Kincaid, the successful business man, whose success, it develops, has been founded upon the business acumen of his wife.

Mr. Francis R. Hart, Jr., who played Leonard Beebe, and Mrs. Elouise T. Graves, who played Elsie, were convincing from the start. So convincing, indeed, that they at once enlisted the concern of the audience in the fate of Leonard's business prospects and a very sincere apprehension as to his immediate future. Leonard and Elsie were real people, people one could easily understand; and the audience liked them from the start, hoped for their happiness, and shuddered in apprehension of the inescapable complications which threatened that happiness. While their frailties were ridiculous, they themselves were not. They were genuine, thanks to Mr. Hart and Mrs. Graves.

There were countless little touches of voice and gesture, of expression and of action, which one recalls as he attempts to evaluate the fine piece of work done in portraying these two persons so professionally as did Mr. Hart and Mrs. Graves. Perhaps the most significant comment would be to say that as the play progressed it was more and more difficult to dissociate Mr. Hart from Leonard Beebe and Mrs. Graves from Elsie.

In spite of one's common sense insisting that there could never be a man so credulous as Leonard, Mr. Hart definitely convinced one that there could be. And Mrs. Graves revealed a rare appreciation of the character of Elsie by never for a moment over-playing a part that could easily have been over-played. The audience, if one may judge from applause which these two received again and again, was extremely grateful to them for their fine work.

And perhaps no less grateful to Mr. F. M. Blanchard, who played the part of John Kincaid so effectively and so naturally. One of Mr. Blanchard's most entertaining and successful characterizations occurred during the banquet scene in Act Two, while he sat benignly listening to the scarcely veiled complimentary remarks of the after-dinner speakers. While playing a minor part, and one in which the lines were not always dramatically strong, Mr. Blanchard succeeded throughout in looking and acting the part of a strong silent business man. The clever unmasking of his secret dependence upon his wife's business judgment proved to be one of the comedy highlights of the play.

Mrs. Bertha K. Blanchard, who played the part of Mrs. Kincaid, while she had only a few lines in the play, was always a definite personality and added much to the sense of reality in the few scenes in which she appeared.

It would be unwise and impossible here to attempt to comment intelligently and fairly upon the individual work of some 16 or 17 members of the cast. One might say, however, that Chester Mullin's breezy insouciance, as portrayed by Clifford S. Cunningham; Mr. Moffat's characteristically suave and diplomatic remarks as an after dinner speaker, as portrayed by Mr. Oscar W. Crowsers; Mr. Henri's bland eloquence as toastmaster, as played by Mr. Samuel Graves; and Mr. T. Parker Clarke's portrayal of the unctuous political spellbinder, Mr. Cassidy, all added much to the enjoyment of the comedy. The fact that one does not comment on the fine work done by the other minor parts merely indicates that they were minor parts and were satisfactorily played.

At the end of Act One the audience looked forward with keen anticipation to the inevitable moment when Leonard would come to grips with the business of thrilling a distinguished after-dinner audience with his first public speech. As one watched him nervously rehearsing his prepared speech an hour before the great moment, one's anticipation was intensified by the realization that disaster was just around the corner from Leonard. And when Tom Baker, played by Rufus Elliott, and a rival with Leonard for promotion, rose to deliver the identical speech which Leonard had bought and paid for and laboriously memorized, disaster was knocking at the door. Perhaps the only spot of regret when was felt by the audience throughout the play appeared when it became evident that Leonard was going to be allowed to make an impromptu effort. And yet one would not miss the characteristic effort of his loyal little wife, who pinch hit for him so admirably and gave him all the credit.

Between Act Two and Act Three coffee was served in the foyer, and during this short social interlude one began to wonder how the final act could develop anything but the obviously happy ending for Leonard and Elsie. One felt that another act would be superfluous. There was really nothing that could happen to prevent the logical outcome unless some unpremeditated complication should arise. But before the final act was halfway through the unexpected complication arose, and its solution furnished the final fillip of hilarious comedy with which the play came to an end.

Next week is National Music Week. There are many "weeks" foisted upon a glib and long-suffering public which might well be consigned to oblivion, but there are few who will quarrel with the idea of setting apart a time, in which to pay tribute to music as a cultural, recreational and vital force in the lives of all of us. The purpose of National Music Week, as explained by Mrs. Harold B. Wood, chairman of the Division of Music of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, is "to promote and to stimulate the desire for a variety of activity which will increase the public's enjoyment of music." As an actual means to this end those directing the movement have arranged programs designed to demonstrate the progress of musical instruction, or to impress upon the public the need for better support for this important department of education. The year, 1938, marks the one hundredth anniversary of the introduction of music in the public schools by Lowell Mason, and in many places special programs have been arranged in commemoration of this epochal event. The key thought of Music Week is to awaken or intensify the realization of the value of music in the life of the individual, particularly to the end that the community increase its opportunities for musical appreciation and education. Here in Winchester as an introduction to Music Week three well known local groups, the Winchester Chorists, the Fortnightly Glee Club and the Winchester Double Quartet are joining in a concert of familiar music to be given this evening in Fortnightly (Waterfield) Hall. Every effort has been made to present a program which the average music lover can understand and enjoy so that those who choose to make their approach to Music Week through the concert will find their experience pleasing as well as profitable. Winchester's musical opportunities have decreased sharply in late years in direct ratio to a waning public interest. If an occasional Music Week can stimulate this interest to a returning demand for more and better music we should all lend the movement our support.

AS TO THIS AND THAT

Too little has been made of the apparent deceit in which the Black appointment to the Supreme Court was entangled. It will be remembered that after the fact of Senator Black's membership in the Ku-Klux Klan was broadcast Mr. Roosevelt explained that he knew nothing about it except what he read in the newspapers. It is possible, of course, that this was true but to anyone who knows anything about the Ku-Klux Klan it seems at the best very doubtful. It was a matter of general knowledge that at the time when the Klan was powerful in the South very few men in political life felt sufficiently strong to refrain from becoming members. There were a few thoroughbreds who did not adhere to it, such as Oscar Underwood, but for the ninety nine percent comprising the rest of those aspiring to office they were vociferously enthusiastic over the Klan. Black in particular was voted a life membership in token of his importance in the organization, and he never was one to hide his light under a bushel if he thought its prominence would advance his political prospects. That Mr. Roosevelt could be ignorant of the probabilities at the best is simply incredible and that he was fully acquainted with the facts seems altogether likely. And if the foregoing be reasonable, one can come to only one conclusion. Not that knowing that Black was a member of the Klan he should not have been appointed to the Supreme Court. That is not so serious as the apparently obvious misstatement as to the facts. Clearly a man who was or had been a member of the Klan ought not to be appointed but anyone making appointments may be expected to be mistaken at times in his judgments. If he errs right along, that is another matter. The serious thing is that the President of the United States should seem to assert his lack of information about a matter in which as a practical politician he normally and naturally must have known.

SOCRATES SAYS-

SPENDING

Even the New Deal Administration has said, time after time, that private enterprise only, can permanently supply real jobs for the unemployed. In spite of this full knowledge, almost every conceivable theory has been attempted that could handicap and prevent business from expanding. If the "blow by blow" account of the New Deal fight with private business should be attempted in chronological order, business ability to stand up at all would be universally considered as amazing.

"The President's men" have attacked business on every front not simply by name calling, by unjust and burdensome taxation, and by all types of threatened legislation, but by the spending of countless billions which has so frightened idle money that it has gone into Government bonds, instead of taking any risk in private enterprise and thus billions of millions of more people. Now it is proposed that billions more be spent in "pump priming" this in spite of the first pump priming having failed. Private enterprise will thus be further curtailed (after the first effect has worn off) and unemployment in business increased still more.

How under the sun anyone could suggest going down the second time in order to have a second temporary breathing spell before going down for the third time is incomprehensible. If private capital and private enterprise are to be allowed to exist in the United States, it is now time to act accordingly before it is too late. The Government should stop competing with private enterprise through the borrowing and spending of money, and it should definitely instill confidence that the savings of the people are safe when invested in private business, and that such savings are to be allowed reasonable profits, if re-employment is really desired.

Unless such confidence is obtained immediately and the Government program altered so as to insure the future for such confidence the natural results of the New Deal theories will be complete centralized control and state ownership, for the Government will have spent all the resources of the nation.

Let not the political cry of relief cloud the issue, for there is plenty for direct relief locally administered, as it should be done. By instilling confidence the New Deal could save the billions they propose to spend and recovery would be almost instantly started. If they want recovery, and believe in private ownership and enterprise, why don't they now try the simple, sure way?

—Socrates

FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The annual meeting of the Winchester Circle of the Florence Crittenton League was held on Thursday, April 21, at the home of Mrs. Reginald Bradley on Ledgewood road. Mrs. William C. Cusack, president of the Circle, called the meeting to order at 2:30. After the business meeting Mr. Herman Holt, Jr., president of the League and Mr. Clarence B. Preston, general secretary of the League spoke about the work and both thanked the Winchester Circle for their dependability and continued interest.

Madeline Winship's lovely soprano voice accompanied by Mary Ranton Witham greatly delighted the large gathering. Their selections included: Fairies Dance by Head; To a Madonna by Reppert; Little French Clock by Kountz; None But the Lonely Heart by Tchaikowski; April Children by Carey.

Dr. William L. Stidger, head of the Department of Preaching at Boston University and a well known preacher, lecturer, author and radio speaker, gave the address of the afternoon. His subject was "Footprints in Cement." In his charming informal manner he told many intimate stories of his friendship with Mr. Henry Ford with whom he was to have dinner that evening at Wayside Inn. The members very much appreciated his informal friendly manner and enjoyed their personal contacts with him during the tea hour.

Mrs. Herbert T. Wadsworth of the Nominating Committee presented the slate for the year 1938-39 and the following were declared elected: Mrs. W. Cusack, president; Mrs. Harold B. Richmond, 1st vice president; Mrs. E. Ober Pride, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Percy Bugbee, recording secretary; Miss Gretchen Stone, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Benjamin Hill, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert J. Waite, director.

Mrs. Florence R. Scales is retiring as treasurer after five years of faithful and efficient service. These qualities together with her kindness and patience have endeared her to all. Mrs. Scales appeared at the meeting wearing a lovely brooch, the gift of the Executive Board.

A delicious tea was served by Mrs. Harris Richardson and her committee. All enjoyed the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Reginald Bradley.

GIRL SCOUT NOTES

May Day may be Child Health Day for the nation, but every day is Health Day for the Girl Scouts.

From Monday to Sunday, health and safety are fundamentals in the gay 1938 game of Scouting. The program, recently revised for the girls whose green uniforms are blossoming forth all over the spring countryside, places a new emphasis upon personal, home, and public health and safety; home nursing, child care and first aid. Under a careful leadership to see that no girl undertakes more than is justified by her strength or age, Girl Scouts will henceforth be more active than ever in such fields.

These young hikers and campers are learning anew each day that health is fun and that one of the funniest sayings ever coined was the mid-Victorian shibboleth, "she enjoys poor health."

"We enjoy the best of health, thank you," they say, as they go about their outdoor activities with a zest never known to their grandmothers. From the time they were Brownie Scouts of seven they have taken pride in keeping fit all the time, in learning that sturdy health is a means toward accomplishment of all they want to do.

Ways to health that are learned at home or in school are adapted to the great outdoors and put into practice. Camping and hiking have proved to the girls the wisdom of adult admonitions concerning such things as correct shoes, comfortable clothing, keeping feet dry, good posture and breathing.

In the value of vegetables stressed in the family dining room? How to cook them so that their highest nutritive qualities may be retained is one of the skills which a Girl Scout learns. For mothers speak of well-balanced meals? Proper food combinations are part of the lore Girl Scouts employ when planning the luncheon to be taken along on a hike.

In the old days, candy-making may have merited the designation by being limited to a knowledge of how to make chocolate fudge; but today's Girl Scout may learn as part of her health program, how to concoct an equally delicious confection from healthful fruits.

If there be sickness in her home, the modern Girl Scout can be of assistance to the doctor and the nurse. For has she not learned in the course of her Scouting how to make a "hospital bed," how to arrange trays for the sick rooms and to adjust properly light and ventilation?

M. S. P. C. A. AUXILIARY NOTES

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Helen I. Pessenden and her business associates, their real estate office at 3 Common street was given over to a food sale on Thursday afternoon of last week, under the auspices of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary. Friends of the cause were very generous in their contributions of delicious home-cooked food. There was also a table of fancy articles. The proceeds from this sale go to the maintenance of the Animal Shelter at 432 Washington street.

The formal opening of the Shelter is to be held on Saturday afternoon, April 30, at 2:30 p. m. An appropriate program has been arranged, with brief addresses by Dr. Francis H. Rowley, president of the Mass. Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Mr. Guy Richardson, Editor of "Our Dumb Animals" and Mrs. Edith W. Clarke, president of the Boston Women's S. P. C. A. Auxiliary. Another feature will be singing by a group of Winchester school children. The public is cordially invited to attend these exercises. Come and see for yourselves the clean, comfortable quarters provided at the Winchester Animal Shelter.

In the year 1865, the American Tract Society of Boston published a book called "The Cup Bearer." A copy of this beautiful book was presented by the Society to my father, Henry Clay Kendall, who was a great lover of animals and a firm believer in humane education.

The following poem is taken from "The Cup Bearer," Minnie Kendall Wiswall.

AN OLD EASTPE LEGEND

One evening, Jesus lingered in the marketplace, Teaching the people parables of truth and grace; When, in the square remote, a crowd was seen to rise And stop with loathing gestures and abhorring cries.

The Master and his meek disciples went to see What cause for this commotion and disgust could be And found a poor dead dog beside the gutter.

Revolting sight, at which each face its hate betrayed.

Mary Croisetierre Winner Of Whiting Milk Company Contest

FIRST PRIZE IN WHITING MILK CO. RADIO CONTEST BEING AWARDED

One of the most interesting radio programs of the season was broadcast over Station WAAB last week, when the Grand Prize in the Whiting Milk Company Radio Dramatic Contest was awarded to Miss Mary Croisetierre, of 325 Huron avenue, Cambridge, a student at Rosary Academy, Watertown. Mr. Robert A. Burns, director of sales and advertising of the Whiting Milk Company, made the presentation, and Miss Croisetierre responded in person, expressing her delight at receiving first prize in the contest, a year's scholarship at Emerson College of Oratory.

The award was made to Miss Croisetierre for her work in the play "Echoes from Bethlehem," also the recall performance, "Tale of Two Cities," and in the final when she played in "The Merchant of Venice."

Runners-up who received silver medals for the excellence of their radio performance, were Morrill Ring, Jr., of West Medford, a student at Hobbs Junior High School; Miss Lillian Barden, a student at Shurtleff Junior High School, Chelsea; and David Joly, a student at Bowditch Junior High School, Salem.

Twenty schools, over a 26 week period, took part in this program, each sending ten boys and girls to participate in the plays which were presented. As a result, approximately 200 boys and girls of Junior High School age have been able to give a dramatic performance over the air. Principals and dramatic teachers of the schools co-operated in the splendid training of the students. All participants gave excellent performances, and the plays, which were based on the works of standard authors, were of great interest to thousands of radio listeners, who have

One held his nose, one shut his eyes, one turned away; And all among themselves began to say, "Detestable creature!" "He pollutes the earth and air."

"His eyes are blue!" "His ears are foul!" "His ribs are bare!"

"In his torn hide there's not a decent shoe-string left."

"No doubt the execrable cur was hung for theft."

Then Jesus spoke, and dropped on him this saving verbiage:

"Even pearls are dark before the whiteness of his teeth."

The peering crowd grew silent and ashamed, like one Rebuked by sight of wisdom higher than his own.

And one exclaimed: "No creature so accursed can be But some good thing in him a loving eye will see."

Everybody's doing it. NOT YET! FOR I'M SOMEBODY! Don't forget! Anyone with courage To stop and THINK Is really somebody. I DON'T DRINK. Many a "somebody" Who didn't think Became a "nobody" Because of drink. ANYONE can follow What crowds do: But I'M SOMEBODY! How about you?

LIGHTNING DAMAGED PUFFER FACTORY

During the height of last Friday's thunder storm a heavy bolt of lightning struck the Puffer Manufacturing Co. factory on Swanton street, ripping off 40 feet of the roof which was 18 inches square, and sending quantities of brick work crashing through a corrugated roof above the railroad loading platform of the plant, scattering thousands of barrels of bricks piled there and crushing a truck which was being loaded. A laborer, Michael Botofocso, 56, of 71 Swanton street, narrowly escaped death, having been left the factory when the truck was working, just before the crash.

The Puffer factory, built in 1893 by the late Louis Goddu for the manufacture of shoe machinery and later changed to the McKay Company who continued this line, was for some years the home of the Puffer Soda Fountain and Carbonating Company. The Puffer interests still occupy a part of the building, but the McKay Company built the most modern industrial building in the state. Besides the Puffer interests the plant now houses the International Coppage Company and Barlett-Thompson shoe burnishers. Practically all the damage done by the storm was to the exterior of the building.

FORMER WINCHESTER MAN AT FIRE AREA

Captain Oliver Brown who recently moved to Falmouth, having been a resident of this town for many years, was enmeshed in the controversy this week about the disastrous forest fires on Cape Cod. He is in charge of construction at the new National Guard camp at Bourne and it was claimed by officials of nearby towns that the fires were started there by W. P. A. workers. A petition by selectmen and others was presented to Gov. Hurley to stop fires here during the dry season. Captain Brown, in defense of the camp workers, stated that the only fires there were built to burn rubbish on rainy days sometime previous to the conflagration. Some people who should know local conditions state that the fires were started by berry pickers because a forest fire makes the blueberries come better. Five thousand acres of forest were burned over, two men burned to death and two others are on the danger list with severe burns.

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

As Mr. Michael J. Foley, the former dog officer, had notified the Board in writing that he did not care to be considered for reappointment to this position, it seemed for the best interests of the town to centralize in the Police Department the authority for the care of dogs, and Chief Rogers was appointed dog officer. Hereafter all calls in reference to stray dogs should be made to the police station.

DANIEL A. MURRAY COMMANDER

Daniel A. Murray, well known Winchester resident, is receiving the congratulations of his innumerable friends in this section since his recent election as Commander of General Mark L. Hersey Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars of Boston.

He served as the leader of the Post in 1932-33 and created such an enviable reputation that he was prevailed upon to assume the duties at the recent election. The choice was unanimous.

One of the highlights of the Post's new program is an intensive membership campaign being directed by George Richardson of Stoneham. Several recruits have already been obligated as members and plans are now being completed for a large class obligation at the Hotel Brunswick, headquarters of the Post, for Monday evening, May 16.

Commander Murray explained yesterday that the Post is composed of business and professional men from all sections of Greater Boston. Several officers and members are residents of cities and towns in the northern section. "We have found," he stated, "that many residents of nearby cities and towns prefer to affiliate with our Post because it gives them an opportunity to exchange ideas with associates in the business world and also to meet people who are like themselves, served their country in time of strife on foreign shores or in hostile waters."

His Post has just started an American Legion and Junior activity program and the members plan to take an active part in all affairs of the Veterans of Foreign Wars," he added. "We have proven in the past that we can carry on a successful program and are now arranging details for an event that will create statewide interest."

Many veterans of Woburn and Winchester will be guests at the coming obligation.

ANNUAL LOBSTER LUNCHEON

Under the leadership of Mrs. Harry Jackson, general chairman, plans are moving briskly forward for the lobster luncheon to be given at the Epiphany Parish Hall at 1 o'clock, Tuesday, May 10. The luncheon will be given for the parish women who chose for themselves the name "The Jordan Group" in honor of their first chairman, who drew the original group together and initiated the group in the early years. Mrs. Archibald Jordan.

It is pleasant to note that in this case retirement from the prime responsibility has not meant lapsing inactivity, as though the undertaking had been a hard chore, dutifully done like an old-time grandmother's "stint," but gladly relinquished and fled from as soon as the last required stitch is taken. On the contrary, Mrs. Jordan is serving as head of the most arduous and important committee, in charge of the sale of tickets.

After the luncheon there will be a bridge and a musical program. Tickets will be chosen by Mrs. Ove Mortensen, who will also have charge of decorating the parish hall and the tables.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The first out-door meeting of Troop 7 was held Monday, May 2 and every one agreed that it was very much of a success.

After a hurried line-up at 7 p. m. and a patrol check, the troop headed for the "Daisy Field" with Senior Patrol Leader Paul Butterworth in charge. After "tossing up for sides" we found that there were 10 or 11 on each side. A. O. Weld, Scoutmaster, was elected umpire and the ball game was on. Earnest Butterworth, chairman of the Troop Committee and John Casler, assistant Scoutmaster, held grandstand seats. At the end of the fourth inning the score was 0 to 0, so the umpire went to work, with the result that the game was finally called on account of darkness, with a score of 3 to 1 for Senior Patrol Leader. David Burnham's side.

During the ball game Ray Bohannon, Senior Patrol Leader, took a patrol of Tenderfoot Scouts on a marked trail to explain the mysteries of tracking.

Next in order came the rabbit hunt, the high spot of the evening. The Scoutmaster sent the troop to a given spot to find "the rabbit," and after gazing at themselves for several minutes in the water at Indian Spring one of the 15 or more Scouts got wise and agreed that a "sucker" did you ever hear of a rabbit catching a sucker? Ask Ray Harris and Ralph Juv.

Next Monday evening, weather permitting, another out-door meeting will be held. Two things to remember for next meeting: Totem Pole requirements and the Court of Review.

D. A. R.

The April meeting of "Committee of Safety Chapter," D. A. R. was held at D. A. R. headquarters, 9 Ashburton place, Boston. A short religious service was held in memory of Mrs. Lucius Symmes, who was an active member of Committee of Safety Chapter. The regent, Mrs. George Bryne and treasurer, Mrs. Charles Beaudry, gave highlights in the Congress, recently held in Washington.

An outing for the annual meeting in May was planned, to be held at Hillside School in Marlboro.

The meeting adjourned and refreshments were served by the hostesses.

DIMINICO-DERRO

The marriage of Miss Angelina Derro, daughter of Mr. Thomas Derro of Swanton street, to John Diminico son of Mrs. Marion Diminico of Florence street, took place Saturday morning, April 30, at St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick performed the marriage ceremony at 9 o'clock and was also celebrant of the nuptial mass which followed. A reception was held after the ceremony at Fortnightly Hall and a catered wedding breakfast was served.

Miss Derro had for her honor attendant her sister, Miss Mary Derro. Bridesmaids were Miss Ida Derro, Miss Mary Diminico, Miss Susan Fiori and Miss Angelina Gilberti, all of this town. Little Miss Marguerite Derro served as ring bearer.

Mr. Diminico had for his best man William Penna of this town and the corps of ushers included James and Albert Derro, Frank Corby and Frank Diminico, all of Winchester.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette and a veil of tulle arranged with a coronet of lace. Her flowers were bride's roses and valley lilies. The honor maid wore peach marquisette with a chanel of early summer flowers and carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were gowned alike in aqua marquisette dresses and like the honor maid, wore chaplets of flowers. Their bouquets were of talisman roses. The small ring bearer also wore a frock of aqua marquisette, and carried the rings for the double ring ceremony upon a satin pillow.

Mr. Diminico and his bride are spending their honeymoon in New York City. Upon their return they will make their home in Winchester at 534 Washington street. Both Mr. and Mrs. Diminico are well known in Winchester and are graduates of the Winchester High School.

CAPTAIN JOHNSON COMING TO WINCHESTER

When Capt. Irving Johnson and his amateur crew of men and women sailed the 92 foot schooner "Yankee" into Gloucester Harbor last Sunday afternoon, to be welcomed by the shouts of an enthusiastic crowd, they were completing a globe encirclement of 35,000 miles, during which they tasted thrilling adventure among the South Sea Islands. The voyage took exactly 18 months.

The 32 year old young man, (32 to be exact) Capt. Johnson is an expert on circumnavigation having been three times around the world.

He is also a seasoned lecturer, and in great demand. His lecture is illustrated with the most amazing motion pictures, mostly in color, ever taken on a sailing ship.

The Fortnightly will present Captain Johnson in person, with his lecture to the public of Winchester, in the High School Auditorium on Friday evening, Oct. 28.

The proceeds from this lecture will be used entirely for local philanthropies.

KENDRICK AT LEXINGTON

Charles "Buster" Kendrick, Winchester boy playing professional baseball under the banner of the Boston "Bees" has been sent at his own request from Evansville, Ohio, to Lexington, Ky., where he will play in the so-called "Ritz" League. "Bus" could have stayed in Evansville, but believed he would have a better chance for regular work and increased experience in Lexington. The "Bees" management in Boston consider the rangy right-hander a very promising pitching prospect.

EXHIBITION OF LOCAL TALENT GOOD SHOW

Interesting Studies by Amateurs at Public Library

The Winchester Art Association's long awaited Exhibition of Local Talent opened last Sunday in the art gallery of the public library with a tea for members of the association, the exhibitors and guests. About 150 were present, all evincing the keenest interest and enjoyment in the work of the amateurs shown.

Tea was served under the direction of Mrs. Hollis Nickerson with Miss Jennie Haskell and Mrs. Charles S. Livingston pouring. Hostesses were Miss Mary W. Studley, Miss Helen Smiley, Miss Mary Alice Fitch, Mrs. Royall N. Hallowell and Miss Nancy Nickerson.

The exhibition is a good one and especially interesting in view of the fact that many of those showing pictures are beginners. Naturally their work should be looked at for signs of promise rather than achievement, but the judges who selected the subjects for the exhibition felt that the work shown constitutes a creditable show.

With 109 entries it was impossible to hang all the pictures, and the judges, Miss Katherine Sturgis and Mr. Stanley Woodward, acted in an impartial manner to choose those which, in their opinion, would afford the best possible exhibition. The governing board of the Art Association and the exhibition committee had no voice in the selection, the judges' decision being final.

This, the first exhibition of its kind sponsored by the association, is only a beginning, but the splendid response and great interest augurs well for another year. The association hopes that the current showing will encourage school children especially to submit entries for the next Winchester exhibition.

One confusing element has entered the exhibition. No stipulation was made with regard to copies of pictures which might be submitted. The committee therefore asks that all who have submitted pictures that are copies to either mark them as such or notify Mrs. Fulton Brown, the association's secretary.

The association is trying to arrange an evening of informal criticism of the exhibits which is thought will prove helpful, as well as interesting, and is especially desirous that all who view the exhibition take their favorite picture and sculpture in the box provided.

All sorts of work is shown, water colors, oils, charcoal, pastel, etching, air-brush, etc., and the exhibitors run the gamut from mature men and women down to children seven and nine years of age. Those showing paintings include Mr. G. Winthrop Sturge, Mrs. Nellie A. Pitt, Mrs. Grace M. Bryant, Mr. G. Thayer Richards, Miss Jennie Haskell, Mrs. Nettie Ellen Reese, Mr. Henry O. Glidden, Mr. Francis A. Gaffney, Mr. John Barrett, Mrs. James P. Heaton, Mrs. Carlene M. Samoiloff, Miss Dorothy Nutter, Mrs. Francis B. Godfrey, Mr. Forrest W. Orr, Mrs. Mabel L. Smith, Mr. J. H. McMillan, Mrs. Dorothy Howard, Miss Edith L. Caverly, Mrs. Emily H. Sheehy, Mrs. John L. Heaton, Mrs. Marion S. Hayden and Mrs. Pauline P. Hall.

Those showing sculpture include Mrs. Beatrice B. Stockwell, Mr. Belton O. Mauldin, Mrs. Fred W. Nelson, Mrs. Marjorie S. Burr, Mrs. Marjorie G. Burchard, Mrs. Bertha L. Bradburn, Mrs. Anna H. Norton, Mrs. Carol Nickerson, Mr. Frederick Norton and Mrs. Rowena Hallowell.

"LIBEL" WELL DONE BY UNITARIAN PLAYERS

The Winchester Unitarian Players closed their current season with outstanding performances of Edward Woolf's three act drama, "Libel," on last Friday and Saturday evenings in Metcalf Hall. The cast comprised: Sir Mark Loddon, Bart. M. P. (the Plaintiff), Theodore R. Godwin; Lady Enid Loddon (his wife), Lucille Townley-Tilson; Mr. Justice Tuttington, Lewis L. Wadsworth, Jr.; Sir Wilfred Kelling, K. C. M. P. (Counsel Plaintiff), Gerald Y. Hills; William Bale (Junior Counsel), Lyndon B. Burnham; Thomas Foxley, K. C. (Counsel Defendant), John E. Burchard; George Hemaby (Junior Counsel), Herbert T. Wadsworth; Associate Counsel, William E. Spaulding; Major Brampton, George Wadsworth; Sarah Carleton, Barbara M. G. E. Lockhart; Erick Buckenham, Kenneth S. Hall; Dr. Emile Flordon (Belgian), Warren C. Whitman; Non-Speaky (Belgian), A. Russell Ellis; General Winterton, (his wife), Lillian A. R. Whitman; Admiral Fairfax Loddon, George W. Hayden; Captain Gerald Loddon, Sherman B. Russell; Evelyn Filby, Jane L. Robinson; Flordon's Assistant, Boudin G. Burbank; Stenographer, A. Barnard.

"Libel" must rank with the best productions seen in Winchester in recent years. First of all, the play itself is well written, rather perhaps, and undeniably a bit tedious, but withal so gripping and so tense with poignant emotional appeal that interest is maintained throughout its clever development to the last long breath of relief at the final curtain.

The entire action of the play takes place during three days in a King's Bench Court at the Royal Courts of Justice. Briefly it is concerned with a suit for libel instituted by Sir Mark Loddon against a British newspaper which has stated that he is an impostor, not a baronet at all but an adventurer, who has returned from the war to usurp the real Sir Mark's place in the community and affections of Lady Enid Loddon.

Complicating the situation is Sir Mark's own absolute loss of memory of events preceding the time when he was shell-shocked during the world war, and the appearance of several witnesses for the newspaper. Briefly it is in this tangled web of Englishman but one Frank Welling, with whom Sir Mark had been imprisoned in Germany and with whom he had made his escape. Tattoo marks, the loss of a finger and a striking resemblance between the two men give credence to these allegations, and it is even claimed that the impostor murdered Sir Mark to make his own escape.

The doubt of her husband evinced by Lady Loddon adds to the difficulty until her renunciation of him proves the shock that unlocks the flood-gate of memory for the unhappy Sir Mark, resulting in his final justification and return to happiness.

Strength, even unusual strength, is demanded of the characters. Sir Mark and the counsel for the plaintiff, defense, if "Libel" is to prove anything but a dreary and interminable debate. Other characters, of course, make their contributions to general interest. Lady Loddon and the presiding justice in larger measure and the others in relatively lesser degree, but the play stands or falls on the three central figures who "carry the show."

It is that quality of the complete success of the Unitarian Players' production must be laid at the feet of Messrs. Godwin, Hills and Burchard. We feel certain that the response and interest of the past will concur and surely those who saw the show will not soon forget the interpretations of these three gentlemen.

Mr. Godwin's Sir Mark was a very real interpretation, increasing in depth as the play progressed, never exaggerated and always inherently strong even when admirably portrayed physical and mental weaknesses were shown. The most intense appeal to the sympathies of the audience. His performance was at all times a vital one, and so completely did he submerge himself in his taxing role that his apparent exhaustion at the finale was hardly feigned. His continuing "en role," even at the second curtain call, indicates the grip which his interpretation had upon his imagination.

It is difficult to separate the characters, Sir Wilfred Kelling, K. C., and Thomas Foxley, K. C. As rival counsel they play upon each other and are interdependent. Mr. Hills as Sir Wilfred and Mr. Burchard as Mr. Foxley complimented each other beautifully, missing none of the opportunities so richly studding their strongly contrasting parts, and each drawing from the other's excellence strength for his own interpretation. The exaggerated politeness of their "Marned freind," their thinly veiled hostility and contempt for each other's attainments and position, were excellently portrayed and so admirably did they conduct their verbal fencing that the audience eagerly awaited the one while listening attentively to the other.

Both Mr. Hills and Mr. Burchard were called upon to learn voluminous roles and both were faultless in the delivery of their lines. Mr. Burchard was especially fortunate in a portrayal of the unscrupulous Foxley, his fatuous smile and suave hypocrisy giving way at will to a sneering brutality or ridiculing ruthlessness that won him the dislike, and at the same time the admiration of the audience. Especially well done was his shocked chagrin when questioned by Sir Mark about his acquaintance with military service.

Mr. Hills' portrayal of swish dignity, shrewd wit, British accent and mannerisms and quiet strength as exemplified in Sir Wilfred were admirably done, and he was equally happy in permitting the audience occasional glimpses of real sympathy and understanding beneath the veneer of court-room hardness. He was a very human figure as he questioned Lady Loddon, and again as he finally questioned Dr. Flordon, one glimpsed his genuine concern for his client.

was convincing without exaggeration. In repose she was an attractive young matron, and when torn between doubt of and love for her suspected husband, a most appealing figure.

Mr. Wadsworth as Mr. Justice Tuttington was not too well cast, but was able to give an acceptable portrayal of what might well have been a more important and humorous figure. The remaining characters were more or less incidental, each making his or her contribution to the success of the performance and in the main performing at production level. Mr. Burnham and Mrs. Wadsworth were very acceptable as the junior counsel, as were Mr. Spaulding as the associate, Mr. Symmes as the obviously nervous Major Brampton and Mr. Hall as the black-baiting Buckenham. Special mention should be made of two outstanding character bits contributed by Mrs. Lockhart as the bigamous Sarah Carleton with a penchant for the matron and Mr. Whitman as the Belgian Dr. Flordon.

Only in terms of the highest praise can one speak of Dermot Townley-Tilson's portrayal of "Non-Speaky," the living wreck of the German soldier who was horribly beaten by Sir Mark in a hand-to-hand fight during the latter's escape from prison. Introduced into the trial in impressive fashion by Flordon, his stare, horribly cocked head, shuffling walk and maintained rigidity were so cleverly assumed as to constitute a real triumph of both makeup and pantomime. Lighting and those in the audience who found it hard to believe that this gawsome human wreckage was anything but a dummy which is after all the highest compliment which could be paid Mr. Townley-Tilson's exceptional performance.

For the mechanics of the show, the set was excellent, seeming a part of the performance rather than an essential. Lighting was well worked out and makeup was good.

Mrs. Theodore Godwin, Mrs. Harry Goodwin and George W. Hayden, Jr., constituted the production committee, with Mr. Hayden and Mr. Goodwin the stage committee, assisted by Robert Jackson, George Cumings, Kenneth Pratt, James Woolley and Fred Cole. Mrs. Lyndon Burnham, Miss Gretchen Stone and Miss Alice Bantam were in charge of properties and costumes, and Miss Rosamond Rivinius was prompter.

Mrs. Theodore von Rosenzweig, Mrs. Harold Meyer and Mrs. William N. Borgs were in charge of serving coffee on Friday evening and of the reception for the cast on Saturday.

EVENING OF FAMILIAR MUSIC

Choristers, Glee Club and Quartet in Pleading Program

As an introduction to music week, the Winchester Choristers, Fortnightly Glee Club and Winchester Double Quartet, all of which are under the direction of Mary Ranton Witham, presented an Evening of Familiar Music last Friday evening in Fortnightly Hall. The assisting artist was Louise Allman, violinist, and the accompanists, for the Choristers, Miss Gladys O'Donnell and for the Glee Club and quartette, Miss Lucy Wilcox.

The program was: Martin, "Come to the Fair"; Foster, "I Dream of Jeanie"; Adams, "The Bells of St. Mary's"; (Winchester Choristers): Bantock, "Silent Strings"; Palestrina, "O Bone Jesu"; Robertson, "Flowers of the Forest"; Bridge, "Peter Piper"; (Fortnightly Glee Club): Bullard, "Winter Song" with solo by Thomas Travers, (Male Chorus): Mendelssohn, "On Wings of Song"; Czechoslovakian Folk Song, "Wake Thee Now Dearest" arr. by Taylor; Negro Spiritual, "Were You There?" arr. by Burleigh; Del Rio, "Homage"; (Winchester Double Quartette): Violin Solo, Schubert, "Ave Maria"; Kreisler, "Scherzo Rosmarin"; (Miss Allman): Herbert, "Moonbeams" from "The Red Mill" with solo by Alice White Bennett; Franz, "Dedication"; Romberg, "Auf Wiedersehen"; Jackson, "Thanks Be to God"; (Choristers): "May Day Carol" arr. by Taylor; Hahn, "L'Heure Exquise" with solo by Idabelle Winslip; "Carol of the Russian Children" arr. by Trehanne; "Czechoslovakian Dance Song" arr. by Manney; (Glee Club): Purcell, "Passing By"; Guion, "Home on the Range" with solo by Clifford Cunningham; Herbeck, "Maid of the Valley"; Huhn, "Invictus"; (Winchester Male Quartet): Liszt, "Liebestraum"; Manning, "In a Luxembourg Garden"; Rubinstein, "Scherzo"; (Kamenoi Ostrow) with solo by Jane R. Hill and violin obligato by Miss Allman, (Double Quartette): Speaks, "Morning"; Campbell-Tipton, "Spirit Flower" with solo by David Downer; and Keteby, "In a Monastery Garden," (Choristers and Double Quartette).

Care had been exercised in preparing the program to provide a pleasing variety of music well within the ability of the average person to appreciate, and the friendly audience, that comfortably filled the hall, listened with the closest attention and evident enjoyment. Both singers and director would hardly avoid being favorably affected by the enthusiasm of those listening to their efforts.

Those hearing the Choristers for the first time in the concert hall found much in their performance to admire. They sang without notes, were responsive to their leader's demands and showed unusually good diction. Their tone, particularly in the softer passages, was good, and they showed any deviation from pitch apparent. In addition to the lighter numbers, such as "Moonbeams" and the "Bells of St. Mary's" which were very well done, the Choristers' performance of such music as that by Franz and Campbell-Tipton gave evidence of their ability to cope with selections of a much more difficult nature. Few groups of Choristers' limited background would permit the unaccompanied arrangement of "Dedication" which they sang, and their rendition of what might be called their theme song, the "Monastery Garden," with the double quartette was outstanding.

The Quartette's contribution to the concert was an important one, this well known group singing music of a divergent nature smoothly and in a finished manner. Especially appealing was its performance of the negro spiritual by Burleigh, Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song" and the "Scherzo" by Rubinstein, the last number constituting perhaps the high light of the program. Mrs. Hill sang the beautiful solo passages exquisitely and the general performance of the group, with the single exception of the loud passages of the finale, was high grade.

Miss Allman's violin obligato added to the effectiveness of this number, and her solo group was a well played and most pleasing diversion from the vocal music.

The Fortnightly Glee Club gave an entirely commendable performance throughout its widely varied selections. The group showed careful training, balance and vocal ability in its singing of the number by Palestrina and the Russian Children's Carol; while special mention should be made of the diction in the spirited "Peter Piper" and the general performance of the "Czechoslovakian Dance Song."

Mrs. Winslip gave an entirely pleasing rendition of the solo passages in Hahn's beautiful "L'Heure Exquise," and the other soloists, Mr. Travers, Miss Bennett, Mr. Cunningham and Mr. Downer were effective in their incidental contributions.

The numbers for male voices on the program were popular, the chorists singing the virile winter song with a verve, while the quartet scored in the delicate "Passing By" and the stirring "Invictus."

Mrs. Witham must well have had a fatiguing and satisfying evening, fatiguing in that she conducted, or accompanied, for nearly two hours without rest, and satisfying in the evident pleasure which the audience evinced in the performance of her singers. A huge bouquet was presented to her just before the final group and she was warmly applauded by the singers, all of whom rose at the presentation. She conducted entirely without notes and was most fortunate in preventing the program from dragging at any time. In addition to conducting, she accompanied Miss Allman, the male quartet and the double quartette in the Rubinstein number.

The regular accompanists, Miss O'Donnell and Miss Wilcox, played in a most commendable manner, being helpful to both soloists and ensembles. The program commenced on time and was run throughout without undue waits. It is unfortunate that the opening numbers were marred by the seating of late comers.

The Choristers were in charge of arrangements for the concert with James Mawn as chairman and Eileen Underwood, Ruth Mathews and Francis Felt committee members.

CHURCH SERVICE LEAGUE

Closes Year With Annual Luncheon

Tuesday, May 10, at 1 o'clock the Church Service League of Epiphany Parish will close the activities of the year 1937-38 and choose its officers and heads the committee for 1938-39. The meeting will begin with a luncheon, which is in charge of Mrs. Warren Jenney and Mrs. Paul J. Forester.

At the annual business meeting, which will follow immediately after the luncheon the first vice-president, Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer will preside.

There will be a brief backward look over the work of the year, and a forward look into plans which will busy the women of the parish in September, when Winchester settles down after summer vacations. The leaders for the earliest undertakings of the autumn, the Hospitality Tea for newcomers and the annual fair, will be presented, as the success of these events depends on summer thought and planning.

The Nominating Committee, Mrs. Fred E. Boyd, chairman, will submit names for the election.

All women of the parish who are interested in any of the varied activities are members of the League. Plans are entirely voluntary. Mrs. Sawyer and the committee are eager to have this meeting prove not merely a review of the veterans who have been busy in the League this year but also a rally and welcome for next year's forces.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

Communion Day

The first day of May was a most appropriate morning for Guild members to have their annual Communion Day. Well over 100 women assisted at the Mass of St. Mary's Church and received Holy Communion. The altars were beautifully decorated and a special musical program was arranged.

A May breakfast was served at the Calumet Club and many clever toasts and responses were given by the officers and various members. Mrs. T. Conlon was the toastmaster and is to be congratulated on her cleverness.

The president, Mrs. James Gaffney, predicted a most brilliant future for the Guild which is built upon such a worthy cause for its object.

Silver Tea at the home of Mrs. Richard Sheehy, Washington street, the members of St. Mary's Tabernacle Society will have a showing of the beautiful linens made by them for the altars of St. Mary's Church. This exhibit will be in the form of a silver tea.

WINTON CLUB ANNUAL MEETING

Seventy four members gathered at the Country Club on Monday, May 2 for the annual meeting and luncheon at the Winton Club. Mrs. Percy Dugbee, assisted by Mrs. Harris Richardson, Mrs. Warren Goddu and Mrs. Irving Jennings had created a festive background which made the conclusion of the year's work an occasion of pleasure.

Winton Club is proud of its work: of the many articles made for the hospital by Mrs. James Murray and her work committee, of the linen and blankets purchased by Mrs. Price Wilson and the linen committee, of the $2600 brought into her treasury by the Cabaret committee under Mrs. P. Stewart Newton, of the money raised away in a special fund for emergency use at the hospital.

It is with regret that it sees Mrs. Howard Morrison complete her presidency. But the King is dead, long live the King! The club anticipates a continued harmony and efficiency under the leadership of Mrs. Henry Spencer and the board selected to assist her.

W. C. T. U.

In one of the issues of the Union Signal there is an article which should arrest the attention of every taxpayer. It is headed

"Did It Ever Occur to You?"

That Public Enemy Number One is John Barleycorn, and that the "G" men are allowing him to run amuck?

That if the Government adequately took care of the inebriates it would take all the revenue derived from the sale of intoxicants and "then some?"

That the same Government that legalizes intoxicants also electrocutes the man who murders under the influence of intoxicants?

That the Government uses every effort to oust the narcotic trade and legalizes narcotic whisky, the worst of all?

That "a man must have liberty" He must have the liberty to guzzle whisky and then go out and shoot somebody?

That the same Government which legalizes intoxicants also arrests the man for getting intoxicated?

That the people who criticize a man for drinking should try stopping the food or drink they like best. The Government should protect the weak.

OVER 300 BACK GROUP THEATRE 1938-39 SEASON

The annual meeting of the Winchester Group Theatre was held on May 4 at the home of Mrs. Marjorie Burr, 71 Wildwood street. After detailed reports by the season's management covering financial and production details the success of the new reserved seating plan for the coming season was revealed by Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth. "Attached to program for the last play, 'Pride and Prejudice' was a reservation form for use by members and sustaining members. By indicating their choice of seats on this form over 200 of the audience have assured themselves of seats for the coming season. In addition to this the active members of the Group Theatre are now renewing their memberships. The long list of sustaining members is constantly increasing." Mrs. Wadsworth went on to explain how the seats would be allotted to insure the utmost fairness to all reserving. She also indicated that many good locations were still available.

The active members then proceeded to the election of directors for the new season. The board of directors for the Group Theatre now consists of Mrs. Lyndon Burnham, Mrs. Guy B. Howe, Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth, Mrs. Warren Whitman, Mr. Ernest W. Gross, Mr. George W. Hayden, Jr., Dr. Eugene Pollard, Mr. Theodore von Rosenberg, Mr. William Spaulding. The meeting was adjourned after a clear cut discussion of suggestions for the coming season were given full consideration.

Following the meeting of the members, a board of directors meeting was held. At this first meeting in the new year the officers who will lead the Group into the 1938-39 season were named:

President—Ernest W. Gross

Vice President—George W. Hayden, Jr.

Treasurer—William Spaulding

When asked about the plans for the new season the new officers indicated that they would be revealed within a fortnight. They are already at work to continue the trend started by the last administration which enabled almost 70 to take an active part in the last production. The Group will seek to increase interest in Winchester dramas by giving more and more people an opportunity to be actively engaged in theatre work.

AS TO THIS AND THAT

A recent issue of Time attempts to give the facts as to a matter about which a question has arisen. Mr. James Roosevelt says that he is a graduate of Harvard; the authorities asked at the University say that he is not. Since both should know, this difference of statement leaves the reader confused. They may well get together for a fact finding conference such as Franklin D. had with the TVA Board, and decide to agree upon something or other.

However that may be the difference is interesting in that it seems to contradict a legend that it is hard to enter Harvard and once enrolled hard to get away without a degree, even if one remains for five years as James is said to have done.

The young man may have thought it judicious to imitate his father who in the same issue of Time is said to be credited with a law degree from Columbia that the Columbia records do not guarantee; or he may have felt that it would just naturally be helpful to Harvard if his success as a business man and otherwise could be credited in part at least to his training there; or in the multiplicity of his diverse occupations he may have overlooked his failure to meet some antiquated requirement of folks who believe that what one wishes to be so is so; or possibly, a man who has sold insurance more recklessly, statement, or that when he is Governor of Massachusetts Harvard would award him a degree anyway and that he would anticipate it a bit; or what you will. Trivial? To be sure, but trivial things are indicative and at times decisive. A slight flaw in the drive shaft of a splendid steamship is of infinitely more importance than the glitter of its superficial finish.

SOCRATES SAYS-

"THE NEW DEAL HINDERING LINE"

All that the people of America were told in 1932 was—"We need a plan!"—the intimation being that the New Dealers had one next. That "There was no need of a depression"—the intimation was that there would be no further recessions—and for the purposes of foolery the theme song was—"Happy Days Are Here Again."

The record of these six New Deal years to 1938 is indubitable, for the industrial chart shows five recessions and the "Roosevelt depression" of 1937-1938, making six for a total—147 points up and 93 points down—a perfect sawtooth line. The 1937-38 New Deal depression shows the sharpest drop ever recorded in the United States. The charts for England, however, show that there has not been one single quarterly recession in the gradual upturn of business since 1932.

Now there must be a reason for this American phenomena of fluctuations in recovery.

The reason given almost unanimously by business men (and business is the only medium for real jobs) is that they lack the theories of the New Deal, and when you ask them to explain what causes this lack of confidence they almost invariably all give the same reasons. Ask them why business is jumping nervously, by business, will never, induce the return of the lasting real prosperity and need not be successful if dependent on 15-minute news flashes.

The business of America is being liquidated—it has now "dug in" after trying for six years to break through the New Deal "Hindering Line"—Socrates

TAXPAYERS PROTEST

The Winchester Taxpayers' Association has sent the following letter to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Representative Edith Norton Rogers and Senator David I. Walsh:

May 4, 1938

The Directors of the Winchester Taxpayers' Association have instructed me to write you, as you are strongly opposed to future government expenditures for "pump-priming" purposes.

Experience has proved that such spending is nothing but waste, and poisons healthy business recovery. Appropriations for honest work relief and such appropriations are as absolutely necessary to feed, shelter, and clothe those truly in need as are provided; but these appropriations and the administration of them must be free of waste, dishonesty and corruption, and must not be used for political purposes.

Very truly yours,
(Signed)
Arthur Thad Smith, Jr.,
Secretary

NERO FIDDLER

To the Editor of the Transcript:
When the N. R. A. became weaker and weaker and business began to slump under it, when it proved to be the National Retarding Act that was holding the recovery of the United States behind all the other nations, the President delivered a "fireside chat." Nero fiddled.

When the bottom dropped out of the Passamaquoddy dam and the sand filled up the Florida canal, the President delivered a "fireside chat."

When all the little pigs had been killed and interred for their interminable sleep, the cotton, wheat and cotton plowed under, a shortage of eggs and butter, millions hungry and undernourished with no money to pay the resulting increased food prices, the President delivered a "fireside chat."

When the United States six months' record for strikes reached an all time high, when the C. I. O. revolutionaries seized industrial plants, when thousands of the courts to vacate, when thousands satisfied with existing conditions, willing and eager to work, were prevented by the lawless mob, the President delivered a "fireside chat."

When the United States Government repudiated its gold notes and certificates, confiscated all gold coin and then repudiated the price up for a profit to itself of two billion dollars that rightly belonged to the people, when it made laws granting powers and protection to labor and withholding the same rights to industry, when Government theorists in Washington bogged in their impracticable administrative methods, the President delivered a "fireside chat."

When after five years of mismanagement, the national debt reached an all time high of $40,000,000,000, doubled under the Roosevelt administration, calling for an annual interest payment of a billion dollars; when the President had spent more money than all the other presidents put together from Washington to the present Administration, when, after floundering about for five years without solving a single social or economic problem; when the number of unemployed in the United States exceeded the total population of all Canada, more than the number of idle in the Netherlands, England, Germany, France and Italy combined, reaching an all time high and still increasing; when the Federal employees and bureaus in Washington became so numerous as to result in inefficient confusion and unprecedented waste of the people's money; when a mediocre cabinet failed in its administrative duties and became hopelessly bogged; when the Federal tax system became so great the crushing weight of it elicited a pitiful groan throughout the land the President, ensconced in his Whitehouse easy chair, delivered a "fireside chat" that nationwide radio hookup.

REMINISCING

In looking over the report of the Water & Sewer Board I was somewhat surprised to find only $800 was due to finish paying for our Water Works.

May 1, as one of the older citizens of our town, write how well I remember the bitter fight there was before the question was finally decided. At the final meeting, one of our most respected citizens, Col. Nathaniel A. Richardson, of Washington street, openly stated "he would guarantee to sink a million dollars if they would ever get in that pesky Turkey Swamp."

When he found he was in error "it really made him sick" and Star readers can imagine how sick he was (see Webster's Dictionary) by many citizens.

However at the next town meeting he made handsome apology and acknowledged how mistaken he had been.

Well also do I remember David N. Skillings majestically standing in front of the old Lyceum Hall at this time and flouting a $50,000 certificate to the voters, to purchase these rights for water if the voters were not in favor of the project.

The then member of the Water Board intended to close a closed corporation to purchase these rights for water if the voters were not in favor of the project.

Probably Mr. Skillings' action was the cause of many voters changing their minds and thus this fine body of water for our town.

The Town of Winchester owes an unbounding sense of debt and gratitude to those three citizens Messrs. A. H. Merriam, James F. Dwyer and David N. Skillings for their vision in seeing that these reservoirs would supply the town with water all these years and for many years to come.

The present Water Board is to be commended for its efforts in driving wells on the West Side and finding new sources of water supply, making adequate provisions for our beloved Winchester for untold years.

Mrs. James McCormick reported as follows for the Community Service: In November the Girl Scouts delivered to the Needlework Guild over 100 articles of clothing for babies. Since then, with money given by En Ka, the troops have purchased materials, and have been working on articles for the Guild or next fall. With material supplied by the Red Cross, several troops have made and delivered other baby clothes to the District Nurse.

Again this year two Scouts have assisted each week at the "Wid Baby Clinic." Other Scouts have made up Christmas and Thanksgiving baskets, made favors for the hospital, and sung carols. One troop gave a party at the home for the 3rd. Other troops have knitted bonnets and mittens, and have folded surgical dressings.

During day camp, Mrs. Lowell Smith went to camp and cooked a meal one day each week. This year she is going to teach the children how to plan and do the work. Day camp under Miss Gregg was very successful. The children did worthwhile handcraft, put on a tiny, but delightful, operetta, and went to Palmer street beach for swimming lessons. The cabin was used to capacity all last fall and this spring.

WINCHESTER HIGH DEFEATS STONEHAM

Winchester High visited Stoneham Wednesday afternoon for a Middlesex League game in that town, and as Stoneham with Gerard pitching had been going on high, there was some worry on the part of the Winchester fans as to the outcome of the game as "Art" Johnson was not scheduled to pitch. But the diminutive pitcher for Winchester, Dan McGee, took the burden and held the heavy hitters of Stoneham in check while his mates got to Mr. Gerard good and plenty.

The score card shows only eight hits off Gerard, but there were many hit hard by Winchester which were prevented from going for hits by some excellent fielding on the part of the Stoneham players.

Ficociello, who has never had much experience behind the plate is improving in every game, and what a ride he gives the old apple when he gets a good ball to hit. Captain Donaghey is also hitting the ball hard, while "Art" Johnson is hitting, pitching and playing the outfield like a veteran.

The Winchester team has in Kennedy one of the best schoolboy shortstops seen this season on any school team.

Winchester goes to Belmont this afternoon and with "Art" Johnson pitching, the local boys should add another to their list of victories.

WINCHESTER WON FROM READING

With "Art" Johnson pitching fourth hit ball, Winchester High won its Middlesex League baseball game from Reading High, 7 to 1, Monday afternoon at the Shore road athletic field. Winchester got only five hits off Hoyt, visiting curve-baller, but they were better included than the Reading blows and bunched a triple by Captain Donaghey and a mighty homer by Gerry Ficociello.

Johnson's 16 strikeouts brought his two game record for the season to 34, and on Monday he whiffed the last three men to face him.

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientists, throughout the world, on Sunday, May 8.
The Golden Text is: "The Redeemer shall come to Zion and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord" (Isaiah 59:20).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father. Wherefore thou art no more a servant, but a son; and if a son, then art heir of God through Christ" (Galatians 4: 6, 7).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with key to the scriptures, by Mary Baker Eddy: "The real man being linked by Science to his Maker, mortals need only turn from sin and lose sight of mortal selfishness to find Christ, the real man and his relation to God, and to recognize the divine sonship. . . . When speaking of God's children, not the children of men, Jesus said, 'The Kingdom of God is within you; that is, Truth and Love reign in the real man, showing that man in God's image is unfallen and eternal.'" (pp. 316, 175).

HEART TO HEART TALKS

What Do We Choose?

We are the arbiters of our fate, the masters of our own destiny. God has willed it so. He has created us, as the theologian expresses it, "free moral agents," and the power of choice is not only our privilege but our necessity.

There are several important considerations, all of them intertwined, we should keep distinctly in mind as we make the choices of life. There is, at the very outset, the consideration of whether the thing we think of doing is right or wrong. That is primary to everything else. There is never a circumstance where one is justified in committing an immoral and unrighteous act. The one who does wrong will be certain to lose out in the end—he cannot by any conceivable method win out.

And let us not overlook the matter of obligation. What ought we to do? What is the demand of duty? What is the call of the Almighty? Sometimes the path may indeed lie in the direction we desire to travel. It is quite unnecessary to think that one must always do the thing he does not want to do to be in God's favor, and that the thing we have an inclination to do is the wrong thing. Indeed, on many an occasion it has seemed to us that the task we would like to undertake is most presumably the one God would have us perform. We are inclined to think this is the rule rather than the exception. But there are times and occasions, it may be exceptional ones, when the call is directly opposed to our desires and wishes. We shrink back from it. We do everything humanly possible to avoid it. But it seems so direct and positive that there does not appear to be any doubt about our responsibility to undertake the undesirable and distasteful task.

Under no condition should we ever "choose" to refuse, remembering our great example, Christ, who chose not to please Himself, but surrendered all that He might save you and me.

Eugene Bertram Willard.

WAS WELL KNOWN HERE

Edward Tuck multimillionaire resident of France who died last Saturday at the age of 96 at his winter home in Monte Carlo, was well known here in Winchester. He had visited here a number of times and Winchester residents were always welcome at his magnificent estate in La Malmaison, a suburb of Paris. He has given several millions of dollars to Dartmouth College to found the Tuck School of Business Administration during his lifetime. He gave a beautiful building in Concord, N. H., to the New Hampshire Historical Society and purchased for it a large oil painting of the White Mountains from the late T. Gilman Stanton of this town at great expense.

We are now equipped to stamp billfolds and fountain pens with names or initials in either gold or silver leaf. The Winchester Star, 3 Church street, Phone Win. 0029.

M. S. P. C. A. NOTES

On Saturday afternoon, April 30, the Winchester Animal Shelter was officially opened. This was an event toward which the women of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary have labored for several years. It was like-wise an occasion which will long remain in the memory of those present. Throughout the exercises one had the feeling that this was not merely a day of fulfilment, but even more a milestone on the road which leads to greater and nobler work in future years.

In addition to the adult audience, there were 60 or more children who listened attentively to the program, and participated in the singing, which was led by Mr. Walter Lincoln Rice, assisted by Mr. Guido Talone and his sons, Joseph and Dominick, cornetists. The interested faces of the children gave evidence that they found much to enjoy in the occasion; the novel delight of wandering about in a typical old-fashioned barn, the sight of the little animals happy in their neat, comfortable cages, old Peggy the horse, and the big hay mows, which many of the children utilized as balconies from which they listened to the program. Will they ever forget the story of "Grey Friars' Bobby" as so beautifully told to them that afternoon by Dr. Rowley, the distinguished president of the Massachusetts S. P. C. A.?

The presence of Dr. Rowley, and his challenging address added much to the dedicatory exercises. Other speakers were Mr. Guy Richardson, editor of the magazine, "Our Dumb Animals," and Mrs. Edith Washburn Clarke, both of whom brought messages of inspiration and encouragement. Prayer was offered by Rev. Arthur L. Winn. Mrs. Richard S. Taylor introduced the speakers, and called to the platform several persons closely connected with the work at the Shelter: Mr. Arthur Bryer, Mrs. Horatio Bryer and Miss Nettie Bryer, all of whom contribute much time and thought to the enterprise. Mrs. Taylor also introduced Mr. Brooks, the Angell Hospital Ambulance driver, who answers the many Winchester calls. A pleasing cornet duet was rendered by Mr. Talone and his son, Joseph Talone.

The following letter was read at the service. The writer, Mrs. Viola Richardson, now residing at 110 Mt. Vernon street, is the daughter of Mr. Nathaniel Richardson, who many years ago owned the estate at 432 Washington street, which now houses the Animal Shelter:

To the Members of the Winchester chapter of the M. S. P. C. A.: I deeply regret that it is impossible for me to be present at the dedicating of this building as an animal shelter.

My sympathy in the work of your society is genuine and the fact that the building to be used is a part of my old homestead, adds greater interest.

I feel that both my mother and father would have been pleased that the barn which sheltered their animals so many years is to continue its usefulness.

The home was especially dear to my father, Nathaniel A. Richardson, as it has housed seven generations of the Richardson family.

It is with deep satisfaction that I hear of the co-operation of the present owners with your venture.

Much credit is surely due Mrs. Richard Taylor and her co-workers for securing an adequate permanent animal shelter which will prove of great value in the coming years. With cordial good wishes for continued success in your splendid work.

Sincerely,
Viola A. Richardson

Mrs. Edward Larned has invited the Auxiliary to hold the May meeting at her home at 149 Highland avenue. As this is the last meeting of the season, it is hoped that many will attend. Thursday, May 12 is the date.

In response to personal invitations received from the school pupils, many Auxiliary members enjoyed the humane day program in the schools last week. It is always a pleasure to attend these annual exercises, and a satisfaction to discover what valuable instruction our Winchester pupils are receiving year by year along the line of humane education.

MEMORIAL EXHIBIT BY JOHN MEAGHER COMPANY

The Memorial Exhibit of the John Meagher Company, Memorial Manufacturers of Peabody, is this week attracting many visitors to a variety of choice Memorials, made of Smith's genuine Westerly, Rhode Island Granite have been completed, and these are being sold for erection by Memorial Day, at attractive prices. At no time during the entire year is their display as complete as at the present time when every conceivable type of Memorial is displayed—it offers many interesting specimens of Memorial Art.

The Meagher Memorial Company have a reputation for quality Memorials at reasonable prices. They have devoted nearly half a century to the memorial manufacturing industry, and their plant is the largest and the best equipped in this state; many beautiful specimens of their work appear in the local cemeteries.

A visit to their plant and exhibit will prove very interesting; it is one of the few places in the state to make a Memorial from start to finish and to see the block of granite taken in its rough state and then through the various processes of construction moulded and finished into the beautiful specimens that are on display, is indeed an admirable sight. The public is invited to visit their cutting plant and exhibit, and for the convenience of their patrons the exhibit will remain open daily until 9 p. m. and all day Sunday for inspection.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

Patience

We should be more patient than we are. Too many of us scold and lose heart with our fellows because they are so very dull and slow. Patience is a wonderful virtue. It is far from being the weak, anaemic thing we so often picture it. Patience is a strong and virile grace. Remember how David Livingstone tells us there is something terrible in the patience of the lion. Patience is much more than endurance. Endurance says: "Lord, increase my staying power." Patience says: "Lord, increase my faith." Maybe you have at one time or other met a patient sufferer—calm, cheerful, undergoing excruciating pain, yet thinking of the comfort of others.

How much the people of Winchester, state and nation, need the quieting grace of patience today. There is great impatience among humanity. Common tasks are very irksome. We are all in such a rush to get some place or get something done. In prayer more than in any other realm we need patience. Yet how few of us exercise it. We try to hurry the Almighty. Like excited little children, we run on ahead, trying to quicken His steps that seem so slow to us. Tragically may have come into our lives. We have prayed for our loved ones and been well-nigh broken-hearted by delay. But let us not lose heart by delays. Speed is only a relative matter. "God is patient," says St. Augustine, because He is eternal.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

If you can afford asparagus but once or twice in a season, now is a good time to have it, for the season is at its height and prices correspondingly low. Judging by market prices May and July are peak months for peas, not June.

Strawberries, pineapple and rhubarb are all plentiful and cheap and should be throughout the month.

Meats with the exception of lamb are moderate in price. Fish is plentiful and low in price and particularly good to eat at this season. Butter continues to be reasonable. A probably temporary decrease in egg production has raised prices on this food but eggs are still good value.

Here are three reasonable dinner menus.

Individual Veal Pies
Potatoes Carrots Onions
Bread and Butter
Cornstarch Pudding with Strawberries

Medium Cost Dinner

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL REPORT MARCH 31, 1938

Annual Report of the Executive Committee

The work of the Winchester Hospital has gone forward during the past year without any radical change. The use of the Hospital has increased about 4%, reaching a total of 16,064 patient days.

Somewhat more than half the patients continue to come from communities outside of Winchester. The service required shows a little more business in the wards than in private rooms and the demand for semi-private rooms runs to about half that of either of the other two. Demand for this service seems to be increasing more than either of the others.

In November, 1937 we became a member of the Affiliated Hospital Service Corporation of Massachusetts. This is a cooperative non-profit organization for providing for the costs of hospital care through group insurance. We anticipate that in time this organization may have a material effect on the attitude of the public toward hospitalization by providing in advance for the expense involved. We were convinced that many people in our community were joining the movement and would eventually call on us for service under the contract.

During the first part of the year, we were faced with rising costs of food and supplies, the average increase for the year being 10%. We have had to increase wages generally throughout the staff, but more particularly those of the nursing staff. We feel the need of being able to increase wages further, partly in recognition of the loyalty and superior qualities of our staff, and partly to maintain our position in comparison with other hospitals as to standards of nursing ability. However, we have gone as far in wage increases as the Hospital finances permit and have not lost any ground in the quality of our personnel. Practically speaking, we have given the profits from increased business and fortunate management to the staff in increased wages. There is no question that our staff deserves all the remuneration they are getting and we are happy to have been able to go as far in this direction as we have.

An arrangement has been in operation nearly a year whereby a person in our employ continuously automatically receives an increase in wages at the completion of the first year and thereafter at stated intervals receives further increases in pay. The plan appears to promise a more satisfactory approach to this difficult problem for both the staff and the management, and so far has improved relations in the Hospital.

We have been very fortunate in the amount of money coming to us from benevolent and charitable sources. Two gifts of $10,000 each from generous and interested friends enabled us to pay off the mortgage. The gifts were designated for the purpose of paying our property with no mortgage.

The campaign for funds in October, 1937, under the leadership of Mr. Bird reached its goal of $10,000 in spite of unfavorable general business conditions. The Winton Club has continued to furnish linen for the Hospital amounting in value to $1,478.07 and has given us $500.00 additional for general purposes. The En Ka Society has continued its work in the maintenance and upkeep of the Nurses Home which represents a considerable sum of money. Also, they have contributed a delivery bed, four beds for semi-private rooms, and an incubator amounting to $688.09. The Horse Show Committee gave an operating room light $130.00 and continue to pay monthly for the upkeep of the operating room suite. The Winsor Family continued its annual gift of $250.00 in memory of their father Dr. Winsor of this town. Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Sanborn presented us with a new microscope amounting to $170.00. A large number of individuals had continued their annual contributions amounting to $3,143.00 in advance of or in addition to the general campaign. We are very grateful for the contributions and interest of these organizations and individuals. They enable us to continue a service to the community that would be impossible otherwise and assure us of the continued interest of the organizations and the community at large in the Winchester Hospital.

Every year brings new demands for replacing or improving our equipment, some of which are imperative requirements. The past year saw the completion of a fairly thorough overhauling and modernization of our heating system, replacement of two important machines in the laundry, new refrigerators in the diet kitchens, an added refrigerator in the laboratory, and a new steam table. We have just arranged for the installation of an automatic sprinkler system in the Nurses Home. This has been urgently needed for the safety of the nurses and the building, and will also effect some saving in insurance.

Interesting items among others in the upkeep of the building have been a new linoleum floor in the nursery, and sound absorbing ceilings in two utility rooms and one diet kitchen which have increased the comfort and desirability of the nearby private rooms.

We know that the coming year will require some major renewals of equipment in the main kitchen.

These needs are evidences of a healthy condition. The Hospital is being used thoroughly and effectively, and naturally is full to its nominal capacity. The staff, both nursing and housekeeping, will make no compromise as to the quality of service. To maintain the high standards they strive for requires modern equipment of proven value. We respect them for this and intend to cooperate by giving them the best we can afford.

We have frequent evidence from the Medical and Surgical Staff and from the patients of their appreciation of the service being maintained by the personnel throughout the Hospital.

Mr. Frank Crawford has continued as Business Manager, and Miss Dempsey as Superintendent of Nursing. Miss Delaney, who was on leave of absence for a year, has returned to her former position as dietitian. A cooperative arrangement between the X-Ray Technician and the Laboratory Technician has made service available in either of these departments at any time, day or night, in case of emergency.

The Executive Committee appreciates the cooperation of the Surgical Staff in arranging for a representative to be present at our meetings. Dr. Clark's regular attendance in this capacity has been of value in many of our discussions. We desire to express our thanks to him and to them for this and other evidences of cooperation.

Respectfully submitted,

FOR THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE,

Annual Report of the Staff

The staff has held regular meetings on the second Tuesday of each month during the past year except in July and August.

A special meeting of the Staff with Dr. Blaisdell of the Board of Health and Mr. Dinnery was held on April 27, 1937 to discuss the typhoid epidemic then affecting certain cities and towns in the Merrimac Valley. The Staff made certain recommendations as to the care of the cases existing in Winchester together with the quarantine regulations. With the cooperation of the physicians of Winchester, the Board of Health and the Visiting Nurse Association the epidemic was soon under control.

In May Dr. Gaylord Anderson was the speaker at the Staff meeting. His subject "The Present Situation in Regard to Typhoid and Paratyphoid Infections" proved very interesting.

A joint meeting of the Executive Committee and the Credential Committee was held in September to discuss and recommend a definite policy to the Staff in the matter of the admission to the Staff of graduates of non-recognized medical schools.

At the October meeting the following motion was passed, on recommendations of the Executive and Credential Committees: that no application for admission to the Staff be accepted unless the applicant fulfills the requirements of the American College of Surgeons for admission to the Staff of a Class A Hospital.

The average attendance of members of the Regular Staff during the past year has been nine.

The average attendance of members of the Regular, Courtesy and Consulting Staffs has been 13.

Three members of the Staff have assumed the role of patient during the past year. Two members, Dr. Harner and Dr. Quinn, have had permanent marks of identification affixed by the surgeon's scalpel. Dr. Harner has fully recuperated and Dr. Quinn is well on the road to recovery following a nephrectomy. Dr. Stephens, who suffered from the spine late last year and after recuperating in Florida, is present with us tonight.

Seven applications for membership on the Courtesy Staff have been accepted.

Two applications for admission to the Courtesy Staff and two for admission to the Regular Staff have been denied.

Two joint meetings of the Choate Hospital and Winchester Staff, one at the Choate Hospital and one at the Winchester Hospital, have been held for the purpose of discussing problems common to both institutions and to provide for cooperation between the two Hospitals particularly with regard to the X-Ray and laboratory departments.

The Staff wishes to express its gratitude to the Directors of the Hospital; to the Manager, Mr. Crawford and to the Nursing Staff for their cooperation during the past year.

Respectfully submitted,

ROGER M. BURGOYNE, M. D.,

Secretary

CONCORD SPOILED WINCHESTER'S OPENER

Concord High proved the same old jinx to Winchester's home baseball opener, winning an abbreviated Mid-die League game last Friday afternoon from the locals, 5-3, on the Shore road athletic field.

Rain cut the game to seven innings, but the way the Winchester boys were hitting, the regulation distance would have found the result the same. The locals got away to a good start when two passes, a long fly and "Art" Johnson's two base whack resulted in two runs in the very first frame. Concord put over one in the third and went into the lead in the fourth when the local infield blew up behind Di Minico, permitting three runs to trickle over.

The day was very cold for baseball and the game didn't start until about 3:45, what fans were at the game being nearly frozen before the first pitch. Only Captain Donaghey, De Teso and Johnson were able to hit Rodgers safely, but the Concord boy was as wild as a hawk, and there were several times when a good solid belt would have made lots of difference. The summary:

STRONG FOR THE COPS

If you think cops aren't regular guys and a police station isn't an especially pleasant place to spend your time, you can't prove it by "Jackie" Rogers, 7 year old Somerville boy, because "Jackie" thinks the blue coats, at least the local blue coats, are just a little bit of all right.

The little chap was noticed walking around near the boat club on Cambridge street before 8 o'clock Monday morning and a call to Headquarters resulted in his being picked up by Patrolman John Hanlon and taken to the station.

There he told the police that he and a chum had spent the night in Billerica and were on their way back to Somerville on a bicycle when the chum forced him to get off the machine near the boat club. The little fellow was tired, cold and hungry.

He wasn't long! Chief Rogers wasn't going to let down any one by that name, and soon "Jackie" was revelling in breakfast and admiring some good serviceable clothes that had been unclaimed at Headquarters for some time and proved a good fit.

When his father arrived to take him home "Jackie" was loath to leave his pals at Headquarters, and as far as the Star reporter could see the regret was mutual.

SUNSETS AND WILD FLOWERS

When you attend the Movie Chat given by Ernest Dudley Chase at the Methodist Church on the evening of May 18, you will see pictures of many beautiful sunsets taken in England and Ireland, as well as a very unusual one at the close of the trip, just as the great Normandie is coming into Southampton harbor.

In addition to these pictures, there are many covering the wild flowers of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the little thatched-roof houses are extremely attractive.

If you do not care for the historical things, such as abbeys, cathedrals and castles, you can still find much that will entertain you.

A compact, smart and practical desk stand with an extra big Carter cube of your favorite fountain pen ink, complete for 39c at the Star Office.

BOY SCOUT NOTES

The annual review of the five troops in Winchester by District Commissioners Kimball S. Archibald and Clayton A. Colcord has just been completed with the following results: Troop 7—97 points; Troop 3—88 points; Troop 2—85 points; Troop 5—83 points; Troop 1—71 points.

The reviews are a thorough inspection whereby the troop is given points for its (1) Organization, comprising active or inactive scoutmaster, assistant, bugler, and troop committee whether or not the troop uses the patrol system with patrol leaders actually leading. (2) Activities, referring to troop participation in District or Council activities, hikes, parents' nights, etc. (3) Personal check up for cleanliness, discipline, uniforms, attendance and use of sign and salute. (4) Records such as finance, attendance and advancement should be kept up to date with dues paid. (5) Program, a planned weekly and monthly program is desired.

Troop 7 is sponsored by the First Baptist Church with Ernest H. Butterworth as chairman of the troop committee and Alfred O. Weld as scoutmaster. The unusually high point total of 97 bespeaks its fine place in the community and in scouting in general.

Troop 3, the second highest, with 88 points, is sponsored by the First Congregational Church with H. A. Moore as chairman of the committee and Paul C. Dunn as scoutmaster. Rapid strides have been made by this troop and it appears possible for them to overtake the leaders before another year passes.

The Church of the Epiphany sponsors Troop 2 with Charles S. Hart as scoutmaster. This troop is always very much in the running and is a constant challenge with 80 registered scouts in the troop.

The newest troop number is 5, which meets at the Lincoln School with Mr. Ferro as scoutmaster and the liveliest of all the Winchester troops. They are only one year old and already have 31 registered scouts. They are very apt to find a higher place in the standing.

Legion troop, No. 1, under K. M. Hall's committee sponsorship with Gerald D. Curtis as scoutmaster has been spending much time and hard work in revamping and is now about ready to make things hum. A slow start often leads to a better ending.

ALL-ELECTRIC HOUSES ON THE SHORE OF WINTER POND

William J. L. Roop, president of the New England Home Builders, Inc. announces the opening for public inspection of a number of moderately priced all-electric homes on the north shore of Winter pond, east of Cambridge street, in Winchester. These houses are the first of a group of Colonial designed homes which are to be erected at this location.

Mr. Roop says that the Reynolds specification plan used in the construction of these modern homes to provide air conditioning, reflective insulation and steel reinforced plastering, adds immeasurably to the durability and investment value of the structures. The home buying public is demanding these modern comforts and construction features, Mr. Roop states, and they like the single responsibility of one manufacturer for a group of co-ordinated products.

"Today, people buying a home want wall-deep instead of skin-deep utility in their homes," Mr. Roop says. "They know and understand the fundamentals and requisites of sound, enduring construction and of modern comfort."

HERE, sir, is the bright particular star of the automotive year: a car to make you proud and happy—you can prove that anywhere on the highway these bright May days.

In it, you can know luxury in your travels and still not over-strain your budget!

Fact is, you feel like a million just sitting in this Buick!

And you know you're commanding the "tops" in power the first time you give its eager DYNAFLASH engine the gun!

At the wheel you feel the buoyant steadiness that is TORQUE-FREE SPRINGING's special gift to motoring—the firm, fleet roadability of a car that's beautifully poised in all its going.

There's no "hop" on this fast one. It doesn't "gallop" or bounce or pitch.

Its soft stout coiled steel springs let the wheels follow the road—rise to the swells, dip to the hollows—yet pass none of that lively up-and-down on to the body.

You travel level as a straightedge, thrill to turbine-smooth power that's quick as lightning—know a kind of travel-comfort that neither road nor weather mars. Yet what are the facts on costs?

This great straight-edge actually costs less than some sixes! Price almost any other car, and by the time you've added in the extra values included in Buick's figures, you've paid for the matchless performance only Buick can give you!

So don't sit idly wishing for a star! Reach up—get this one! We're ready to show you any day it costs less than you think.

"Better buy Buick!"

GERMAN EXPANSION

To the Editor of the Star:

In answer to your questions in Germany's recent activities in Central Europe, may the writer take advantage of your columns to point out one or two things which may be of interest?

First of all, Hitler is determined that Germany shall be self-sufficient in case of another blockade and to this end the people are swamped with "encirclement" propaganda. So far as this idea is being spent to produce synthetic substitutes even though the real thing can be purchased cheaper abroad and stored, this is especially true as to gasoline. Germany has made great strides in these "ersatz" goods but vegetable oils, nickel and tungsten, chromium and bauxite for the aluminum alloys, of which she uses a great quantity, she can never produce. Yet without them how can her factories run, what would happen to her air force and mechanized forces? She gets Bauxite from Yugoslavia and bauxite she must have.

This self-sufficiency mania of Hitler's is but a dream within the present frontiers of Germany; he realizes this and intends to make the dream become a reality. What is the answer? Extend the frontiers. A proposed alternative one often hears offered is to return Germany's pre-war colonies but her possessions were mostly undesirable, they had cost her more than she had received and provided only one-half of the value of her total trade, furthermore there were less than 20,000 Germans in them. This colony idea makes good propaganda but Hitler is not really interested in them. South-West Africa is one of the few ex-German colonies where white families can live; the natives of Tanganyika are not anxious to go back under German rule and there are five million of them to 8500 Europeans. Tanganyika does not provide any raw material except cotton and no great quantity of that. In Togoland and the Cameroons, Germany had less than 2000 people; she is definitely uninterested in the islands Japan received but is interested in the unexplored parts of New Guinea which she lost, there is gold and copper there.

Now if you will notice in what demands Germany does make for colonies, the emphasis is not on return of her old colonies but demand for colonies, she wants an entirely different kind of empire; but more than all, she wants the unjust stigma of brutal administration of her former colonial empire, removed. As a matter of fact her colonial policy was scientific. The colonial question is really one of prestige and diplomacy it is one of Hitler's bargaining clubs but the German people feel very strongly about it. Undoubtedly they have a legal claim and sooner or later the question must be faced, there must come a colonial redistribution and then the one weakness of the "righteous" German stand will be, that they will forget their agitation for "return our stolen colonies" and demand more fruitful territories.

As to Czechoslovakia. The Nazi movement in Czechoslovakia would lead a natural death without German agitation. The people are Bohemians (in the portion of the country claimed by Hitler) without any political associations with Germany and with a culture of their own. You cannot compare them with the people of Danzig or Memel. They are called "Sudetens Germans." But Hitler declares Czechoslovakia stole three and one-half million Germans and has treated them as a shameful minority. The discontent among these people is headed by Henlein, not a particularly strong character, and they have real grounds for complaint. There is much more unemployment in the German districts than in the Czech and the Germans have not been fairly treated in governmental positions, German schools have been closed without adequate reason. Here Benes has unwisely given Hitler a moral reason for intervention. Behind all this, Hitler knows (Czechoslovakia) is enormously wealthy and strong, the Czech frontier fortifications are amongst the most complete in Europe and he knows the Czechs will never cede any part of Bohemia to Germany. Hitler's aim to recover these Sudeten Germans can only lead to war. Don't forget the enormous munition works in Czechoslovakia.

Danzig is certainly an international question. It is very important to Poland. The people have been deprived of the political and legal rights guaranteed to them by the League and are practically nazified. But Hitler does not want to alienate Poland so it looks as though he may have gone as far as he dares here for the present.

Memel is a very sore point. The Lithuanians grabbed it in 1923 and although Germany claims the inhabitants are predominantly German, this is doubtful. It is true nine out of 10 are Protestant while Lithuania is a Catholic country. The German language is not recognized and unquestionably the Lithuanians' contempt throughout has been that of the Nazis themselves. Memel is important to Lithuania as it is its only seaport and to Germany because it brings her troops to the Russian border and stops Russia's fleet in the Gulf of Finland. Here you have the really important spot—Germany cannot count on crossing Poland, but with the small Baltic States under her control she has Russia in a most uncomfortable position. Hitler is adamant on the Memel question, it is banned as bargaining tool and he will never rest until it is again part of the Third Reich although the people of Memel are not keen about it. Hitler's pact with Poland runs to 1944 and Poland does not like the Soviet-Franco alliance. However Poland, as usual, remains on the fence—a most important perch. Finland has strong Nazi tendencies; Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania will be immediately occupied if Germany expands beyond Austria.

Thanks for the telephone calls, hope this helps you.

Very truly yours,
Mrs. K. B. Toye

CALUMET CLUB

CALUMET CLUB CLOSES

Winchester's Oldest Social Organization Ends Days

With the foreclosure sale on Tuesday, the Calumet Club on Dix street, Winchester's oldest social organization, closed. For over 68 years the club had been a symbol in town affairs, but changing conditions and activities gradually created inroads in its membership and during the past few years it had only been kept in existence through the efforts of a small group. The foreclosure of the mortgage was finally taken and the club is now being liquidated under the direction of its last treasurer, Mr. Ober Pride, assisted by Mr. Joseph W. Worthen, appointed liquidating agent.

The final meeting of the board of governors of the club was held on Saturday night.

The club was originally organized in 1870; on March 5 of that year nineteen members, Thomas P. Ayer, Arthur E. Whitney, John A. Ross, George G. Stratton, C. L. F. Bridge, George H. Carter, Henry F. Johnson, T. W. Prince and Thomas W. Spurr—met at Mr. Spurr's house and laid the foundation for the "Winchester Young Men's Association." A few days later the club was finally organized, provided with a president—Mr. Ayer—a constitution and by-laws and a home—a room in Lyceum Building.

In its early years the Young Men's Association not only afforded a congenial social life for its members but was active in providing entertainment, lectures, concerts, amateur dramatics and dancing parties for the rest of the town.

It soon outgrew its single room in the Lyceum Building and rented a room, other, and with the completion of the Miller Block on Pleasant street (now Mt. Vernon street), it occupied the whole second floor of that building for its club rooms. At about the same time, April 10, 1886—the association voted to change its name to the Calumet Club, and by 1892 it had so increased in membership that it was able to buy on Dix street the next north of the Congregational Church and build thereon the commodious and attractive club house it had since occupied.

The Calumet Club has included in its membership a large proportion of townsmen who have been active in the affairs of Winchester. At one time its roll contained 350 names, the list including many now distinguished elsewhere, and has been favored by many as a desirable plant for the Winchester Recreational Center since this feature of our town government bids fair to become a permanent fixture.

The present owner of the property is the Winchester National Bank, and the fittings of the large club house will be sold under the direction of the bank. Just what will be the final disposition of the property is not determined. It has been variously considered for purchase by the Masonic bodies in Winchester, the Elks and others, and has been favored by many as a desirable plant for the Winchester Recreational Center since this feature of our town government bids fair to become a permanent fixture.

RETURNED FROM ARIZONA

Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Goddu of Cliff street are back in town after visiting Mr. Goddu's brother, Mr. Dana Goddu, at Cave Creek, Phoenix, Ariz. Dana returned east with them and will spend the summer in Winchester.

The Goddus saw many of the points of interest in the far west, visiting the Grand Canyon, the Carlsbad Caverns and the Petrified Forest, as well as taking a sight-seeing trip into Old Mexico. They encountered floods and snow, and has been favored by many as a desirable plant for the Winchester Recreational Center since this feature of our town government bids fair to become a permanent fixture.

As a memento of their visit Mr. and Mrs. Goddu brought back a 77 inch bull snake skin from a snake which their car struck on a country road.

FIRE IN BUSINESS BLOCK AVERTED

What might have been a serious fire was prevented last Friday night at 9:45 when Mr. William H. Hevey, a well known apothecary, was notified by a passer-by that there was a strong smell of smoke about the market in his back occupied by Carter & Young. Mr. Hevey and Patrolman Clarence P. Dunbury went at once to investigate and notified the Fire Department.

Upon arrival the firemen found smoke issuing from a pile of sawdust in the basement of the market. The condition was promptly corrected and any more serious consequences prevented.

SHERARRED CLAY

Sherarred Clay, retired Boston men's wear dealer and long identified with the glove business in New England, died Sunday evening, May 8, at his home, 229 Lloyd street, after a three weeks' illness with heart disease. He had been for some time in failing health.

Mr. Clay was 79 years old and a native of Plymouth, N. H., the son of Jonathan and Mary Gilman. He received his education in the Plymouth schools and as a youth became associated with Jason Fletcher Draper of the Draper, Maynard Company who taught him the glove business. At the age of 21 he was the head of the Granite State Glove Company, a thriving glove business at Littleton, N. H., and later was associated with the Merrimac Glove Company in Warner, N. H.

From Warner Mr. Clay came to Boston in 1897 to install and conduct a glove department for the well known firm of Moore & Smith, hatmakers, on Devonshire street. After the death of Mr. Moore the business was reorganized as a stock company under the name of Moore, Smith & Company. In 1897 Mr. Clay married Belle A. Pitman of Elmire, Vt., who died three years ago. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Luhamia J. Morrill of Chester, Vt.; a brother, Elmer X. Clay of Plymouth, N. H.; and a niece, Mrs. Ethel Clay Bartlett of Wollaston.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon at the late residence with Rev. George A. Butters, pastor of the Congregational Church, officiating. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery at Plymouth, N. H.

Mr. Clay was a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and at the time when the late Calvin Coolidge was Governor of Massachusetts was a member of the foreign relations Committee which waited upon him. He was a member of the Masonic Lodge and Knights Templar in Littleton, N. H., of Winchester Royal Arch Chapter and of the Crawford Memorial M. E. Church. He came to Winchester from Dorchester 33 years ago and had since made his home here.

In 1897 Mr. Clay married Belle A. Pitman of Elmire, Vt., who died three years ago. He leaves a sister, Mrs. Luhamia J. Morrill of Chester, Vt.; a brother, Elmer X. Clay of Plymouth, N. H.; and a niece, Mrs. Ethel Clay Bartlett of Wollaston.

MRS. MINNIE M. HAWES

Mrs. Minnie M. Hawes, widow of Daniel Webster Hawes, for many years one of Winchester's prominent business men and member of the firm of Kelley & Hawes Co., died Tuesday afternoon, May 10, at her home, 7 Sturges street, after a long illness.

Mrs. Hawes was the daughter of Marshall and Hulda Frances (Fogg) Gibbs. NATIONAL HOSPITAL DAY CELEBRATED LOCALLY

This week hospitals throughout the nation observed National Hospital Day. It is most fitting that this day should be observed in the hospital which Florence Nightingale whose contribution to the development of nursing was an important step in the development of hospitals everywhere.

Such a celebration brings to mind that Winchester shares the good fortune of many towns and cities throughout the land in having a well equipped, modern hospital. Mr. Frank Crawford, the manager of the general hospital, said that several people had been to visit the Winchester Hospital on the 12th in keeping with National Hospital Day. "Our doors are open day and night to receive the sick and injured," he went on to say, "but we always enjoy showing those interested in our community hospital our facilities—even though they are not patients."

The success of ventures, such as our own local hospital, is based on the whole-hearted support of generous citizens; the meticulous services of local officers; the efficient organization of the hospital staff itself. There is no doubt in the minds of all our townsmen that the existence of such a helpful institution right in the heart of our town is a privilege to all individually and collectively.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Eight members were absent from the meeting of May 12, one of whom has already made up for his absence. With all districts in the USNCB area reporting, the grand average of attendance for March, 1938 was 36.20 per cent, the highest figure in three years. In connection with Rotary the word "depression" has little significance.

"Bill" Nichols acted as Sergeant-at-Arms today; Sergeant Frank was unexpectedly prevented from attending this meeting.
"Bill" Priest was last located in New Mexico on the way East, we hope.
That lobster dinner which has been promised for 10, these many moons was very much in evidence today and in quality beyond reproach. And so the committee is temporarily free from molestation.

The following list of nominations for officers to serve the club for 1938-39 was submitted by George Davidson, chairman of the nominating committee and forthwith elected, viz:

President—Ralph H. Bonnell.
Vice President—Harry E. Damon, Jr.
Secretary—Frank H. Knight.
Treasurer—G. Dwight Cabot.
Ways and Means—Edmund C. Stetson, Warren A. Hersey, Edmund C. Stetson.

The May "Rotarian"! Have you read your copy? Every month, and with good reason, we are told and say that the current issue of this outstanding magazine is an improvement over that of the previous month. Be a "Rotarian" fan! You can't lose.

At the President's Club on May 11 representing this Rotary at the District Spring Conference in Providence, we will have a most interesting report for us next week. This Conference is not only the oldest Rotary history since, owing to the sub-division of the 19th district, three District Governors are to be elected at Providence.

Our guest speaker at the current assembly was Rev. Crawford O. Smith, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Lexington. Mr. Smith delivered a brilliant address on the subject, "Friendship," a word which may justly be considered to represent a pillar of Rotary. By virtue of his inspiring words the speaker was instrumental in making us better Rotarians.

We have deep appreciation for his kindness in bringing this message to us, as well as for the services of Past President Harry Winn who made it possible for us to hear Rev. Mr. Smith. Come to the Winchester Country Club on May 19. Our meetings are now one of the fullest possible attendance.

Percentage of attendance, May 5—85.71 per cent.

TO CHOOSE A. A. PRESIDENT

The next president of the Winchester High School Athletic Association will be chosen in a novel manner at a special assembly to be held at the school on next Wednesday.

From 15 candidates chosen by the school three have been selected as final candidates and this trio will address the assembly on Wednesday, giving their qualifications for the office of president and the platform on which they seek election.

After hearing the candidates the assembly will elect a president, and also four members of the executive board who will be chosen from eight prospective candidates.

ELMER JOSEPH THOMPSON

Funeral services for Elmer Joseph Thompson, 29, of Amherst, killed Sunday, May 8, in an automobile accident on the Hadley-Amherst highway, were held Tuesday morning at the home of his sister, Mrs. Joseph T. McCauley, 39 Wildwood street. High mass of requiem was celebrated in St. Mary's Church, and interment was in Mt. Benedict Cemetery, West Roxbury.

Mr. Thompson suffered fatal injuries when the automobile in which he was riding with Melvin H. Wane-gar, 26, of Montague and John J. Foley, 38 of New York City, struck the stone abutment of a railroad underpass at a sharp curve in the road. He and Wane-gar were pinned in the wreckage of the car and met instant death.

Mr. Thompson was born in Boston, educated at Brookline High School and at Massachusetts State College, from which he was graduated with the class of 1932. He played both football and baseball at college, and was a prominent lawyer, associated with the firm of Hemenway & Hemenway, in which President Calvin Coolidge was a former partner.

Besides his sister, Mrs. McCauley, he leaves another sister, Mrs. Joseph A. Blackham of Brookline, and three brothers, Edwin L., Thomas A., both of Brookline; and William A. Thompson of Nutley, N. J.

JUNIOR-SENIOR PROM

Soft lights, gay decorations, delicious refreshments, smooth dancers and over all the catchy notes of Ken Reeves' Orchestra—this was the event of the year—the Junior-Senior prom, "The Spring Swing." More than 300 gay young people flocked to the high school gym last Saturday evening to enjoy one of the most successful Proms in recent years.

The gym was hardly recognizable after the excellent work done by the Prom committee. Musical staffs in varied colors decorated the walls while inflated balloons were clustered in nets above the merry throng of dancers. The committee responsible for the unusual and very attractive setting was as follows: Gale Angus, chairman; Clemon E. Barksdale, William Croughwell, Robert Gardner, John Hersom, Shirley Somerby, Michael Vozzella, John Downs, Barbara Hayden, Jean Howard, Edward Kenney, Margaret McVally, Richard Swanson, Gray Twombly.

Much of the credit for the great success of the Prom, however, goes to Mrs. Stacy and Mr. Butters of the high school faculty whose advice and support have for many years made it a most pleasant and enjoyable event.

William Burke and Richard Grosvenor very willingly took the tickets and the latter with William Croughwell also took charge of ushering after the first dance. The corps of ushers led by Peter Sibley included Philip Quinn, Ben Schneider, Bradford Berling, William Croughwell, Douglas Graham and Lincoln Grindie. Upon arrival, each couple was ushered through the receiving line which included Mr. and Mrs. James J. Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Wade L. Grindie, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Lybeck, Senior Class President, Daniel De-loray and his aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Collins and Junior Class President, John Downs and his mother, Mrs. John W. Downs.

Special attention should be called to the attractive dance programs, done in the school colors, black and red, which were skillfully designed by Frances Glidden.

During the evening punch was served with John Williams and Charles Bacon behind the bar, and at intermission many couples refreshed themselves with the delicious ice cream that was on hand.

The high spot of the evening, in the minds of most people, was the singing of "Minnie the Moocher" by a member of the orchestra with the whole assemblage joining in on the "la-dee-ah-dee-ahs."

However, 11:30 came all too soon and with it the realization that another Prom was history—but very memorable history. The dancers all left with a feeling of thankfulness for an evening well spent and highly enjoyed.

ALL PLAY AND NO WORK AT EPIPHANY'S LAST TUES-DAY GATHERING

No reports of things done; no brow-wrinkling plans for things yet to do. Just cheerful talk of the treks and flittings that vacation days will bring, and news of the pleasant shores and hilltops where family caravans have rested in other summers—over that kindly dish of the New England springtime, lobster. That is the program which the Jordan Group announces for their annual luncheon, to which the parish of the Epiphany and all Winchester is invited at 1 o'clock, Tuesday, May 17. And after the luncheon, cards.

The parish hall and the tables will be decorated with spring plants and blossoms by Mrs. Harry Marchant and Mrs. Ove Mortensen.

There will be prizes at each card table. These are in charge of Mrs. Malcolm Cook and Mrs. Gerald Curtis.

In preparing and serving the luncheon the committee will be Mrs. Fred Archer, Mrs. John Aitchison, Mrs. Ray Manger, Mrs. James Riley, Mrs. S. Walter Taber and Mrs. Charles Wansker.

The whole group, under the direction of Mrs. Archibald Jordan, is actively selling the luncheon tickets.

TON LEAGUE

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Winchester Junior Florence Crittenton League was held at the home of Mrs. Elwell R. Butterworth, 107 Cambridge street, on Tuesday evening, May 10. The annual reports were read and the new officers for the next year were elected as follows: Mrs. Richard Harlow, president; Mrs. Everett Stone, vice-president; Miss Frances Peirce, secretary; Miss Helen Nowell, treasurer. Following the business meeting Miss Fowler of the Florence Crittenton Home gave a report of the Home for the past year.

The guest speaker of the evening was Dr. Helen I. McGillicuddy of the Massachusetts Society for Social Hygiene, who gave a very interesting talk on "What the Public Knows About Social Hygiene." An enjoyable social hour followed.

The secretary's report for the year 1937-38 was read as follows:

"The first meeting of this year was held at Mrs. Richard Harlow's on Tuesday, Oct. 13. After the business meeting, a talk was given by Mrs. Gentry, head of the district nursing association in Winchester.

"The first activity of the Juniors was a Marionette show, and a sale of hand-made pewter at the annual bazaar at the Copley Plaza, held in November, and on Nov. 9, at a special meeting held at Mrs. Everett Stone's, Gretchen Stone, the chairman of the bazaar, gave a report which showed a profit of $14.30.

"On Dec. 10, under the able direction of Dorothy Dunn, a White Elephant Sale was held in the Locatelli Building. All the girls were asked to donate at least five articles, and the sale was a great success, giving us another sum of about $60.

"About 20 girls went out to the home on the Wednesday evening before Christmas, taking movies, ice cream and cake and a small present for each of the girls.

"At an invitation from the Med-ford Junior Circle we met with them at the home of Mrs. L. O. White in Medford on Jan. 4 and heard a very interesting talk by Mrs. H. McKnight Franchot on "American Home Making." We had a very pleasant evening getting acquainted with our Med-ford neighbors and hope that perhaps next year we may return their hospitality.

"Our March meeting was held at Mrs. Donald Sutherland's where we heard a talk on "Adoption" by Mrs. Sanderson of the Maternity Home. On March 17 and 18 the Juniors helped at the sale of articles made by the blind.

"As for our spring activity, the Juniors gave a series of small bridge parties.

"We would like to extend again our thanks to our President, Mabel Tompkins, to the girls and the mothers who have so kindly opened their homes for our meetings and to all those who have helped to make this year a pleasant and worthwhile one for the success of the Florence Crittenton Circle."

Frances Peirce,
Secretary

WINCHESTER CHOIR GIRLS TAKE PART IN BOSTON SERVICE

At 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon, May 8, girls of the Epiphany Church School Choir presented the Lenten offering of the school at Trinity Church, Boston. All the mite box offerings made by church schools of the Diocese of Massachusetts were presented at the same hour in five simultaneous services held at different cities of the Diocese. Winchester choristers joined with several hundred others from all the parishes of the Boston area in the festival service at Trinity.

The vestments of the different choirs, individual in color and design, make a beautiful and interesting procession, and each year in addition to those who find places within the church many spectators look on as the line makes its march outside Trinity, here figures in scarlet following a church school banner of white and gold held high by a slender young lad, here blue veils falling in soft folds above vestments of darker blue.

The speaker at the Trinity service had just come from one of the far lands to which the coins of the children's self-denial will go, India. The Rev. George Van Bibber Shriver went five years ago from the Cambridge Theological School to Southern India to be the first missionary from the Episcopal Church of the United States in Dornakal. He pictured his adopted land in terms that were right before the eyes of his young audience; a house of a whole family only as big as three of the Trinity pews, with one corner kitchen another corner the children's sleeping-place; a whole village of 350 souls that could go inside Trinity, with streets no wider than the church aisles; his parish of 85 villages like this, some of the roads to them passable for his bicycle, some to be jolted over in bullock carts, some only jungle trails to be followed afoot.

It is hard for American children to conceive of a land so poor that a boy must begin working in the fields when only 8 years old. It put a new value on the dollars that Epiphany was giving to realize that three families in India would have to live a whole year on a sum not much larger. The Winchester offering was carried to the altar by Marie Barron. Other choristers from Epiphany were Frances Angas, Joan Begg, Jacqueline Barnes, Charlotte Bergersen, Barbara Booth, Barbara Bowes, Joy Eldridge, Marjorie Geerts, Jacqueline Gerts, June Moffette, Alice Neely, Sally Osborne and Nancy Snow. For this special service the Winchester choir was augmented by a group of former members: Roberta Fogg, Muriel Hann, Elizabeth Nichols, Mildred Rogers, Sally Sharon, Jean Stillman and Nancy Wyman.

We are now equipped to stamp billfolds, fountain pens with names or initials in either gold or silver leaf. The Winchester Star, 3 Church street, phone Win. 0029.

THE SPIRIT OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA

The members of the Unitarian Men's Club and their friends are promised an unusual experience at their next dinner and final meeting for the church year, Friday, May 27. Dr. Louis C. Cornish will speak informally on the inner life of that country which, at the present moment is riveting the attention of all the world. He will speak on, "The Soul of Czechoslovakia." Entrusted with a delicate mission to this country Dr. Cornish met the late President Masaryk and other leaders. He will speak with authority and charm and will be glad to answer questions. All Winchester men are invited.

WYMAN SCHOOL NEWS

Miss Wallace's sixth grade gave its last assembly Tuesday, April 26. It was in observance of "Kindness to Animals" week. It showed the services animals do for us. One of the plays showed how guinea pigs aid in the prevention of disease. The other play was how justice was done to a dumb animal who could not ask for kindness. The children also displayed the posters they had made showing what animals do for us.

W. D. GODDARD ON "THE BREATH OF GOD"

Wednesday evening, May 18, William D. Goddard of Woburn Public Library will give one of his popular "Comparative Readings" at the mid-week service of Winchester Baptist Church.

The title of the particular program selected is "The Breath of God in Nature and in the Bible." It includes Shelley's famous "Ode to the West Wind" which inspired Hutchinson's vision of "The Valley of Dry Bones," the "Comparative Readings" of the wind by Stevenson and Eugene Field; and passes on to an interpretive reading of the glorious 104th Psalm, Ezekiel's vision of "The Valley of Dry Bones," the "Spirit that Moved upon the Waters" in Genesis I, and the dialogue between Jesus and Nicodemus in the Gospel of John.

As a special feature Wednesday evening Mr. Goddard will introduce a recitation of Coleridge's familiar "Hymn Before Mont Blanc" or "Hymn Before Sunrise in the Vale of Chamouni," accompanied by lantern slides. These slides are made from colored postal cards selected on purpose to illustrate Mr. Goddard's recitation of the poem by friends who visited Mont Blanc a few years ago.

Mr. Goddard's readings and lecture-recitals have always been well received wherever he has given them, in Providence and Pawtucket, in Hartford and New Haven High Schools, and in the Boston Public Library.

WOMEN'S REBELLION

Winchester, Mass.,
May 12, 1938

My dear Mr. Wilson:
I wonder if you would care to give a little space to what seems to many of the women all over the country a wonderful opportunity for constructive work toward straightening out the badly tangled National situation, and with particular stress laid upon the financial outlook.

For several years I have felt that while on every side one heard criticism and condemnation, no one did anything to, so to speak, spike it, or make a move in the right direction. Two weeks ago we read in the New York Times, and in the Transcript of the Women's Rebellion started in Suffern, N. Y., by two housewives, Mrs. Louise C. Bispham, wife of the rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Sarah Oliver Hulswit, wife of the manager of the Rockland County (N. Y.) Gas Co. The leaflet which they drew up, 30,000 of which they distributed, and which was given in the paper, seemed so sane and so much to the point that I wired them saying I was interested and was calling a meeting at my home and would appreciate having a few of their leaflets. I called several friends, asked each to ask three more, and it resulted in my having 53 here on the following Tuesday. We decided to form a non-partisan group to study in what way we could be most effective in combating the terrific spending and often ill-judged apportionment in both State and National affairs, and listened to a very interesting address by Mrs. Robert W. Lovett of the Mass. Federation of Taxpayers. We had a discussion and question period following. We had a second meeting today when between 75 and 80 were present and listened to an address by Mrs. Woodward of the National Economy League. We then elected a committee, headed by Mrs. Rae Horner to look up with Mrs. Woodward's help what it is advisable for us to study this summer, and are to have a meeting on May 24, at 10:30 a. m., the place to be determined as soon as possible, and when we have decided upon it I will get word to you, as we would welcome any women who would be interested to join us, and we feel we can best get through the columns of your paper. We are asking 50 cents dues to defray the costs, but would like all those interested to come to this next meeting whether they carry dues or not. We are very much encouraged at the great interest shown and certainly hope we may bring about, or at least help, some of the much-needed reforms.

We have already got a great many of the fliers in circulation, and any who would like them may have them by applying to me. I am sending a few for your personal use.
Sincerely yours,
Elise M. Downer

JUNIOR FORTNIGHTLY CLUB

The annual meeting of the Junior Fortnightly Club of Winchester met at Seiler's 1775 House Monday night to elect officers for the coming year. More than 30 members of the club met for dinner at 6:30 p. m. in one of the delightful dining rooms at the historic old house. Miss Eleanor M. Allen of this town, president for 1937-38, was re-elected for the coming year. Names of other officers will be announced at a later date.

JUNIOR HIGH P. T. A. ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Junior High Parent-Teachers' Association, was held Friday evening, May 6, at 8 o'clock in the high school auditorium.

Mrs. Franklin Lane, president of the association during the past year, opened the meeting and called for reports to be read by the various officers. She then introduced Mrs. Jesse Wilson, the new president, who expressed her desire to be of help to both the parents and the teachers of Junior High pupils.

The meeting was adjourned to the gymnasium, where a fine exhibition was given by both the boys' and girls' gym teams of the seventh and eighth grades.

The following is the report of the secretary, Mrs. Earl Dohb, for the year 1937-38:
The Junior High School Parent-Teachers' Association has held three meetings during the year, planned by Mrs. Gilbert Tapley, chairman of the program committee.

The first meeting, an open house was held on Oct. 20. Each teacher received the parents in his or her room where work done by the pupils was on display. Mrs. Jesse Wilson arranged for two hostesses in each room to introduce the parents to the teachers. Dues were collected by Mrs. Warren Maynard, treasurer, and refreshments served in the upper hall, under the direction of Mrs. Marcus Fowler. There was an attendance of over 200, many fathers being present.

Mrs. Lane presided at the meeting held on Dec. 17 in the high school auditorium. The Boys' and Girls' Glee Club and Orchestra gave a splendid concert under the direction of Miss Page, supervisor of music. There was an operetta by the Glee Club and selection of carols by the orchestra. Miss Nancy and Lorraine Nickerson were guest artists playing the violin and harp. The hall was most effectively decorated with Christmas greens by Mrs. Frank Williams and her committee. Refreshments under the direction of Mrs. Gustave Josephson and a social hour were enjoyed in the gymnasium by over 500 parents and friends.

On Oct. 6, Mrs. Lane opened her home for a "get acquainted" tea held for the board and the teachers. Mrs. Oboe Price, chairman of Ways and Means arranged for the movie night held on Feb. 12. A capacity house attended the performance of "Victoria the Great," and, as a result of this enterprise, we were able to give $50 to the Scholarship Fund.

Mrs. Martin Swanson, chairman of publicity, has kept the public well informed of our activities through the Winchester Star.

There have been held three board meetings during the year. At the first meeting Mr. Dickman was present and gave us an informal talk about school problems. He expressed his desire to be of assistance whenever he was needed.

It has been voted to purchase 12 dozen coffee spoons as a gift to the Junior High School.

Respectfully submitted,
Constance Doub,
Secretary

TRAIN STOPS AT WEDGE MERE

To the Editor of the Star:
April 12th and 28th and August 20th in 1937 Mr. H. F. McCarthy, passenger traffic manager of the B. & M. R. R. was corresponded with in regard to having train 3318 leaving Winchester at 9:52 a. m. make a stop at Wedgemere and having train 3315 leaving Boston at 12:40 p. m. stop at Wedgemere daily, instead of only Saturday.

These schedule changes have been accepted, are now in full force, and have decided bonus in accommodating Wedgemere patrons.

B. & M. officials furthermore express their intention of doing away with the inconvenient and dangerous stop at the Bacon street end of the plank walk, by installing a ramp as soon as heavy repairs are required.

EPIPHANY SERVICE LEAGUE CHOOSES LEADERS

Officers for the Church Service League in the parish of the Epiphany, elected at the annual meeting, May 10, will be a happy mingling of old and new, of tried experience and fresh initiative. The League starts gratefully into a second biennium under the general leadership of Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer, who was re-elected the first vice president. The rector of the parish, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley, is president of the Service League; holding this position by his office it is true, but confirmed in it by the cordial desire of the women of the parish to have his help and counsel in all undertakings. Finances and records of the League remain in the same hands, Mrs. Dunbar Carpenter, treasurer, and Mrs. James Cleave, secretary. Mrs. Clifford Towner continues as parish treasurer of the Women's United Thank Offering, Mrs. George Byrne as the head of the Altar Guild and Mrs. Newton Lamson of the Church Periodical Club. The parish will again have the service of Mrs. Malcolm Nichols as head of the department of social service, which in the coming year will, to meet Bishop Sherill's suggestion, draw together a committee for closer co-operation within the parish and the community and for active participation in diocesan welfare work. New representatives for two of the dozen activities are Mrs. R. K. Miller for the Sailor's Haven and the Marine Hospital, and Mrs. Clarence Perkins for the Penny Wise Thrift Shop.

The following new members of the League council were elected:
Second Vice President—Mrs. Gerald Y. Hills
Secretary—Mrs. Arthur K. Farrell
Hospitality—Mrs. Warren Shemaker
Library—Mrs. Ellsworth Snow
Vestments—Mrs. Arthur K. Farrell
Parish Housekeeper—Mrs. John D. Nichols
Kitchen Housekeeper—Mrs. Blanche Ford
Evening Prayers—Mrs. W. James Horn
Ways and Means—Mrs. William K. Martens
Bible reports and the various activities of the Service League in the past year were like a hill-top survey of the parish interests and their progress. There were gratifying tangible results, things that can be counted, like the increase in the number of surgical dressings made by Mrs. Alfred Sweet's committee, 3,000 more for Winchester Hospital this year than the parish had prepared the year before; like the dollars that the indefatigable evening branch makes for the special little mountain of parish burden that its faith gallantly four years ago undertook to move. Equally heartening were intangible things that cannot be caught in the net of statistics, but that are the very life blood and heart beat of a parish.

The treasurer had reminded the league of a criticism that is sometimes made of a parish, "It does a lot for itself, and little for anybody else," and had suggested that in hearing reports the League should listen for those things that are done for people outside our parish. They were not lacking; money and things sent as near as to our own Boston city mission and to a winter-beset farm home in Maine and as far as to China and to the Forest Hospital in Africa; within our own church a gift from this Altar Guild to be spread on the altar in a Nebraska mission, and ignoring all church and parish aid to help Dr. Albert Schweitzer's fight against all manner of darkness in the dark continent. Epiphany is not doing enough outside its parish to make it paralyzed with complacency, but it is not unaware of a world beyond Winchester.

In addition to reports some plans for next year's work were announced. The tea for new-comers to the parish will be given early in October and will be in charge of Mrs. Gerald Y. Hills and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer. The autumn sale set for Nov. 4, will be under the leadership of Mrs. Warren Shemaker.

In January the Tuesday Luncheon Group will again present Mrs. Phyllis Thaxter reading on Friday afternoons new plays that will be the notable Broadway successes. Leadership of the Tuesday group will continue to be that of Mrs. Warren Jenney.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB OPEN HOUSE

The sailing committee announces a most interesting evening for Wednesday, May 18. Mr. Jack Wood, sailing instructor of the U. S. Navy, U. S. In view of the wide spread interest in sailing, it was decided to have the meeting an open house and invite all sailing enthusiasts of Winchester to be present. An informal violoncello and light refreshments will be served.

In view of the splash regatta, being held Sunday afternoon, May 15, the free for all handicap race will be held at 9:30 Sunday morning.

WILL VISIT ENGLAND, SCOTLAND AND IRELAND

On the evening of May 18, when Mr. Chase is to show his color Travel Pictures at the Methodist Church, there will be shown pictures taken during a 5300-mile automobile trip through many interesting portions of England, Scotland and Ireland. This land cruise starts at Southampton, whence we journey through beautiful Devonshire on up to Bath; then cutting across England, visit among other places Boston, Ely, Peterborough, York, and Durham; then going into Scotland we will stop, of course, at Edinburgh for pictures there, and then journey north to St. Andrews, through the Bruce country, the Trossachs, and up to Inverness; then, turning south, we pass some of the famous lochs and glens down into the Bobbie Burns country, and from thence by boat over to Ireland, where we will circumscribe that island, visiting many of the picturesque places, and especially will we witness the ceremony of "kissing the Blarney Stone." Returning to England, we stop a few days in the lake district, then travel in a southerly direction, hitting Chester, Chatsworth, Broadwade and many other beauty spots. During three days in London some fine pictures are to be seen, and then the trip ends through Canterbury, Rye, Battle Abbey, Winchester, Salisbury and Southampton.

All the pictures are in natural colors and should be greatly enjoyed by anyone who enjoys travel.

HORACE FORD IN NEW QUARTERS

One of the most attractive ice cream shops and restaurants in this vicinity is the new establishment opened last week by Horace Ford at 7 and 9 Winchester terrace in the new wing of the Locatelli Building. The shop may be reached either through the attractive courtyard from Thompson street or along the new walk from either Main street or Waterfield road.

Modelled much after an old-fashioned coffee shop, the new shop has all the attractiveness of Colonial design, with high wainscoting of knotty pine stained to match the maple of the low-backed booths, tables, chairs and fountain shell.

The walls are plain buff or covered with paper having a buff ground and nautical figures in brown and orange. The ceiling is white stipple and the fixtures replicas of old Colonial lamps, those on the wall having round metal reflectors. Individual maple candle-stick lamps are in the booths and on the tables.

Covering the floor is an attractive linoleum shading from deep slate to green with a light-green square design and green leaflets. Attractive rust-colored drapes, shot with harmonizing colors edge the small-paned windows and on the wide window-ledges fronting the river are brass candlesticks, a small brass tea-kettle and a model of an old fashioned coach.

The main room of the shop contains the fountain and both booths and tables. A smaller room, looking out into the courtyard is slightly above the main room and is furnished exclusively with tables.

For the quick and efficient preparation of food is included in the modern kitchen, and like Ford's old shop, the new establishment is completely air-conditioned.

Manager Benjamin W. Hills states that the new shop will accommodate about 60 persons. Entirely new is the roof garden with accommodations for about 20 persons who like to eat out-of-doors.

The outlook, especially from the main shop is most attractive, the wide leaded windows affording a view of the river and across the Parkway to the Unitarian Church and High School corner.

BELMONT MIDDLESEX TRACK WINNER

Wins Sixth Title, Winchester in Second Place

"Mel" Wenner's Belmont High School track team won its sixth Middlesex interscholastic title in eight starts last Saturday afternoon at the Belmont Athletic Field, scoring 107 points for an overwhelming triumph. Winchester totalled 50½ to finish second, Maynard had 43½ for third, and Lexington 39½ for fourth. Wakefield tallied 28½ and Concord, 20. The meet was divided into three divisions, varsity, junior varsity and freshman-sophomore. Belmont swept all three divisions.

Some creditable performances were recorded in the varsity division where Winchester found the going a bit too fast. If the timing was accurate, the Middlesex tracksters are not suffering too much by comparison with those in other circuits. Stanley Fuller's third in the half-mile was Winchester's only varsity place.

Joseph Connolly won the junior varsity mile for Winchester and Spencer Cary topped the shotput. Fuller was fourth in the 220, Finger was second in the quarter, Darling third in the half, McPartlin second in the mile, Donahue fourth in the mile, Crandall third in the broad jump and Twombly third in the shot for the locals' remaining points.

In the freshman-sophomore competition Stephen Holmes got under 60 seconds to win the quarter, Peter Galluffo won the shot and Phil Twombly tied with Creeden of Wakefield in the high jump. Davis picked up third in the half and Holmes came back to gain a fourth place tie with Sparrow of Belmont in the high jump.

W. C. T. U.

In an issue of The Union Signal of a year ago, there are some startling statements from the manufacturers of beverage alcohol in their own words. Read them and judge for yourself how subtly and persistently they are accomplishing their purpose. Most of these are dated 1936. It is alarming to think how far they have advanced in two years.

Their Own Words:
"Appeal to the coming generation . . . It is the teaching you do now that is going to help you increase your percentage of beer consumed by women. Supply mothers and housewives with up-to-date recipes; coax them to write in to get menus. Appeal to their eyes, their vanity, and your battle is won."

"Devote one week out of each month to creating advertising with women customers exclusively in mind. Arrange window displays definitely aimed at luring women into your store."

"Cultivate the public, don't worry about the politicians. We control millions of votes and through them the industry can be preserved."

"We need to understand the habits of women and the younger generation. Make youth liquor conscious. . . Make it smart to drink wine."

"Brewers have come to the conclusion that if they are to widen their market, they must appeal more and more to the wife and to women in general. The chief function of the billboard of today is to advertise media to create the power of suggestion. A woman attracted by an attractive, well-shaped woman shown drinking beer in billboard copy may be 'sold' more quickly than by a dozen sales talks."

"The reborn brewery industry is 'Big Business'. With annual sales approximately three quarters of a billion dollars there is no doubt about it. It is exceeded only by Steel, Motors, Oil, and a few others."

Members of the Police force met Wednesday afternoon at Headquarters to draw for summer vacations.

Officer John Hogan drew the first two week off, commencing June 13, and Officer John Regan will be the last to check out, leaving Oct. 3. Sgt. Joseph Derro will be the first superior officer to have his vacation, starting June 21.

There were several proposals to trade times drawn and a number seemed to want the two weeks drawn by Officer Henry Dempsey. There was much consulting of calendars and a good deal of discussion but nothing definite in the way of "swaps" had been worked as the reporter left.

Sgt. Thomas Cassidy and Officer James Farrell expressed themselves as "delighted" with the times they drew from the hat.

It is reported that some excitement occurred in connection with the high school junior-senior prom last Saturday evening when a number of couples were refused admission as the result of arriving after the doors had been closed at 9 o'clock. School authorities stated that the dead-line had been announced in advance and were adamant in their determination to exclude late comers. A few waited around until after 10:30 and it is reported, finally were admitted. It is quite likely that punctuality will be more marked another year, and since the dance was scheduled to commence at 8 o'clock those who hadn't arrived by then had been quite a while on the way.

Prominent in the arrangements for the annual Bradford prom which brought to Bradford Junior College (Bradford), men from practically every eastern college was Miss Joan Jackson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loring P. Gleason of Worthen road.

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR
Lecture

The gracious hospitality of Mrs. Franklin Reed Kimball in opening her spacious home at 2117 Massachusetts avenue, Lexington made the last lecture sponsored by the Winchester Chapter of the Infant Saviour one long to be remembered. The house is early American and furnished in authentic antiques belonging to the family which Mrs. Kimball proudly displayed. It was hard for guests to assemble into the dining room for coffee before entering the living room where the lecture was held. Mrs. Angelo Ghirardini and Mrs. H. G. Osterberg were in charge of the coffee.

The Rev. Fr. Terence Conolly of Boston College, instructor of English in the advanced school for graduates addressed the group on "The Life of Gilbert K. Chesterton. A musical trio composed of Gertrude Hintlin, violinist; May Schumann, piano and Inez Arzello, cello, furnished the music. Mrs. Whalen was the soloist and was accompanied by the trio.

BUSY WEEK FOR BALL TOSSERS

Next week looms as a busy one for the Winchester High School baseball team with three regularly scheduled games and a postponed game to be played.

The Belmont game postponed from last Friday will be played Monday afternoon at Belmont and on Tuesday, Lexington comes to the Shore road athletic field for a second Middlesex League engagement.

Thursday afternoon Winchester plays its only game with its ancient rival, Woburn on the tanners' home field, and Saturday afternoon the locals are scheduled to play another league game.

Four games in a week will constitute quite a test for the local pitching staff but with "Art" and "Charlie" Johnson and Diminico around Winchester is a lot better off than was the case when Francis Tansey was pitching the locals to a Mystic League flag awhile back. The sturdy little south-paw's record of four wins in four starts in a single week still stands, and is likely to. Tansey doesn't happen along very often.

EN KA MOVIE NIGHT GALA AFFAIR

Many dinner parties preceded the En Ka movie night at the Winchester Theatre Wednesday evening of this week. En Ka members, husbands and friends were out in full force to see the pictures of past Street Fairs and to view the grand prizes to be given away at the En Ka Fiesta, May 21.

In the lobby and parking space, six pretty girls in Fiesta costume, sombreros, boleros and gay skirts, distributed the first edition of the 1938 Street Fair News, hot off the press. The cunning news girls were: Miss Patricia Cole, Miss Anne Cole, Miss Bonney Wilson, Miss Lee Clark, Miss Joyce Boardley and Miss Nancy Kelley. Through the kindness and cooperation of Mr. T. Price Wilson and his staff at the Winchester Star, the Street Fair News had been rushed through 10 days ahead of schedule for the movie night.

The Winchester Theatre had been given over to the En Ka Society for the evening by the Theatre management, at the request of Mrs. Lucius B. Smith and over 500 members and friends accepted with pleasure. Mrs. Samuel D. Cole, chairman of the fair, Mrs. Guy B. Howe, En Ka's president, and other officers and managers greeted their guests. It was a great turnout and everyone had a fine time. One of the Fiesta prizes, a beautiful radio, was on display in the theatre lobby, while across the street the Ford Tudor Sedan was spotlighted in Mr. Bonnell's show window. A short view of past street fairs was shown on the screen during the evening and was enthusiastically received by the gala audience.

The exhibit chairman, Mrs. Waldo V. Lyon reported on the flower exhibit to be held at the Winchester Public Library, June 4 from 2 to 9 p. m. and June 7 from 11 a. m. to 9 p. m. The pourers were Mrs. John A. Maddocks and Mrs. Theodore von Rosenzweig.

"Dave" Grosvenor, former Winchester High athlete, tied for second in the high jump in the Wesleyan Williams track meet at Middletown, Conn., last Saturday, competing for Wesleyan. While "Dave" was hoisting himself over the bar his brother, "Albie" was pitching for Wesleyan against Amherst, losing 3 to 2. Always an outfielder at Winchester High, the older Grosvenor has developed into a very consistent pitcher at Wesleyan.

WORK COMMENCED ON GINN FIELD PLAYGROUND

Work was commenced this week on the construction of a playground on the so-called Ginn Field which is located between the Aberjona River, the Boston & Maine Railroad tracks and Bacon street. The field is to be constructed as a W. P. A. project and Park Commissioner George T. Davidson states that it will include three tennis courts and a baseball diamond. It is possible that provision will also be made for a soccer field and some horsehoes.

The Park Board hopes to have the tennis courts available for use by the middle of June, but the field itself will probably not be ready until next spring. Several trees must be removed and the surface raised considerably in places to make it level.

The tennis courts will be placed at the northerly end of the field just to the left of the small footbridge. The footpath which extends through the field will be eliminated and those who wish to cross the field will do so by the road built during the construction of the sewer and extending through from Manchester Field to the station.

Six hundred feet of water pipe have been laid from Bacon street to provide water for the tennis courts and for a drinking fountain.

People living in the vicinity of Ginn Field have long been without playground facilities and it is expected that the new field will prove very popular.

DAUPHINAIS—QUEENIN

Only members of the immediate families were present last Saturday afternoon when Miss Catherine Eleanor Queenin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael P. Queenin of Myrtle street, and Robert Edward Dauphinais, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Dauphinais of Miller's Falls, were married at St. Mary's rectory by Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick. The ceremony was performed in the chapel of the rectory at 2 o'clock and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Queenin was attended by Miss Geraldine Jones of Auburn and Fred Haskell of Cambridge was best man for Mr. Dauphinais. The bride wore a gown of white embroidered lace with a matching picture hat and carried a circular bouquet of bride's roses and orchids. Miss Jones wore a gown of aquamarine brocade with a white leghorn hat and gold slippers and carried a tallman's rose.

Upon their return from a honeymoon spent in New York and Washington, Mr. Dauphinais and his bride will make their home at 185 Chestnut Hill avenue in Brighton. The bride is a graduate of the Winchester High School and has been employed at the Boston offices of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation. Mr. Dauphinais, who is connected with a Boston newspaper, is a graduate of the Northampton School of Accounting.

MRS. HILDRETH BELIEVES WOM-EN'S CLUBS SHOULD STAND FOR CITIZENSHIP

Mrs. Henry W. Hildreth of Main street, first vice president of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs and past president of the Fortnightly, believes that citizenship is the most important thing that women's clubs can stand for in modern times, in relation to crime, war and other national and international conditions.

This statement was made in answer to a question asked her in Kansas City, Mo., where she attended the General Federation of Women's Clubs triennial which closed on Tuesday. Her opinion is of general interest because Mrs. Hildreth, as first vice president, will without doubt succeed to the presidency of the State Federation at the annual election to be held in Swampscott during the last week in May.

In amplifying her statement Mrs. Hildreth is quoted as saying that "through the years clubs have always been of great value to the community in which they are situated. Club work cannot be static. In order to retain and enhance its values it must change with the conditions of the times. It must face and answer questions which it would not have answered or faced a quarter of a century ago."

TO SPEND SUMMER HERE

Mrs. W. Ewart Seager, the former Louise Packer, of Vancouver, B. C., arrived in town yesterday with her daughter, Alice, to spend the summer in Winchester and Rockport with her parents, Rev. and Mrs. William S. Packer of Yale street. Alice and "Lulu," who is the daughter of Mrs. Cedric Seager, the former Gertrude Parker, will attend the tennis matches at Longwood on Saturday with their grandfather who will have them competing in the "younger girls' class" before they know it.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The 18th annual convention of the Mass. League of Women Voters was held at the Hotel Sheraton, Boston, May 17 and 18. The Massachusetts League is a member of the National League of Women Voters, a non-partisan organization designed to increase women's participation in government by means of a program of political action based on adequate preparation. Significantly, the convention is of great importance and value to the local leagues for it determines the program of work for the coming year. It holds sessions at which outside speakers carry on League education along lines related to the League's program of work, and of course there is an indefinable but indispensable gift of a convention to its delegates—"the sense of the whole," which they realize. This year, as delegates and prospective alternates, Winchester was very ably represented by Mrs. Joseph Worthen, Mrs. Wm. Spaulding, Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell, Mrs. John S. Dickey, Mrs. Warren C. Whitman, Mrs. George Brayley and Mrs. G. R. Barrett. On Tuesday afternoon the various departments of the Winchester League were represented by the following chairmen: Mrs. Theo. Anderson, Mrs. George Brayley and Economic Welfare; Mrs. Ralph M. Sparks for Government and Its Operation; Mrs. Errol O. Horner for Legislative; Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell for Government and Foreign Policy.

On Tuesday evening, Lancelotti Professor of Law at Harvard, Thomas Reed Powell, spoke on "Constitutional Quagmires." This was one of the highlights of the convention with the hotel dining room packed to its capacity with interested and eager men and women. Among those who went from Winchester were: Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Hall, Mr. and Mrs. Errol O. Horner, Mr. and Mrs. George Brayley, Mrs. Bowen Tufts, Mrs. Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. William Cusack, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Monroe, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall R. Pihl, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Dickey, Mrs. George C. Brayley. On the state committee making preparations and arrangements for this dinner.

On Wednesday, the final day of the convention, the convention committee met and among them Winchester was represented by the following: Mrs. Walter Winslow for the Credentials Committee; Mrs. Errol O. Horner for the Finance Committee; Mrs. Warren C. Whitman for Membership; Mrs. Joseph Worthen for the Committee for Legal Status of Women; and Mrs. John S. Dickey for Treasurer. The convention closed with the Clifton Hall, our Winchester president attended the Presidents' conference while Mrs. William Cusack, the State secretary made Winchester proud of its representative.

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

The Board has sent a letter of commendation to Officer John J. Murray through Chief Rogers for his conduct of the case of Robert Hammond whom he apprehended in a stolen automobile. Such alertness on the part of a Winchester officer is gratifying to the Board and deserving of special comment.

MEMORIAL BROADCAST FROM FRANCE

The Board of Selectmen has received notice from the French Veterans of America that the Memorial Day Ceremonies at Bony Cemetery in St. Quentin, where many American soldiers are buried, will be broadcast to the United States at 11.30 o'clock on Sunday, May 29.

YOUTH SHOT WHILE ATTEMPT-ING TO ESCAPEStopped By Officer Murray While Driving Stolen Car

Robert Hammond, 16, of 848 Main street was shot and critically wounded by Patrolman John J. Murray of the Police Department about 11:30 Monday forenoon as he pulled a gun upon the officer while trying to escape after being stopped while driving an alleged stolen automobile on Main street at Symmes corner.

According to the Police account of the affair Officer Murray, while on duty in the cruiser near Symmes corner, picked up on his radio the message that a Ford sedan, registration 20378, had been stolen in Stoneham. Making a note of the number, he started for the Mystic School to do traffic duty there while the youngsters left the building for their homes.

As he approached the school he spotted the stolen car approaching him in a southerly direction along Main street, going at a leisurely rate of speed. Turning the cruiser, Officer Murray gave chase and after passing the traffic circle at Symmes corner, at the point of his revolver, forced the driver of the stolen car to pull over to the side of the road near the Police Box at Sanborn Street.

Leaving the cruiser, Officer Murray questioned the youth driving the sedan who offered him a license when he had expired. Officer Murray took the youth to the Police box where he called the addressee and met with Desk Officer James O'Donaghey who ordered him to bring the driver of the car to the Station.

Officer Murray searched the youth's pockets and finding nothing, placed him in the cruiser in the seat at the rear of the single driver's seat. He had hardly started the machine when the youth drew an automatic pistol from the waistband of his trousers and ordered him to stop the car and throw his gun to the floor. The Police man complied and the youth told him he was going to make a getaway, threatening to shoot if any attempt was made to stop him.

Jumping from the cruiser, the youth started for the stolen Ford and as he did so thrust his automatic in his right trousers pocket. Officer Murray immediately picked up his revolver and getting out of the cruiser, ordered the youth to put up his hands and turn around and face him.

The youth turned, but instead of putting up his hands he drew the automatic from his pocket and leveled it at the officer, who in self defense fired a shot from his revolver which struck the youth in the left groin. The latter fell to the ground. Officer Murray recovered and then ordered a passing motorist, who had stopped, to phone Headquarters for assistance.

Officer Donaghey dispatched Sergeant Charles J. Harrold and Officer John Boyle to Officer Murray's assistance, the two rushing to Symmes corner in a commandeered car. Chief Rogers, who was in the scene, went to Headquarters sending Officer Donaghey to the scene of the shooting with the Police Ambulance.

Meanwhile Officer Murray had turned the youth's gun over to Sergeant Harrold and the three policemen took the wounded young man in the cruiser to the Winchester Hospital, where he was at once placed on the operating table and attended by Drs. George Marks, Sanford Moses, Roger M. Burgoyne and Alexander Aitken. The bullet was found to have entered the left groin and gone through the body, issuing from the back. His condition was considered grave.

On the way to the hospital the officers questioned the youth, who gave his name as Robert Hammond, his age as 16 and his address as 848 Main street. Police saw him sign a statement stating that he had pulled the gun on Officer Murray, knowing it to be loaded, with the intention of frightening the officer. Sergeant Harrold, who took the gun from Officer Murray, stated that it was cocked and had a single shot in the chamber. Police say that Hammond told them he stole the gun some time ago from the car of Nathan Winant, a jewelry salesman, of 16 Chestnut street, Stoneham. Hammond spent much of his time with his grandparents in Stoneham, and Winant told the authorities that the youth had been at his home and had ridden with him in his machine in which the gun was kept.

The automobile which Hammond was driving was stopped by Officer Murray was owned by Leonard A. Wardwell of 40 Broad street, Stoneham. It had been left with the ignition keys in front of a Stoneham bank. The youth had driven the Police took the machine for a good time. Special Officer James Flaherty was assigned to guard him at the Hospital. Officer Murray was the recipient of general commendation for his quick action in an emergency. He stated that he had not intended to strike Hammond in a vital spot, but had aimed to strike him in the leg and cripple him.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Seven members were absent from the meeting of May 19, one of whom has already made up for his absence. May we have more make-ups? The popular "pump-priming" might well be applied to our attendance percentage.

George Welsh has been decidedly under the weather for some weeks past but he has not been willing to sacrifice his loyalty to Rotary to his personal comfort. Please be assured that your efforts are appreciated, George.

Edmund Sanderson, too, is on the sick list, being a sufferer from a severe attack of neuritis. He who is attacked by this malady is indeed a sufferer; we wish you a speedy recovery, Edmund.

Harry Winn has been spending the week at his summer place in New Hampshire and Bill Priestly is expected in Winchester momentarily, possibly being in town at this writing.

We were much disappointed because of Ralph Bonnell's enforced absence from the current meeting. Ralph was to have reported the Spring Conference at this time, and besides—well, it is always agreeable to greet Ralph.

We now have Fast! President Allen McLatchy as an honorary member of the club and trust that it will be possible for him to visit us frequently. As always been a consistent supporter of Rotary and we all know that such he will continue to be.

The following quotation from the publication of the Rotary Club of Martinsburg, Va., is worthy of consideration by all Rotarians.

"I wonder if we do not some times lose sight of this very important phase of service clubs—helping the man inside as well as helping the man outside the club. Surely, if a number of years spent in a service club enables a man to catch a vision and to realize that there is much more to life than the amassing of wealth, and causes that man to give some thought and energy to the development of his community and the helping of his fellow-men, then that service club has justified its existence one thousand-fold."

Number of Rotary Clubs as of May 2, 1938—4,644. Estimated number of Rotarians—194,000.

Attendance Percentage of this Club, May 12—85.29 per cent.

LOWEST INTEREST RATE FOR TOWN

The Town Treasurer reports that the Town of Winchester continues to enjoy an excellent financial standing and the banks of Boston are always pleased to purchase our notes or bonds.

The Second National Bank of Boston has just purchased Winchester notes in Anticipation of Revenue at the rate of 18 (eighteen hundredths) of one percent (1.8%) discount, same to mature in December, 1939.

This is the very lowest rate at which the Town has ever borrowed. It is worthy of note to learn that several of the officers of this bank are residents of Winchester and take civic pride in its government.

WINCHESTER NOT BADLY DAMAGED BY STORM

Though some damage was done in town by the heavy storm of last Saturday night and Sunday morning the town as a whole got off lightly by comparison with many other communities.

The trees suffered most, but in few instances were any but small branches blown down. Early Sunday morning a tree was reported down on High street near Arlington street, breaking three primary electric wires and one are wire and throwing much of the west side district into complete darkness. Service was resumed by the Edison emergency crew about 9:15 in the morning and it was 10 o'clock before the Tree Department finally got the tree cleared away.

Street lights were also reported out in the vicinity of Hemingway street in the north end. Part of a tree was blown down on Highland avenue near Prince avenue and an apple tree was stripped of all its limbs on Ridge street. Lovers' lane in the hill district was completely blocked by the falling of a large tree.

No washouts were reported and but a single auto accident, that taking place early Sunday morning on Cambridge street where a Durant sedan, driven north by Joseph F. Unda of 24 Short street, Norwood, skidded on the wet street and crashed into the stone wall on the Langley estate. A section of wall about 8 feet long was smashed and the car was damaged. Unda escaped injury.

Winchester Auxiliary

The May meeting of the Winchester S. P. C. A. Auxiliary was held at the home of Mrs. Edward S. Larned, 149 Highland avenue on the afternoon of Thursday, May 12.

Throughout the afternoon the ladies were engaged in preparing supplies needed in the surgical department at the Angell Memorial Hospital. The chairman of the hospital committee, Mrs. Eustis, has also done a large quantity of similar dressings in her home, thus enabling our Winchester group to make a helpful contribution to the work of this institution.

Important matters came up for discussion during the business session. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Harry T. Winn, for his gift to the Animal Shelter, of a large brass plate bearing the seal of the Mass. S. P. C. A. and the name of the Winchester Auxiliary. This very beautiful and useful name plate may be seen on the door of the shelter.

The treasurer's report was of special interest, showing the amount added to the shelter fund as a result of the April sale and from gifts recently received from persons interested in this humane enterprise. The Auxiliary takes this opportunity to thank all persons who have expressed through these gifts their interest and confidence in what we have undertaken.

A nominating committee was appointed to present at the October meeting, a list of officers for the next year.

At the close of the business meeting, the ladies remained to enjoy Mrs. Larned's delightful hospitality and a social half hour.

FRAME OF STOLEN BIKE RECOVERED

Last week Thursday Fred Brown of 6 Warren street reported to the Police that his Elgin bicycle had been stolen from where he had left it in the alleyway between the Knight and Star Building on Church street.

Friday morning shortly after 9 o'clock Miss Esther Porter of the Hollywood Cleaners at 570 Main street in the Knight Building reported that a bicycle had been thrown over the high partition at the end of the alleyway in the rear of her shop. Sergt. Charles J. Harrold recovered the machine and found that it was the one reported missing by young Brown. The tires, basket carrier and brackets had been stripped from the machine. Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy investigated the theft with Patrolman Noonan and recovered the accessories stolen from the bicycle at the home of a Winchester boy, who with another local youngster, is said by the Police to have stolen the machine and stripped it. Both boys will be summoned into the juvenile court.

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ Scientist throughout the world on Sunday, May 22.
The Golden Text is: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? hope thou in God: for I shall yet praise him by the health of my countenance, and my God" (Psalms 42:11).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are" (1 Corinthians 3:16, 17).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "To divest thought of false traits and material evidence in order that the spiritual facts of being may appear, this is the great attainment by means of which we shall sweep away the false and give place to the true, thus we may establish in truth temperance or body, whose builder and maker is God" (p. 328).

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Mad About Music." Deanna Durbin's new hit, with Herbert Marshall, Gail Patrick, Arthur Treacher, William Frawley, Marsha May Jones, Christian Rub and Elizabeth Ritten in the supporting company, heads the program opening at the Granada Theatre in Malden on Friday. Deanna Durbin is cast as a fatherless girl, attending a private school in Switzerland. Her mother is an American screen star, famous for her ingenue roles. Deanna Durbin sings four songs in "Mad About Music," three of them, "I Love to Whistle," "Serenade to the Stars" and "Chapel Bells" being written by Harold Adamson and Jimmy McHugh. The fourth number is the beautiful "Ave Maria" by Gounod. "Mad About Music" is considered even finer entertainment than Miss Durbin's previous successes, "100 Men and a Girl" and "Three Smart Girls."

"No Time to Marry" with Richard Arlen, Mary Astor, Lionel Stander, Marjorie Gatenon and Thurston Hall as the featured players, is the second attraction on the bill starting today. Richard Arlen is cast as a star reporter, with Mary Astor as his bride-to-be and his colleague on the Daily Blade.

ANNUAL REPORT, WINCHESTER DISTRICT NURSING ASSOCIATION

President, members and friends of the Association:

I present for your approval the report of our work for the past year. Four thousand and twelve calls on 917 patients.

Two thousand, four hundred and ninety-six full pay calls on 639 patients. Eight hundred and sixteen part pay calls on 124 patients. Seven hundred free calls on 514 patients.

Seventy-four emergency calls answered and first aid given.

Twelve minor operations were performed in the home by the doctor, assisted by the nurse who makes the preparations and stays with the patient as long as necessary.

Seventy-four doctors used the services of the nurses, of these, 56 were out-of-town doctors.

Eighty prenatal calls made on 26 prospective mothers. We gave nursing care to 34 maternity patients; 18 were delivered at home, the remainder were patients who needed further care when they returned from the hospital. Three hundred and fifteen nursing calls were made on these patients.

We gave away 15 complete layettes. We try to have the prospective mothers supply as many articles as possible and we give the rest. Nine mothers were helped this way.

A donation from the En Ka Society was given to help furnish a nurse at time of delivery, if patient is delivered at home. When possible the patient pays part of the nurse's fee, otherwise the service is given free.

Patients who are ill and under a doctor's care and have Industrial Insurance policies on which the premium is paid weekly in either the Metropolitan or John Hancock Life Insurance companies, are entitled to nursing care without charge. Both companies are very liberal as to the number of nursing visits allowed a patient with an acute illness. We had a case a short time ago where the patient was allowed 50 calls. This Association is the official local organization through which these companies secure the services of nurses.

One thousand and eighty-eight visits were made for the Metropolitan Insurance Co.

Four hundred and sixteen were made for the John Hancock Insurance Co.

In May 1937 arrangements were made with the Winchester Day School to have a nurse check the pupils every morning. School opened Sept. 22 and 121 daily calls have been made. In the spring of 1937 an epidemic of para-typhoid started in Winchester. We made 110 calls on 11 patients. One nurse made the calls.

No report would be complete without some mention of our chronic patients, some of whom we have given nursing care for years. The visit of the nurse means much to these patients; in many cases she is their only contact with the outside world. Usually the same nurse goes each time. We have on our list at present 16 chronic patients who receive from one to six calls weekly. The largest number of calls made on a single patient was 209.

There was a splendid contribution of clothing from the Needlework Guild of America. Baby clothes from the Girl Scouts Unitarian, Methodist, Congregational and Episcopal Churches. Gifts of old cotton and linen are always acceptable.

The articles from our loan closet have been in constant use and we are most fortunate in having our supply replenished by generous donations. Commodities, rubber rings, crutches, ice caps and many other articles have been loaned.

A splendid gift of three new sets of surgical instruments were donated by Troop 4 of the Girl Scouts.

Our personnel remains the same for the present; one full time and two half time nurses. Mrs. Helen Spencer Murphy who has been with us since April, 1936 left Oct. 31. Miss Hilda Hope returned Nov. 1.

We wish to thank the doctors, management, faculty and office force of the Hospital, members of the Association for their co-operation in helping to make our work a success.

Respectfully submitted,
Alice Gormley

This is to certify that I have examined the books and accounts of the Treasurer of the Winchester District Nursing Association for the period April 1, 1937 - April 1, 1938, and that I have found them to be correct.

G. Dwight Cabot

The Board feels that it has a two fold responsibility: to supply an excellent nursing service and to keep informed of the health needs of the community. To this end Mrs. Nichols has brought to the Board, at each meeting, a report of new policies or services which are being tried elsewhere. Occasionally, we have had a speaker who has covered some special phase of public health work. We hope to develop a sound social program that will enable the Association to serve the community well today and better tomorrow. We urgently request your support and co-operation.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board was held Friday, May 6. At that time it was unanimously voted to join the Winchester Community Chest.

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL HORSE SHOW

Good Attendance and Keen Competition Marked Annual Winchester Event

A good attendance, well filled classes and keen competition marked the 17th annual Winchester Horse Show, held last Saturday at the Country Club to open the local show season. Entries were very representative and included a number of horses new to the local ring, adding to the spectator interest.

The kindness of many Winchester horse lovers who donated so generously enabled Miss Gladys Marchant, chairman, and her committee to offer an unusual lot of fine trophies in addition to the three $60 purses awarded in the open classes.

Silver Darts, grey saddler, owned and ridden by Miss Martha Moor of Worcester, and Wonder Bar, shown by his owner, Leo Boyle, won four blues each to divide first place honors. Miss Marchant and Miss Helen Downer were the only Winchester owners to show, and the former's horses, Bit O' Glory and Quintas were among the winners in several classes. "Quint" once again won the event for five-gaited saddle horses, retaining his win of a year ago. Bit O' Glory won the blue in the event for pairs of saddle horses with Cardinal Chief owned by the Misses Ursula and Elise Burkard.

The Burkards, living within a stone's throw of the show grounds in Arlington, are considered home exhibitors and the success of their mounts was popular with the spectators. The Burkards' popular winner of other years, was missed, having been retired from competition at the 110th Cavalry Show in Boston last October. "Middy" now spends his days enjoying life at the Burkards' new stable in Burlington, named in his honor, "Midnight Sun Stable."

The veteran, Arthur H. Lovesey, again managed the show, and the judges, whose decisions were seemingly popular with the exhibitors, were Allan J. Wilson of Newton Center, who rated the saddlers, ponies and riding competition; and Calvin Farnsworth of West Boylston, who judged the hunters and jumpers. Incidentally, Mr. Farnsworth's horses were showing last Saturday in Atlantic City where they won their fair share of ribbons.

Sandwiches and coffee were served on the show grounds, high above Mystic Lakes, by Fred H. Scholl, well remembered for his many years connection with the Calumet Club. Seventy-six persons went down to the Country Club for luncheon, a table being reserved for members of the show committee and their guests. After luncheon, competition continued until six o'clock when the final class was judged and taps blown to end the show. The day was cool, but clear and sunny, adding to the pleasure of both exhibitors and spectators.

Generally regretted was the illness of Miss M. Alice Mason, show treasurer, who was obliged to miss her first Winchester show this year. Miss Mason was unable to leave her home because of a severe cold. Mrs. Ralph Burkard of Arlington acted as chairman of the show in the absence of Mrs. Oren C. Sanborn, chairman, who had been in California for a year, returning especially for the event. Mrs. Helen Sanborn Ralls, secretary, also returned for the show, having been for the past five months in England. Other committee members included Mr. Ralph Burkard, Miss Gladys Marchant, Dr. Mary T. Maynard, Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Wilson and Mr. George H. Lamson of Framingham.

The field commander included Mr. Arthur J. Henry, Mr. Ralph P. Symmes, Mr. Leo Boyle and Mr. Benjamin Crocker. Following is the award summary:

EN KA STREET FAIR SUCCESS

Thousands Flock to Giant Fiesta

The En Ka Street Fair, long awaited as glorious fun and entertainment by young and old, took place last Saturday, attracting thousands of townspeople and hundreds from many surrounding communities. This was the fourth year that this ambitious and hardworking charitable organization has staged a fair to raise money for their several beneficiaries, and each year there have been new and delightful attractions.

A most important factor in the success and fun of this outdoor carnival is the weather, and in this spring of prolonged cold and rain, there must have been many heart-felt wishes for a good day. And it was perfect—not a cloud in the bright blue sky—warm sunshine and enough of a brisk breeze to keep everyone comfortable.

The Town Hall grounds were transformed into a brilliant Mexican setting, with the vivid colors of the shops, the bright red hats, sashes and gay bandanas of the vendors creating a scene that was unforgettable in its striking beauty.

Crowds were gathering before 11 in the morning, and throughout the day many thousands came to enjoy the fun and stroll about the Prado. The fair grounds were teeming with activity until well after midnight, for there was "something doing" in every corner. Games of skill and chance, places to eat, fun of every possible kind for the children and a "swinging" band to attract the crowd at night.

Mrs. Samuel D. Cole of Woodside road was the general chairman, and much of the success of the Fair was due to her intelligent planning and efficient leadership, combined with a delightful personality which made it a pleasure to work with her. On her committee in two important positions were Mrs. Carl Bolter of Oxford street as Secretary and Mrs. Lowell Smith of Park avenue as Treasurer. Mrs. Alfred Pierce, Jr. of Mystic Valley Parkway wrote the delightful and interesting columns of publicity. Mrs. Clarence G. McDavitt of Westland avenue and Miss Clara Butterworth of Cambridge street were co-chairmen of the parties.

Miss Butterworth was also the Art chairman, who cooperated with Mrs. Cole in planning the color schemes and who did much of the actual painting of the shops. Mrs. T. Price Wilson of Hangeley and Mrs. Frank P. Stewart of Central street had charge of the costumes.

Mrs. Malcolm Lees of Wildwood street, as Architect, helped Mrs. Cole to map out the arrangement of shops and their positions to scale, and Mrs. Guy B. Howe, president of the En Ka Society, assisted the committee in many ways.

A fruit shop, whose luscious display rivaled any in town, was located on the Fair grounds from Myrtle street. There Mrs. Thomas Righter was in charge, assisted by Mrs. James F. Dwinell, Jr., Mrs. William Cusack, Mrs. John W. Ghirardin and Mr. Thomas Righter.

Across the Prado was the Candy shop, equally tempting with its boxes of home-made sweets and all kinds of attractions for the youngsters. Mrs. Lindley Beardsley, in charge, was aided by Mrs. O. Kelley Anderson, Mrs. Thomas Aldrich and Mrs. Loring Gleason. Selling candy during the day were Mrs. Genevieve Underwood, Bonnie Wilson, Jean Rooney, Joyce Beardsley and Suzanne Gleason.

A little stucco cottage with red roof housed the Bakery, which was another location to find delicious home-cooked food, and, as in former years, Bonnie Arthur Jackson was in charge, assisted by Mrs. John Tarbell, Mrs. Frank Kelley, Mrs. Raymond Dexter, Mrs.

MISS IVES FETED

One of the most feted brides of early June is Miss Charlotte Ives, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Manley Ives of 305 Highland avenue, Winchester and Gloucester who will become the bride of Mr. John Harding Bishop, son of Mrs. Elias Bullard Bishop of Ledges road, Newton Center, on Thursday, June 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Ives will give the bridal dinner at their home on Tuesday, June 14, and the day before the future bridegroom's mother, will give a tea in honor of her son's fiancée and that night will entertain the entire wedding party as well as both families at dinner. Miss Patricia Blake, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gerald Blake of Brookline, will give a luncheon for Miss Ives on June 11, and on Sunday night, June 12, the entire wedding party will be guests at a buffet supper to be given by one of the ushers, Mr. James Stannard of this town. Mr. Bishop will give his ushers' dinner June 11.

Miss Ives has already been honored at several showers. One was given by two of the bridesmaids, Miss Nancy and Miss Penelope Hill, twin daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Lewis Webb Hill of Jamaica Plain, and another by Miss Peggy Rice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Preston Rice of Cambridge, also a bridesmaid, who entertained at both luncheon and tea. Miss Mary Elizabeth Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hermann E. Clarke of Brookline, gave a shower for Miss Ives as did Mrs. Lawrence Ross (Marjorie Osgood). Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bishop, brother and sister-in-law of the future bridegroom, have also entertained in their honor.

The wedding is to take place at 4 o'clock on Thursday, June 16, in the Winchester Unitarian Church, and the ceremony will be performed by the Rev. George Hale Reed. A reception will follow at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ives, besides Miss Rackemann, the Hill twins, and Miss Rice, the bridesmaids, and Miss Caroline Pierce, Miss Eleanor Little and Miss Cynthia Barr.

Mr. Stephen H. Bishop is to be best man for his brother, and the ushers will be Mr. Robert Bishop, Mr. Norman C. Cross, Mr. Robert S. Beiguth, Mr. John Dwinell, Mr. Andrew H. P. Swift, Mr. William D. Hart, Mr. George S. Seabury and Mr. James Stannard.

Miss Ives is a member of the Vincent Club and the Junior League and made her debut in the 1936-37 season.

MEN'S CLUB TO TAKE SERVICE

The service at the First Congregational Church next Sunday morning will be in charge of the Men's Club. Prof. Carl C. Zimmerman, of Harvard University, will give the address. He will speak on "Onward War," an address pertaining to Memorial Day. Professor Zimmerman is one of the leading sociologists of the country and has spoken at numerous church conferences with reference to the relation between economics and religion.

Other members of the Men's Club will have charge of the worship program of the service, under the leadership of Mr. Richard J. Johnson, president of the club.

This Men's Club service is an annual event in the First Congregational Church and looked forward to with great interest not only by members of the congregation but by other residents of Winchester. It is always interesting to know what laymen think of religion, and especially so in these days of changing ideals and shifting currents in religious thought. The public is invited.

WINCHESTER PILOT THRILLED CROWD AT AIR MEET

David Wadsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth of Highland avenue, thrilled a crowd of between twenty and twenty-five thousand persons last week-end at the big air meet held at the Orange-Athol Airport when he made successful parachute jumps from an airplane at 2,000 feet on both Saturday and Sunday. His bride, the former Muriel Gebhard of Wilmington, whom he recently married watched the young aviator as he "bailed out" for his jumps.

Mr. Wadsworth, who is a commercial pilot, is associated with William Norman Batty in conducting the Orange-Athol airport which previous to their taking it over had been inactive for five years. At their meet last week-end they attracted about 50 ships and a quarter of a million dollars worth of equipment to the field. At the port they give student instruction and do both passenger and charter flying. During "Air-Mail Week" Mr. Wadsworth flew the mail from Athol and Fitchburg, using a Kinner-Bird plane. He and his partner are adding to their equipment by placing an order for one of the most improved type planes this week.

Both Mr. Wadsworth and Mr. Batty are making their home in Hardwick. Mr. Batty came to this country from London, and before becoming associated with Mr. Wadsworth made his home in Boston.

EPHAPHANY PARISH WON LEGAL TILT

A finding made Wednesday by Judge Arthur E. Beane in Middlesex probate court removed legal barriers and paves the way for the construction of a tower and installation of chimneys in the Parish of the Epiphany in Winchester to cost about $25,000.

The will of Henry Child Miller of Winchester, who died Feb. 11, 1924, included bequests of $5000 toward erection of a tower and $5000 toward installation of chimneys, with the provision that if, within a period of 10 years, sufficient additional money was not left for completion of the tower and chimneys, his bequests were to revert back to the residue of the estate. Mrs. Mary H. Miller, the widow, died Feb. 7, 1928, and her will bequeathed $15,000 for the same purpose.

Her gift, added to that of her husband, provides sufficient capital for the tower and chimneys. The church has held the original $10,000 bequeathed by Mr. Miller, which has now grown to $14,558. A Boston bank, as trustee, recently petitioned the court to rule that the money from Mr. Miller's estate should revert to residue and be distributed to heirs.

The church in its answer contended that when $15,000 from Mrs. Miller's estate has not actually been given to it within a 10-year period, there is enough money in her estate to meet the requirement. Judge Beane upheld the church.

WARNER R. BUTLER

Warner R. Butler, a former resident of Winchester and father of Joseph W. Butler of this town, died last night at his home, 135 Pleasant street, Arlington.

Mr. Butler was born Jan. 21, 1861, in Newburyport, but spent much of his life in the near-by Boston. He was many years identified with the hardwood lumber business. During his Winchester residence he made his home on the old Shattuck estate which was taken over by the town after the erection of the present Wymann School.

Mr. Butler was a widower. Besides his son in Winchester he leaves a son, Arthur L. Butler of Wellesley Hills, three grandsons, and two daughters, Mary E. Ray and Miss Hannah H. Butler, with both of whom he made his home.

Funeral services will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence. Interment will be at Oak Hill Cemetery, Newburyport.

CRAP SHOOTERS ARRESTED
Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy and Patrolman Irving Reardon arrested three Winchester men and a man from Malden for shooting craps last Sunday evening in a house on Washington street. All were charged with gambling on the Lord's Day and were found guilty when arraigned Monday morning in the district court at Woburn. The owner of the property in which the bones were being rolled was fined $25. The cases of his three companions were filed.

Mrs. Smythman was 76 years old and a native of Ireland. She had lived in Winchester for half a century, and during her long residence enjoyed a wide circle of friends. She was a member of St. Mary's Church.
Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. Catherine Flowers, Mrs. Albert McCall, Mrs. George Joyce and Mrs. Irving C. Welch, all of Winchester; three sons, Samuel S. Smythman, Thomas F. Smythman, both of this town, and Alonzo Smythman of Woburn; two brothers, Edward Fitzgerald of Brighton, and two sisters, Mrs. Michael J. Drohan of this town and Mrs. Fred Piccolo of Tyngsboro.

MAN OVERBOARD
Saturday afternoon shortly after 5 o'clock Police Headquarters received a call reporting that a man had fallen into Black Ball Pond off the pines road in the rear of the Christian Science Church. Sergeant Charles J. Harrold and Patrolman James P. Donaghy rushed to the spot in the Police cruiser and a piece of fire apparatus was also sent in case ladders were necessary.
They were not. The man got out of the water, partly under his own power, partly with the assistance and advice of Officer Donaghy. Instead of being joyriggered at missing a possible water grave the rescued party was chiefly concerned with the loss of a shoe and a wringing of his "best suit." He was given "first aid" at headquarters, which in his case consisted of a place in which to sober off.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR MRS. MARGARET TRAVERS
Mrs. Margaret Travers of 4 Upland road, for many years a respected resident of the North End, was tendered a farewell party at her home last Sunday evening by a large party of neighbors and friends. Mrs. Travers sailed this week for her native Scotland where she plans to remain permanently.

GINPEL—WITHERELL
There is Winchester interest in the marriage which took place in the First Unitarian Church, Jamaica Plain, Saturday evening, May 21, when Miss Edith Blanchard Witherell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy M. Witherell of Jamaica Plain and Center Ossipee, N. H. formerly of this town, became the bride of William Ferdinand Gimpel of Taunton, son of Mr. Charles A. Gimpel of North Easton. Rev. Frank O. Holmes performed the marriage ceremony which was followed by a reception at the Loring Greenough House.
Miss Witherell wore a white taffeta gown made with a full skirt and short puffed sleeves. Her short veil was caught to a shirred halo and she carried valley lilies with white roses.
Miss Betty Grover of Milton was her cousin's only attendant. She wore a gown of rose net over darker rose taffeta and carried a bouquet of African daisies and larkspur.
William Gantner of Hanover, N. H., was Mrs. Gimpel's best man and the ushers were Arthur Ferguson and Carl Loeschner, both of Jamaica Plain, and two brothers of the bride, Dan Witherell of Jamaica Plain and Warren Witherell of Cambridge.
Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. Gimpel and his bride are to make their home in Bayshore, the bride, a graduate of Wellesley College in the class of 1933, is a member of the Witherell family who for many years made their home on the estate at the corner of Church street and Glen road. Mr. Gimpel is a graduate in chemistry of Franklin Union.

DOLL EXHIBITION
Hundreds Fascinated by Beautiful and Rare Dolls
Those who attended the Fair and failed to visit the Public Library unfortunately missed one of the rarest and most remarkable exhibitions in the country at the present time. The Doll Collectors' Club of America, Inc., whose membership includes several of our townspeople, arranged a collection that for rarity, value and interest, was unmatched by any in this country or abroad.
Mrs. Earle E. Andrews of Highland avenue, president of the Doll Collectors' of America, Inc., arranged the event, aided by Mrs. George R. Ramsbottom of Pawtucket, R. I. Other enthusiastic collectors of rare and antique dolls who generously loaned some of their most valuable specimens, were Miss Blanche E. Eaton of Everett avenue, Mrs. Henry E. Johnson of Melrose, Mrs. Harry Husk of Newburyport, Mrs. George S. Flagg of Newport, R. I., Mrs. Lewis T. Golding of Brookline, Mrs. Lewis F. Wood of Clinton, Miss Elizabeth Hooper of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. Harry C. Garland of Worcester and Miss Ariel Cutler of Peterboro, N. H.
A description cannot possibly do justice to the interest and fascination of the dolls which were so beautifully and carefully arranged for display. One case contained tiny brides and grooms in the native costumes of 11 different countries. Another case was filled with very old mechanical dolls; a tiny Paderewski with his piano; a nurse who walked with her baby in his carriage; paper dolls who danced around a stage. On top of the case was a beautiful French doll dressed in grey taffeta with a powdered wig. She was mounted on a velvet-covered music box, and she raised her lorgnette and fanned herself with a tiny fan as the music played.
There were wax dolls, in whose heads every hair had been put by hand; papier mache dolls with hands and feet of leather; china-headed dolls whose elaborate coiffures and the lace about their necks were fashioned of china, stiff wooden dolls in their old fashioned clothes.
On one table was a group of Mexican dolls, whose costumes and hats were copied by those who planned the En Ka Mexican Fiesta. The German dolls were extremely life-like, and the Hungarian and Czechoslovakian dolls were costumed in the most exquisite hand-embroidery and beaded head-dresses.
One small mummy doll was thought to be dated about 2400 B. C., a rare find of an Egyptian archaeologist.
One case contained a French bridal party of about 1850, about a dozen dolls delightfully complete even to the little ring bearer with his plumed hat and tiny ring resting on a satin pillow.
Another case most carefully worked out was "Miss 1934," a modern doll with a complete wardrobe which included knit dresses and suits, fur coat, ski suit, satin underwear, stationery, calling cards and jewelry.
The case of character dolls included such notables as George Washington, Sir Walter Raleigh, King George, Princess Elizabeth, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, a French polio, Sir Wilfred Grenfell, Uria Heep—even orphan Annie and Sandy, Charlie McCarthy and Snow White.
The generosity of these exhibitors, many of whom came from long distances to display their treasures, resulted in an outstanding collection. Those who took the time to visit the Library Art Room were rewarded with a view of rare and beautiful examples of a fascinating hobby.

RUNAWAY GIRLS PICKED UP
Two Woburn girls one 13, and the other 12, were picked up by Patrolman William E. Cassidy of the Police Department who noticed them walking on Cambridge street near Everett avenue at 6 o'clock Monday morning. They told the officer that they had slept out all night.
At Headquarters they were held as runaways and their parents notified. The father of one of the girls came for them and both left the station in his care. Later Chief Rogers noticed one of the girls on Main street, and picked her up despite her attempt to hide behind a hedge. She was held at Headquarters until her own father arrived. Chief Rogers gave both fathers some advice as to the proper disposition of their daughters' cases after home had been reached.

OUR MODERN AGE
By J. J. Doherty
A DESIRED DECLINE
The nation's music clubs, we hear, have picked out for their work this year improvement of the sick-self sounds that emanate from merry-go-rounds. This seems to be the first clear sign that we are on a same decline from post-war idealistic peaks. For up until the past few weeks our crusades have been aimed as high as simply get lost in the sky. So hats off to the music clubs for starting a desired reaction.
The experts of Fells Plumbing & Heating Co., of 558 Main St., in appreciation of the splendid reaction which their modernization work has caused among the people of the community, continue to offer the same high standard of work—consisting of the use of the very best obtainable materials skillfully and permanently applied. WINCHESTER DOMINATED LONGWOOD PLAY

With a champion in girls' singles, an all-town final in mixed doubles and both finalists in girls' consolation, Winchester dominated Mrs. George W. Wiggins' spring tennis tournament for boys and girls at the Longwood Cricket Club in Chestnut Hill last Saturday. Winchester entered 38 boys and girls in the various classes and the local youngsters gave an excellent account of themselves, especially on the girls' side of play.

Jean Drake, smooth working member of the high school girls' tennis team, brought back the girls' singles championship to Winchester, defeating the capable Norma Meister of Lincoln in the final bracket, 6-5. An indication of the local influence in girls' singles may be obtained from the fact that of the eight quarter-finalists, Jean Roberts, Dolly Greene, Polly Kimball, Helen Carroll and Jean Drake were from Winchester. Dolly Greene advanced to the semi-finals where she was eliminated by the talented Norma Meister while Jean Drake won her way into the championship bracket at the expense of Timmy Lincoln.

Mary Keyes, sturdy little cannonballer, and Jane Norton, both of Winchester, faced each other in the girls' consolation final, Jane winning, 6-1. On the boys' side of the tourney, the local entrants were not so successful, but Bobby Kitchin and Jack Penniman survived the early rounds to reach the quarter-finals, where the latter was eliminated by the ultimate champion, Bruce Daniels. Kitchin won from Leonard Nectow, 6-2, to reach the semi-finals, and defeated Robert Olive, 6-3, to reach the championship bracket. The Winchester boy lost his final match to Daniels, 6-2.

In the boys' consolation, Bennett Wightman and Jimmy Coon reached the semi-final round of play.

The local youngsters really went to town in mixed doubles with five local teams reaching the quarter-finals in Jean Roberts and Bennett Wightman, Dolly Greene and Jack Penniman, Helen Carroll and Lane McGovern, Bert Magnusson and Billy Woods and Polly Kimball and Jimmy Coon.

The Greene-Penniman and Kimball-Coon teams moved up to the semi-finals where the latter combination disposed of Margery Gunnarsson and Jimmy Gallagher, 6-5, and Dolly and Jack won from B. Peabody and J. Lynch, by the same score.

It was too late to play the final Saturday and the two local teams agreed to play off the championship match Wednesday evening at Palmer street.

Among the Winchester players in the tournament were Berta Magnusson, Jean Roberts, Betsy Drake, Ann Downer, Jane Norton, Dolly Greene, Jane Armstrong, Kay Shinnick, Polly Kimball, Lane McGovern, Mary Keyes, Marilyn Drake, Helen Carroll, Cynthia Newton, Jean Drake and Eben Caldwell, Fred Norton, Gordon McGovern, Elbert Smith, Clifford Lindberg, Bobby Salzman, Lane McGovern, Bert Callanan, Fred Lindberg, Palmer Worthen, Jack Penniman, Eddie Scully, David Holmes, Bobby Kitchin, Kenny Wright, John Spaulding, Jimmy Coon, Harrison Wagner, Steves Ellis, Boy Huckins, Bennett Wightman and Gordon McEvan.

Dooley of 6 Park avenue. After colliding with the Chevrolet, Galuffo's car collided with a Ford sedan, owned by Rosari Marchesi of 6 Holland street and parked at the side of the road. All three cars were damaged but no one was injured.

Saturday morning shortly after 8 o'clock a Pontiac coupe, driven by Lawrence J. Babine of 34 Dartmouth street, Arlington, while headed north on Cambridge street, was in collision with a Dodge sedan, driven by Andromache Tsongas of 62 Highland street. Lowell, who was turning left from Cambridge street into Church street. No one was injured, but both cars were damaged and the Dodge had to be towed to the Lake Motors Garage.

Sunday morning at 9:30 Francis H. Keenan of 91 Mystic Valley Parkway reported to the Police that while he was driving his Ford cabriolet south on Ridge street between the Henderson and Menchen properties his machine was in collision with a Chevrolet delivery truck, owned by the Winchester News Company and driven by Robert W. Anyone who plays tennis is eligible to enter the tournaments and you don't need a partner as your partner will be drawn by lot.

SOME FISHING TRIP

During the past years Winchester has been noted for the number of outstanding fishing parties that have left the town to become disciples of Isaac Walton. A prominent minister of one of our churches, who is an ardent fisherman himself, has found a great satisfaction in delivering a sermon once a year on the "Ways of the Wilderness" to many lovers of the Great Out Doors.

Spring and the fishing season has now arrived and many a man is listening to the call of the wild. This call has been sounded by Dr. Charles H. Tozier of this town who has fished in the waters of the entire continent. The call has been answered and on Thursday evening 14 hardy disciples leave for a private preserve in Northern Quebec. In a special car attached to the Montreal express will be gathered the greatest collection of fishing tackle ever to leave Winchester. The fish in the lakes of the La Barriere Fish and Game Club have been notified and duly warned that war has been declared upon them, especially the eight poof, and that their capture is inevitable. So fish take notice and govern yourselves accordingly.

After reading the list below anyone will realize that the fish have no chance even if they fight to the limit of their intelligence and muscular resources.

Included in the party are the following well known men from Winchester: George G. Brayley, Howard J. Chidley, John W. Downs, Charles A. Gleason, Gilbert H. Hood, William L. Parsons, Charles H. Tozier, Erskine N. White, Gilbert H. Gleason, and Dr. Charles H. Tozier. Chelsea, James Clemens of Boston, Charles F. vey of Wellesley, Henry C. Hopewell of Newton and Harris S. Richardson.

"Plenty of Families HAVE BEEN TAKING OUR MILK FOR 4 GENERATIONS"

"A mother often tells us that her folks began taking Whiting's Milk long before she was born. And she always adds: 'I guess that shows how good we think your milk is!' And it does! It makes a fellow feel pretty proud to be with a company whose products have earned such loyalty. But after all, it's not surprising. Generation after generation, many families, look to Whiting for their milk supply—because they've proved to themselves how rich, pure and healthful Whiting's Milk really is."

WHAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN SAID

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to give information through the columns of the Star to some of the inhabitants of Winchester who apparently have no desire to participate in the activities of our annual town meetings; and yet the critics who have no facts and never attend a town meeting criticize your correspondent because he was not in favor of substituting a name for Middlesex street.

Now then the words that I uttered on the floor of the town hall at the last town meeting were as follows: "In the historic town of Concord, the birth place of American Independence, there is an educational institution of learning called the Middlesex School for Boys." It was late at night or early in the morning when the meeting dissolved, hence I was unable to assert that Frederick Winsor, the founder of the Middlesex School for Boys was a Winchesterite. His father, the late Dr. Frederick Winsor, a veteran of the Civil War, was my folks' family physician. His son Frederick was a teacher and headmaster of the Middlesex School for 37 years of successful teaching that was manifested by the co-operation and support of the late Charles William Eliot, former president of Harvard University, who most likely inspired the founders of the Middlesex School for Boys. Theodore Roosevelt, who presented us with a square deal, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, who presented us with a new deal, received their presidential tuition under the able supervision of the late President Eliot of Harvard University. I believe there is no university in America except Harvard College that has presented two Presidents of the United States of America that were tutored under the supervision of one president of a University.

I trust the reader will pardon me for leaping from the Middlesex School to Harvard University. In conclusion I trust that I have castigated or corrected the harping critics who have no constructive criticism to offer, or in other words what they said on the outside and what I uttered on the inside do not coincide.

Very truly yours, Patrick H. Craughwell

AROUND THE BOAT CLUB

Excuse us while we ring ourselves out—if this California liquid sunshine doesn't return to its native health and leave us with a real old-fashioned, hot New England summer, we're going to be cross about the whole thing. Due to the En Ka's influence, no doubt, we had a fine day Saturday for our Snipe Race. Phil Cabot is starting off well this season, grabbing off a couple of firsts already. Phil brought his Snipe, "Chewink" in first Saturday, with Don Simonds Sr. in the "Weave-it" second and Dick Merrow with "Donald Duck" third—nice work Dickie.

Sunday looked doubtful for our splash regatta, but around 2:30 the boys thought they could take it so Ken Pratt got out his trusty gun and they were off. Ken pinch-hit for Les Gustin who was very busy bidding his mother and grandparents "bon voyage" on their trip to Scotland. The entrants were a small but enthusiastic lot, that is, all except young Frank Cheney who said how he'd love to go in but didn't have his swimming trunks, whereupon yours truly hustled him into the dressing Chrysler and rushed home, grabbed the trunks and flew back in time to make the second race—The Bowler Brothers as usual, supplied the comedy and Jim Fitch the skill—winning over Phil Cabot by only 3 points. Jim carried home the swimming trunks (1st prize) and believe it or not that same Frank Cheney won the consolation prize—a perfectly darling tin pall and shovel to take to the beach.

The score as follows:
1—Single-single—1st Cabot, 2nd Fitch, 3rd H. Bowler

Where were you, Phil?
So much for races and things—Now—be sure and register for the tennis tournament! Larry Brouillard, one of the entertainment committee, has posted a registration sheet on the bulletin board and the list will close May 30th. Get your name down! Also, a word about our plans for June. The entertainment committee headed by Ed Sherburne are planning the most elaborate event for June 17th and 18th—a two day carnival, complete with booths, games of chance and all the trappings. This is just a mention. There'll be more dope on it later—but put down the date—June 17th and 18th.

This week's vote of thanks goes to Mrs. "Doc" Cunningham and Mrs. "Doc" Burleigh who have a perfectly grand idea. This is it—on Sunday, June 5th they invite members, guests and friends to have Sunday-night supper at the Boat Club. Sandwiches and coffee will be for sale on the veranda from 5 o'clock on and we are sure you will enjoy it.

The sail-boat races finish at about this time and instead of rushing home and trying to appease sailor appetites save your time and energy and take advantage of this opportunity. We might mention, the purpose in back of all this is to buy much-needed furniture for the club, and what could be a worthier cause.

June 4th marks the first club dance—Ned Marshall's Music (how's that kids?) and we'll see you there. We've sort of worked back on this program of events but that leaves the nearest dates fresh in your minds and that's what we want.

Before creeping away—a most auspicious christening took place Saturday evening when, before a large gathering assembled on the lawn, the Burleigh boat slid down the ways—we say christening—as a matter of fact, a suitable name has not yet been selected—we are open to suggestions—seriously tho! It does our hearts good to see this boat "in" because it represents a lot of work on the part of Ted and his Dad and we know they're going to get plenty of fun out of it. Here's luck!

In order to do our share we are ready and willing to grant loans to business men. If you wish to obtain a loan for a sound purpose, and if you meet our other credit requirements, we will approve your application promptly. If it does not meet our requirements of sound banking, we will tell you so frankly, together with our reasons.

In some cases where a loan can be made that will be so secured as reasonably to assure its repayment but is of such a character that it should not be made by a bank, we will gladly forward the application to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for its consideration.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY CHAPTER, D. A. R.

The annual meeting of the Committee of Safety Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held on Monday, May 23rd at the Hillside School for Boys at Marlborough, Massachusetts. This is one of the Approved Schools helped by the National D.A.R. and various chapters, to enable the school to carry on its work of caring for boys in broken homes and those whose relatives are unable to care for them.

We were cordially received at the Administration Building, and at noon enjoyed a box lunch in the dining-room with the boys, coffee and cake being served us. After lunch we made a tour of the grounds and school building, including the infirmary, a very attractive cottage house in which luckily there are no boys at present. We later held our business meeting in the Administration Building.

The annual reports of the officers were read, the following extract from the report of the retiring Regent, Mrs. Blanche L. Byrne, being especially noteworthy: "The Theme of the Continental Congress held last month in Washington was 'Our American Heritage'. We should remember that our society was founded with the idea of maintaining that American heritage—a heritage which placed its reliance on God and the family. These standards are threatened on every side, and if we value them we should not be idle while subversive influences are active."

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Regent—Mrs. Mabel D. Newman Vice Regent—Mrs. Patience Hindes Chaplain—Mrs. Winifred Harris Rec. Secretary—Mrs. Jessie S. Perley Cor. Secretary—Mrs. Jessie P. Purdy Registrar—Mrs. Laura L. Beaudry Board of Management—Officers and Mrs. Blanche L. Byrne, Mrs. Hattie H. Wagner, Mrs. Dorothy L. Wain, Historian—Miss Clara R. Russell Auditor—Mrs. Henrietta E. Corey

At the close of the business meeting we visited one of the classes in session and later were entertained out doors by the school band, which played several selections in a very finished manner. We concluded our visit with a tour of the 300-acre school farm where we also saw the herd of 60 cows which were just receiving their daily scrubbing by the boys.

We were very much impressed with the homelike atmosphere of this school and the fine type of boys, who aside from their school work are kept busy by many duties, with plenty of time for play. It is seldom that one sees a more happy and wholesome group of boys, and we all felt very much repaid by our visit to this school.

MAY PARTY

A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all attending the May party given by Miss Marilyn Straghan, 12 Woodside road, Wednesday, May 25. There were 35 guests, including Marilyn's classmates and teacher, Miss Doris Harman of the second grade at the Wyman School. The guests from out of town were Mrs. Geo. Fuller of Wilmington, Mrs. Allan Libby of Somerville and Mrs. Frank Day of Arlington.

A May pole was twined by the children and many games played. Refreshments were served on the lawn. Prizes were won by Miss Dorothy Day of Arlington and Thomas Reece of Winchester.

WINCHESTER PAINT COMPANY
The Winchester Paint Company at 542 Main Street, newest addition to the town's business establishments, has one of the most unusual and attractive stores of its kind to be found in this district. Appointments are not yet complete, but Manager Frank Felt expects to have the shop completely furnished in the immediate future. Business has been going on there for the past two weeks.

The walls of the store are finished in an especially mixed brown in an unusual neutral shade, especially prepared to avoid any color impression and permit one to see wall-paper, for instance, just as it is, without the benefit of an assisting wall tone. Drapes at the windows are of a matching shade shot with green to harmonize with the green of the floor rugs. Comfortable reed chairs have woven green webbing seats and backs.

Counters are of natural masonite of modernistic design, blending with the brown of the walls, and all cases are of natural wood. There are twelve big daylight lamps in the shop for adequate lighting and Venetian blinds. An unusual bamboo display rack holds the paper samples in the window.

The Winchester Paint Company handles "Berrycraft" products, made by the nationally known Berry Brothers of South Boston. It also shows two thousand different designs of wall paper in a wide range of prices, having complete roll samples to assist in making the proper choice.

Carl Eaton, Mrs. Theodor Chiloct, Mrs. Jesse Wilson, Mrs. William Beggs and Mrs. Donald Woodward.

Mrs. Alvin Mancib and Miss Eleanor Dow presided at the Gift Bazaar, so attractively decorated in blue with a flame-colored vine. All kinds of pretty and useful articles were on sale here and those who acted as vendors for the day were Mrs. E. Craig Greiner, Mrs. Harvard Mann, Mrs. Roland Fletcher, Miss Dorothy Hall, Mrs. Harold Dover, Mrs. F. G. Chase and Mrs. Alden Sherman.

The Attie, under the direction of Mrs. Chandler Symmes and Mrs. Donald Boothby, had the most fascinating store of things of all description, which proved a happy hunting ground for lovers of bargains. On duty here were Mrs. Franklin Flanders, Mrs. Clarence Luitwiler, Mrs. Charles Hart, Mrs. Harold Bostwick, Mrs. James Joslin, Mrs. Edwin Matheron, and Mrs. Henry Waters of Salem.

Next door was the Book stall, where for a few pennies one could stock up on all kinds of reading matter. Mrs. Morris Kerr and Miss Gladys Marchant were in charge here, aided by Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor, Mrs. P. Milne Blanchard and Mrs. Robert Blackler.

Good Things To Eat
 There were so many good things to eat, and so many cheerful spots in which to relax and enjoy them! Luncheon at the "Sign of the Sombrero" was very popular, and scores of people took their sandwiches and coffee seated at tables under gay umbrellas. Mrs. A. Allen Kimball, chairman, and Mrs. E. Ober Pride, were in charge here, assisted by Mrs. C. Frederick Euerle, Mrs. W. P. Keyes, Mrs. F. N. Millet, Mrs. E. W. Zimmerman, Mrs. H. F. R. Dolan, Mrs. James R. Doty, Mrs. C. E. Jones, Mrs. Paul J. Rocray and Mrs. Gilbert Tapley.

Ice cream and popcorn were available and much in demand. Mrs. Francis E. Booth having charge of the ice-cream concession, and Mrs. Harold Bates of the popcorn machine. The latter was assisted by Miss Barbara Fernald, Mr. Leon Sargent and Mr. Harold Bates.

The Sidewalk Cafe, under the sign of the "Pig in a Whistle," dispensed the ever-popular hot dog and hamburgers. Mrs. Robert MacArthur having charge here, with Mr. and Mrs. Alan Lindblad and Mr. MacArthur.

The Patio was one of the most delightful spots on the whole grounds, where tea was served. Warm sunshine came through the vines that were wound with purple wisteria, and made it a most charming spot in which to relax from the throng. Mrs. Alvin Litchfield presided here, aided by Mrs. Theodore Cunningham, Mrs. Willard Hudson, Mrs. Paul Goddu, Mrs. Whitelaw Wright, Mrs. Frederick Ives, Jr., Mrs. George French, Mrs. Doris MacLeod, Mrs. Charles E. Crane and Miss Pearl Prime.

Many hundreds stayed for a delicious supper at the Baptist Church Hall which was beautifully decorated with lilacs. Mrs. Harold Meyer and Mrs. Harold Richmond had charge of this, and were assisted by Mrs. Vincent Clarke, Mrs. Benjamin Hill, Mrs. Wilburt Kingsley, Mrs. Frederick Ritchie, Mrs. Ray Mauger, Miss Gretchen Stone and Mrs. H. Newell Squires. Mrs. Clarence Russell sold supper tickets. Acting as waitresses and waiters were Miriam Nash, Jean Howard, Nancy Newton, Lillian Speedie, Ann Rivinius, Betty Collins, Bunni Collins, Lee Clark, Sue Gleason, Patricia Cole, Jean Tarbell, Nancy Wyman, Marjorie Bird, Grace Croughwell, Mardi Dickson, Betty Dickson, Priscilla Howard, Mary McGrath, Barbara Moulton, Idella Tapley, Mildred Johnson, Barbara Hayden, Frances Keene, Dick Farnsworth, David Burnham, Ted Mauger, Ray Mauger, Emmons Ellis, Joe Burton, Sam Pilkington, Dick Bugbee, Jack Finger, Donald Linnell, Peter Sibley, Harold Fuller, Ben Schneider, Bert Hopkins, Whitlaw Wright, Bill Spaulding, Dick Swanson, Bill Croughwell, John Hopkins, Spencer Cary, Clem Bairstow and George Hebb.

Fun for the Children
 How the children look forward to the Street Fair! A day of days, and one that is not duplicated throughout the year. For even the littlest tot, there was a variety of activity that made them loath to leave even after many exciting hours. The "Dwarfs' Sandpit," where cunning prizes were hidden, was in charge of Mrs. W. Campbell Ross, with Miss Barbara Goodwin, Mrs. Hazen Ayer, Mrs. Harold Dods, Mrs. Theodore Elliott, Mrs. Walden Hersey and Mrs. Dana Sawyer. Dressed as little Dwarfs were Barbara and Jennie Lou Elliott, Gayle Sawyer, Ann and Joan Harris, and Evelyn Kakkes.

Balloons were on sale from the back of a real live Mexican burro! Mrs. Stephen Neiley made the arrangements, and in his absence, Mrs. Burton Gove took over her duties, assisted by Mrs. Edwin Rooney. Taking turns in leading the burro around were Marjorie Harris, Barbara Dods, Betty Jean England, Mary McGrath and Jean Rooney.

The Animal Circus was immensely popular with the children, and each show drew hundreds to see the trick dogs, performing ponies and funny clowns. Miss Flora Locke was the chairman, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Millet, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Forester and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Zimmerman. The merry-go-round was of toy autos, this, too, drew the little ones. Mrs. Marjorie Mason managed this, with the assistance of Mrs. Sidney Blanchard, Katharine Blanchard, Ruth Dye and Bill Blaisdell.

And of course, pony rides! Miss Marguerite Barr was in charge here, with Miss Mabelle Nickerson and Mrs. Marie Chaffee.

Midway Scene of Hilarity
 For fun and excitement the Midway drew thousands anxious to test their skill and luck at the many games. What reflects the carnival spirit more than a laughing, noisy crowd five deep around a game! Mrs. E. George Pierce, Mrs. John Kenerson and Mrs. Clinton Mason were in general charge of this mammoth department.

Beano with its fine prizes was popular every hour that the Fair was open, and the nine other games drew equally enthusiastic participants. One of the most decorative spots was the Island, where the Garden shop was located. All kinds of garden furniture were for sale, besides flowers and plants. Mrs. Herbert T. Wadsworth was the chairman of this shop, and she was aided by Mrs. George A. Marks, Mrs. Richard Clark, Mrs. Vaughn Harmon, Mrs. James Harlow, Mrs. John Turner, Mrs. Granville Flag, and Mrs. Theodore von Rosenvinge. Flower vendors included Miss Marjorie Brown, Mrs. Edward Harmon, Miss Ruth Aseene, Mrs. Richard Harlow, Mrs. Everett Stone, Mrs. John McLean, Miss Priscilla Flag, Miss Elizabeth Adriance, Miss Frances Pearce, Mrs. Luther Puffer, Miss Jane Davis, Miss Mary Little Fuller and Miss Betty Goops.

A glimpse into the future was granted those who patronized "Mari" the palmist, and Mrs. Brabrook, who read fortunes with cards. Mrs. Clark Collins arranged this, aided by Mrs. Harold Farnsworth. Cocoanuts from Florida were on sale from a push cart, and proved very popular.

The Street Fair News, published in advance was very interesting and was widely distributed. Mrs. Alfred Pierce, Jr., was the editor, assisted by Mrs. Lucius Smith as associate editor, and Mrs. Lawrence Martin, who procured the advertising.

As the sun went down, irresistible dance music came from the Town Hall, where Ken Reeves' orchestra, appropriately sashed and Mexican-hatted, were holding forth. The hall was beautifully decorated with coconut palms and flowers, and it was not long before the gorgeous Senoritas, in their shawls and mantillas, were selling hundreds of tickets. Mrs. Charles Werly was in charge of the dances, and assisting her in various ways were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wyman, Mrs. Francis Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Cunningham, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Staples, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bolter, Mr. Charles Woolley, Mrs. James McGovern, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hurd, Mr. and Mrs. James Woolley, Mr. Robert Clark and Mr. Edmund McLean.

in charge of this striking new feature, with Mr. Samuel Cole and Mr. Franklin Lane assisting. Applause greeted the finale, which was the insignia of the En Ka Society in red fire light.

Awards of prizes were announced at a late hour, the lucky recipients being Mr. Harold Elliott of Linden street, who drove away the fine 1938 Ford Tudor, second prize, Fred of Highland avenue, who received a radio; James Doty, 11, of Lawrence street, who will be able to attend all the movies he wishes for a year, and Mrs. J. J. Hennessy of Beacon street, Brookline, who received a five-day trip to Bermuda.

Mrs. Franklin Lane was the chairman of the prize awards, and she was assisted by Mrs. Earle Spencer, Miss Barbara Pratt, Mrs. Percy Bugbee, Mrs. Gordon Smith, Mrs. Elbridge Wyman, Miss Lucy Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Thompson, Mrs. Harris Richardson, Mrs. Erskine White, Mrs. Edward McGee, Mrs. William Phippen, Mrs. Kingman Cass, Mrs. Harold Smith, Mrs. Charles LeRoy, Mr. Gordon Smith and Mr. Nathan Thummin.

Each department of the Fair had different costumes. Mrs. T. Price Wilson and Mrs. Frank Rounds were co-chairmen in planning these, and were assisted in the making of many of them by Mrs. Warren Goddu, Mr. Harold Farnsworth and Mrs. P. Stewart Newton. Large red Mexican sombreros and red sashes, with white dresses costumed the midway workers, with the men in black Tuxedo hats, red sashes and white trousers. Flowered smocks, gay bandannas, bright skirts and Spanish gypsy costumes added color and brilliancy to the scene.

There must be many persons whose names we have omitted unintentionally, many who offered their assistance in shops or games on the day of the Fair, and many husbands and friends who worked hard and faithfully behind the scenes. Two of those gentlemen were Mr. E. Ober Pride and Mr. Paul Budgell, who stayed many hours helping the treasurer with the huge amounts of cash.

The success of the Street Fair, now looked upon as an annual event in the community, is directly due to an organization of intelligent, faithful and energetic women. The En Ka Society demands much in the way of service from its active members, and the willingness and unselfishness of their service is reflected in the many branches of the Society's charitable work.

The townspeople of Winchester are proud and happy to support the Street Fair, and it is to be earnestly hoped that the rewards which will be sufficient to insure the continuation of their splendid work.

FIESTA TAMALES

Biggest crowd yet. Every one seemed to be having fun!

That gusty sigh you heard about daybreak last Saturday was the En Ka gals drawing a concerted long breath when they saw the sun. Why did you worry, gals, didn't you know "we planned it that way?"

Feller didn't want to venture around the booths if he wasn't work minded. We visited the check booth and the food booth shortly after 12 noon and drew an assignment both places.

Once again Lowell Smith's delivery system refused to function after noon and we had to call for our lemon pie. The pleasure was all ours though, really, and we'll be around next year!

Dana Goddu, all the way from Cave Creek, Arizona, had a great time visiting in the midway.

"Dick" Fenno and Harry Bean with their sideburns were among the most striking characters noticed. "Nick" Carter was surely the most benign, and Clarence McDavitt, the most sinister. We really would have hated to meet "Mac" in that gauchy rigging down a dark alley. "Houghtie" Goddu, one of the smallest chelleros, must have had the largest sombrero, by at least a mile!

ning Ford number was 6361. Every one who knows him was glad to see

Don't ask us who was the best looking senora or senorita. Our courage isn't equal to that one. They all were sa-well!

No trouble at all to sign up for Ford donations. Lucy Wilcox would do the writing for you (on orders of $1 or more) and "Perk" Bugbee would guarantee delivery of the car. That is, if you won!

WILD FLOWER MEETING AT SUNSET HILL

The 50 members of the Better Homes Garden Club who attended the meeting on Wednesday, May 18, at the home of Mrs. Francis Henderson on Sunset Hill, enjoyed an afternoon quite different from the club's usual program. Through Mrs. Henderson's generous hospitality a real wild flower walk was made possible in a very beautiful setting.

After a short talk on conservation by Mrs. Morrell Gaines, chairman of the committee for this meeting, the club walked through the meadows and woods of the Henderson estate, identifying nearly a hundred different wild flowers. The retarded season was noticed in the many plants that, ordinarily in bloom at this time, had to be identified by their leaves. Suddenly glorious weather added to the pleasure of the afternoon both for the walkers and for those who remained at the house enjoying the extraordinary sweep of view across the hills to the Monandock. A delightful tea was served by Mrs. Henderson and Mrs. Willard Hudson, assisted by Mrs. William Phippen, Mrs. George French and Mrs. Harry Locke.

Members and friends are reminded to save Wednesday, June 8, for the Federation all-day meeting, to see Gore place in Waltham and the gardens of Concord.

We are now equipped to stamp billfolds and fountain pens with names or initials in either gold or silver leaf. The Winchester Star, 3 Church street, Phone Win. 0029.

MEMORIAL DAY OBSERVANCE

Program Included Church Service and Parades

Winchester paused on Monday to pay its annual Memorial Day tribute to its soldier and sailor dead in Calvary and Wildwood Cemeteries, at the same time honoring those whose resting place is far afield and whose memories are preserved in the stateliest memorial on the high school lot. Actually the town's observance of Memorial Day exercises in the schools on Friday morning, at which members of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, were speakers. Commander Stafford Rogers spoke at the High School; Junior Vice Commander Richard MacAdams, at the Junior High School; Past Commander Nathan Thumim, at the Wyman School; Senior Vice Commander Conrad Larson at the Ray School; Theodore Lawson, at the Lincoln School; Marshall W. Symmes, at the Mystic School and Warren Hersey, at the Washington and William G. Noonan Schools.

The community religious service was held Sunday morning at the Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, to which Commander Rogers led a detachment of 50 uniformed Legionnaires, escorted by the colors, carried by Kenneth Hall and George Donaghey, and their guards, Theodore Lawson and William Carroll. The pastor, Rev. George A. Butner, preached the subject, "Keeping America Out of War." The musical program was directed by the Church Organist, Miss Mary H. French.

In dismissing the children of the Sunday School from the service, Rev. Mr. Butters aptly explained the significance of Memorial Day for the veteran, by likening his feeling for his dead comrade to that of a child who has had a small friend move from the neighborhood and feels a pang of sorrow upon seeing something which reminds him of his missing playmate.

Sunday afternoon a detachment of Legionnaires under Commander Stafford Rogers, decorated the veterans' graves both in Wildwood and Calvary cemeteries in Malden, Everett, Bedford, Cambridge and Woburn. The decorating was done Sunday afternoon instead of Memorial Day morning because the increasing number of graves to be visited made it seem unwise to attempt the detail of preceding the two parades. Baskets of flowers were placed on the graves this year instead of the wreaths previously used.

Included in the decorating detachment were Commander Rogers, Vice Commander Conrad Larson, Theodore Lawson, Edward Boyle, John McCarthy, Antonio Jacobellis, Frank Migliaccio, Hozakia G. P. Foley, Lee Mellett, Lawrence Nichols, Harry Dodge, William Carroll and Jack Moynihan. Assisting the Legionnaires was a detail from the Post's Scout Troop 1.

The first of the parades on Memorial Day left the Post Headquarters on Washington street for Calvary Cemetery at 2 o'clock, passing the memorial marker at Augustus Leonard Field with "eyes left." The cemetery exercises were held at the Knights of Columbus Stone, where three volleys were fired by the Legion Firing Squad and echo taps blown.

ARTHUR LINCOLN ENGLAND

Arthur Lincoln England died at his home Tuesday, May 31, after a short illness. Mr. England was born Sept. 15, 1896, in Cambridge, but came here as a young man and was engaged in business for many years in Cambridge. About ten years ago he moved to Winchester where he resided at 78 Bacon street.

Mr. England was a member of the Boston Commandery, Knight Templars; of Aleppo Temple, Order of the Mystic Shrine; and of the First Congregational Church.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Rutter England, and by his daughter, Helen M. England, both of Winchester. Funeral services are to be held this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence of Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, officiating. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

HAYWARD-BARR

Announcement is made of the marriage on May 25, of Mrs. Alfred George Barr of 35 Wedgemere avenue to George Bradford Hayward of 35 Everett avenue. The ceremony was performed at noon by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, at Mrs. Barr's home, and was attended only by members of the immediate families.

Mrs. Barr is the widow of Alfred George Barr. Mr. Hayward, a Boston attorney, is widely known in Winchester, having been a selectman and having served as Town Moderator since 1926.

5 CENT BUS FARE

Effective Sunday, June 5, a 5 cent fare will be established between Winchester Square and the corner of Church and Cambridge streets. This fare reduction was tried out once before and was withdrawn due to lack of patronage. Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. in its desire to accommodate the public has inaugurated this 5 cent fare again, and it will be permanent if the situation warrants it. This action is entirely voluntary on the part of the bus company and deserves the thanks and co-operation of the traveling public.

BAD CRASH ON WEST SIDE

One of the worst motor crashes to take place on the west side of town so far occurred last Friday morning shortly before 10 o'clock when a Ford touring sedan, driven by Sven A. N. Secher of 28 Porter street, Everett, which headed north on Wedgemere avenue, was in collision at the intersection of Wildwood street with a Ford stake body truck, loaded with lumber and driven by George Chamberlain of 64 Eastern avenue, Woburn, was accompanied by James Chamberlain of 11 Vining court, that city.

A call for assistance was sent in to Headquarters, bringing Motorcycle Officer Winthrop Palmer and a patrolman followed by Chief William H. Rogers and Sgt. Charles J. Harrold in the Chief's car, Officer John J. Murray in the scout car and Patrolman John E. Boyle in the police car.

The officers found both machines so badly smashed that they had to be towed away. The truck had pulled across the curb on the left side of Wedgemere avenue and had run against a tree. The sedan had made a wide left swing from the spot of the collision and after crossing the grass plot on the north side of Wildwood street to the west of Wedgemere avenue, had swung back across the road and side lawns of the residence of Mr. John J. Scully, finally crashing into the side of the sunporch at the rear of the dwelling.

George Chamberlain sustained lacerations of the left ear and cheek, abrasions to his back and possible fracture of the right elbow. James Chamberlain had contusions of the scalp and strains to both arms and legs. The young men were taken to the Winchester Hospital by Officer John Murray in the scout car.

Secher was at first thought to be seriously injured. He sustained lacerations of his right ear and hand and a possible concussion of the brain. He was taken to the hospital in the ambulance by Officers Boyle and Palmer.

Dr. Philip J. McManus attended the injured men at the hospital and their injuries proving less serious than was at first feared, all were allowed to go home after treatment.

GRADUATES OF THE EPIPHANY CHURCH SCHOOL

Dr. Torr W. Harmer, senior warden of the Church of the Epiphany, addressed the class that was graduating from the church school, at the closing session of the year. Dr. Harmer drew a parallel to their secular learning in public or private school, and a contrast. In the Monday to Friday studies, they learn geography, where they live in space and how they are related to a world that has every year been growing larger and larger in their imaginations as they learned more about its cities and rivers and seas; its roads for land and water and air; they have been learning history, where they live in time, what a heritage they have as Americans, of ideas and institutions and ideals. In school they have been learning also how to learn more, how they may go to learn more. He urged them to continue a life-long study of America, of our constitution and of our best ways and purposes.

The church school had been giving them a knowledge of a wider geography and history, of how they were related to a universe and to men's religious ideas and ideals and practices. Here, the great thing was still to learn, and how and where they might seek it. He welcomed them in to the Church proper, to be faithful students at public worship and at the sacraments.

Dr. Harmer presented first the diplomas of those who were graduated with honor:

Elizabeth Anna Nichols
Meredith Brewster Wagner
John Thomas
Walter Whitman Taber
Other graduates were:

Elizabeth Anna Nichols
Meredith Brewster Wagner
John Thomas
Walter Whitman Taber
Muriel Margaret Irene Hann
Martha Little
Sally Sharpe
John Joseph Murphy

Mr. Dana Cotton, whose instruction the graduates have received in their last two years, using a vivid bit of mountain climbing experience at the end of the year, the great thing was still to learn, and how and where they might seek it. He welcomed them in to the Church proper, to be faithful students at public worship and at the sacraments.

The superintendent of the Church School, Mr. Ellsworth Snow, presented the promotion cards to the other grades of the upper school, and announced those who had received honors.

MRS. JOSEPHINE M. ATWOOD

Mrs. Josephine M. Atwood, widow of William D. Atwood and one of Winchester's oldest residents, died at her home, 26 Eaton street, June 1. She was over 94 years of age, her last birthday being Dec. 26. Her death was due to advanced age, and up to the past few days she maintained her remarkable faculties which distinguished her among Winchester's elderly people for many years.

She was born in Winchester on Main street on the site of the present Unitarian Church. Her parents were Horace Hatch and Esther Wyman Thompson. She always lived in Winchester and graduated from the Winchester school. Her husband, William D. Atwood, was a resident of Woburn. She was a sister of the late Harrison A. Hatch, who died in May, 1937, and she leaves no immediate relatives. She came of old New England stock, and her mother, Esther Wyman Thompson, was a direct descendant of Count Rumford (Benjamin Thompson) of Colonial fame.

The funeral services are to be conducted by Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, this Friday afternoon at the residence at 3 o'clock. The burial will be in the family lot in Wildwood Cemetery.

CHILDREN'S OPERETTA

The children's operetta, "Cinderella in Flowerland" by Marion Loder will be produced by the children of the Second Congregational Church this evening and tomorrow evening in the vestry of the Church. The operetta is an excellent children's musical fantasy on the traditional Cinderella story. The story strikes deep into the traditional literature of all civilizations and pleases children and adults alike. The musical setting for the operetta is delightfully adapted to the story and to children's voices. The dances too, add much to the production. The beautiful costumes and well prepared staging of this production will give a rich artistic experience to the cast and the audience.

The staff included: Mr. Harry Goodwin, scenery; Mrs. Alva Roth, Mrs. Beatrice Farnham and Mrs. Willa Chaffee, properties; Mrs. Mabelle Leonard and Mrs. Alberta Baker, costumes; Mr. Fred Saunders, publicity.

THE FLOWER MISSION

On Tuesday, June 7, the season starts again for sending flowers in Boston to be distributed to the sick, the shut-ins and the poor of the city. It is perhaps hard for us living in the suburbs with so much plenty about us, to realize the joy those gay blossoms bring to those enclosed in brick walls.

Thirty-one towns contribute to the Flower Mission and about 700 hampers of flowers are sent for distribution during the season. Our flowers are sent to South Bay Union every Tuesday during the summer. For the month of June Mrs. Norman M. Mitchell is in charge of the work.

Will all who possibly can send flowers to the Winchester Station in time for the 9 o'clock train every Tuesday morning this summer. Natalie Jewett

BAD ACCIDENT ON MAIN STREET

Woman Severely Injured When Struck By Car

Miss Gertrude Allen, 25, a domestic employed at 2 Dartmouth street, was severely injured about 11 o'clock yesterday morning as she tried to run through a line of moving traffic on Main street in front of the Blue Bird Laundry just north of the railroad crossing in the square.

According to the police account of the affair Miss Allen was riding in an automobile driven by Edith Roche of 2 Dartmouth street, who stopped her machine in a line of south-bound traffic, all of which was held up by a red traffic signal at the beacon in the center.

Miss Allen got out of the machine to go to the Blue Bird Laundry and going across the street she was struck by a Chevrolet sport sedan driven by Eleanor Malone of County road, Burlington, and knocked down. An unidentified motorist picked her up and got her to the easterly sidewalk at the entrance to the Park Radio Co., but she was injured so badly and bleeding so freely that it was impossible to get her into a private car to take her to the hospital.

A call was sent in to Headquarters and Sgt. Charles L. Harrold rushed to the scene with the Police ambulance. Assisted by John W. Lane, Jr. and Robert Lane, both of 75 Nelson street, Sergeant Harrold placed Miss Allen in the ambulance, and accompanied by Miss Roche, took her to the Winchester Hospital where she was treated by Dr. A. L. Maletta.

She was found to be severely injured, having sustained a laceration of the right knee, multiple contusions and abrasions and possible fractures of the right knee, right wrist and right side of the head.

Mrs. Malone told the Police that she was driving slowly in second speed when the accident occurred, her machine having been held up by a car which left the Shell Filling Station as she approached.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Six members were absent from the meeting of June 2. No visitors or guests were present, an unusual circumstance, indeed.
Edmund Sanders continues on the sick list and has been granted a leave of absence. Numerous inquiries about his condition prove that he is a much miffed man at our pathos. His return to an early return to normal, Edmund.
It is desired that those members who have not already paid their dues chargeable as of May 1 should remit during the current month as the club will have heavy charges payable on July 1, 1938.

We gratefully acknowledge an invitation from the Winchester group, Women's Rebellions, to attend a lecture by Mr. Richard Whitcomb on Tuesday, June 14 at 8 p.m., at the high school auditorium.
The club has received a consignment of the last edition of the Rotary song book. There was some confusion today, because of the confusion in the numbers of the songs due to additions and deletions. It would be well for us to discontinue the copies of the old edition now in use.

Notice: Beginning June 2, 1938 the Rotary Club of Cambridge meets at the Hotel Commander, Harvard Square.

The Rotary Club of Canton, has been duly organized and chartered. It meets on Tuesdays at 6:30 p.m. at the McKendry House, Ponkapog. If this district can secure 70 new members before July 1, 1938 it will attain a membership of 4000. After that date the second largest district in all Rotas will be divided into three districts and it will probably be a long time before the present membership of District 197 is reached in this area.

District Governor John MacGregor strongly recommends a general refurbishing of road signs in this district. We are pleased to report that the Winchester club is carrying out this much needed improvement to its highway markers.

Our guest speaker today was Mr. George L. Moore, Public Relations Manager of the First National Stores, Inc. Mr. Moore is a great chain of retail establishments distributed in food products. Mr. Moore indicated for us the causes which brought into existence the modern chain store, so called, and contrasted the present methods of distribution with those practiced 50 years ago. Club members greatly appreciated this opportunity to become more familiar with the operation of a great industry which so deeply affects the daily life of every one of us. We are indeed grateful to Mr. Moore for his courtesy in coming to us at this time.

Percentage of attendance, May 26, 1938, 85.29 per cent.
Average attendance for May, 1938, 88.32 per cent.

MASS MEETING

Don't forget that there is no charge for admission to hear Mr. Richard Whitcomb, Boston's "Unofficial City Manager" speak at the high school auditorium, Tuesday, June 14, at 8 p. m., on "Finding Economy in Government."

It is of interest that a Washington News Commentator announced over the radio a few days ago, that the Senators and Representatives had received from the Women's Rebellion more notices from all over the country than at any time or for any reason since the upheaval in the Supreme Court. This is certainly encouraging. The women may well be a leading factor in bringing about real economies.

THIRTY YEARS IN LOCAL PHARMACY

Mr. William H. Hevey, proprietor of Hevey's Pharmacy, observed on Wednesday the thirtieth anniversary of his association with the business of which he is now the head.

On June 1, 1908, Mr. Hevey went to work as a clerk in the pharmacy which was at that time passing from the ownership of Mr. Arthur Grover to that of Mr. Frank N. Abare. Mr. Hevey worked under Mr. Abare and his successor, Mr. A. E. Allety, finally succeeding himself to the ownership of the business in 1922.

Since that time he has conducted the pharmacy successfully and is also owner of the black which houses his business and a number of other well known local firms. The Star offers its congratulations and best wishes for continued success.

SUB-DEB CLUBS

Winchester has blossomed forth with at least two very eager and enthusiastic Sub-Deb Clubs, composed of girls who are just entering or have just entered the much discussed "teen" age. These girls are termed Sub-Debs by a nationally known magazine and attend classes at the Jordan Marsh store every other Saturday afternoon at 2.30. At these classes they are instructed in the technique of applying make-up, their most becoming hair style to suit their personality, and the correct choice of clothes for every occasion.

The two groups from town who attended last week were:
Group 1: Rose Crowley, Helen Ulick, Dorothy Woodford, Virginia Shinnick, Mary Crowley, Lillian McAllister, Phyllis Condon, Katherine Shinnick and Marie Crowley.
Group 2: Grace MacManus, Priscilla Cromwell, Betsy Jones, Ann Marsters, Mary Gray, Jane Tarbell, Joan Kerrigan, Ella Armstrong, Jane Offutt and Audrey Samuels.

An exhibition of the manual arts of the school curricula is being held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 1-3, in the Wyman Auditorium. The exhibit is open the following hours: 9 a. m.-12 p. m., 1 p. m.-5 p. m. and Thursday evening, 7 p. m.-10 p. m.

Both children and parents greatly enjoyed the play, "Who Left the Cupboard Bare?" presented by the school, Wednesday, May 25. In the play the traditional mystery of Mother Hubbard's stolen bone and the Old Woman's missing eggs was satisfactorily unraveled and much laughter at the court of the King of Hearts.

An effective assembly in observance of Memorial Day was held Friday, May 27. Children from each grade participated in the exercises which culminated in a short address by Major Thumlin.

ALLAN—SENIOR

The marriage of Miss Mary Senior, daughter of Mrs. George Ernest Senior of Salisbury, Conn., to Mr. Arthur Fairley Allan, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fairley Allan of Winchester, took place Saturday, May 28, at 2 o'clock at the home of the groom's parents. ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Wyman Chapter of the Winchester Mothers' Association was held in the assembly hall on Wednesday, May 25, at 2.30 o'clock with Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth presiding.

The secretary, Mrs. Paul Avery, read her report; it was accepted and placed on file.

The treasurer, Mrs. Warren Shoemaker, presented her annual report to the assembly and the auditor's report. Both were accepted and placed on file.

Mrs. Marshall Pihl, chairman of the Mother's Council gave a very favorable account of that group's activities for the year.

In giving her report as chairman of the luncheon committee, Mrs. Thayer Hervey said that the epidemic of scarlet fever in Wyman School had made it necessary to cancel the spring luncheon and the fashion show.

Mrs. Alfred White, chairman of the nominating committee presented the following ballot of officers for 1938-1939:

President—Mrs. Warren Shoemaker
Vice President—Mrs. Robert Armstrong
Treasurer—Mrs. William Morton
Recording Secretary—Mrs. John Turner
Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. J. Ann Pennington
Chairman of Ways and Means Committee—Mrs. Paul Avery
Chairman of Nominating Committee—Mrs. Thayer Hervey
Chairman of Social Committee—Mrs. Stephen Neely Chairman of Luncheon Committee—Mrs. Theodore Atkinson
Chairman of Membership Committee—Mrs. Donald Crowell

It was voted that the secretary cast one ballot for the above officers.

The retiring president, Mrs. V. Farnsworth, graciously thanked her committee for their co-operation throughout the year, and brought the meeting to a close.

Those present then enjoyed a very hilarious half hour of entertainment in the form of a play entitled "Who Left the Cupboard Bare?" and presented by some very apt pupils of Wyman School.

Our attention was then drawn to the more serious aspects of education by a very stimulating talk given by Miss Lewis the present supervisor of schools.

At the close of the meeting ices and awards were served by the social committee.

Respectfully submitted,
Frances Turner,
Recording Secretary

W. C. T. U.

The May meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday, May 20th, in the First Baptist Church. The Treasurer's report showed a surprising amount of work accomplished. The speaker of the day was Mrs. Andrea Matson of Woburn, County Director of the Department of Religious Education of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Matson is a fluent speaker, who has her subject well in hand. She does not need to stop for words; they flow out from a heart brimming over with earnest enthusiasm. One might think that spiritual education was in no way connected with the temperance question; and therefore, that it was out of place in a society devoted to the abolition of the liquor traffic. However, Mrs. Matson proved the importance of her department when she emphasized the great need of making boys and girls men and women, yes, and the little tots, spiritually-minded by the all-pervasive influence of the home and the church school. The evils of the world are constantly being put before them, and they need the counteracting effect of that which is worthwhile and best in life. With a spiritual foundation as the basis, temperance and all other virtues should follow.

After the benediction the members enjoyed a social hour when they gathered around small tables to chat informally, as the refreshments were served.

CORRECTION

Through an error the names of Mr. J. F. Purcell of Winchester and Mr. Leo Paris of Woburn were omitted from the list of contributors to the En Ka Street Fair.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

A very attractive Camp Folder was received today from the Boy Scout Office giving the information that Camp Fellsland will open its fourteenth year on Sunday, July 3rd. Camp Fellsland is the supervised Boy Scout Camp for this area. Camp Ellis, which is a part of this same camp but for the younger group of boys from 9 to 11 years, will open on the same date, for its sixth season. The Camp will be open for six weeks, closing on Sunday, August 14th.

Mr. Edward W. Nelson, the Scout Executive, will again be Director of the Camp. Mr. Nelson reports that practically all of last year's staff will again be serving us this year. He reports also that additional floating equipment has been secured for this season, which will bring the total to seven canoes, one sailing skiff, and nine rowboats.

One additional improvement that is being made by the Camp Committee for this season is the construction of a Hot and Cold Shower Bath building, where the boys and leaders will have the opportunity of getting a good hot shower at regular intervals.

The Camp is located in Amesbury, Massachusetts, and Newton, New Hampshire, with part of the Camp in each state. To the best of our knowledge this is the only Camp that is so situated with part of its territory in two different states.

Miss Anna Little, the very efficient cook of the past two years, will again take care of the very sumptuous meals needed to appease the hunger of these red-blooded, active boys.

To any Scout, Cub, or interested parent who has not yet received one of the Camp Folders, they can receive the same by writing or calling the Boy Scout office, located at 230 South Border Road, Winchester. This office supervises the activities of Scouts, Cubs, and Seascouts in Medford, Winchester, Burlington, Woburn and Stoneham.

The Camp Committee, composed of the following members, are directly responsible for the conditions of the Camp, and if added information is desired one of these men can be interviewed personally for any special cases: George W. Pingree, 51 Hillsdale Road, Medford, Mass. 1072; Norman Houghton, 28 Congress Street, Stoneham, St. 1083-R; Warren Jenney, 22 Jefferson Road, Winchester, Win. 1010; Eric B. Johnson, 2 Fairmount Street, Woburn, Wob. 0553-R; E. A. Weaver, 326 Main Street, Winchester, Win. 0770-W; Edwin C. Whittemore, 19 Hillsdale Avenue, Winchester, Win. 0618-M; and Edward W. Nelson, 230 South Border Road, Winchester, Win. 2030.

A special Clean-up Week-end has been arranged by the Camp Committee, to be held at the Scout Camp on Saturday and Sunday, June 4th and 5th. Any friend of Scouting is welcome to come to Camp on either of these days to lend a hand in preparing the Camp for this 14th season.

Further reports in regard to the Camp will be printed at regular intervals in this column.

DANCING REVUE

A colorful stage dancing revue was staged on Friday evening at the Town Hall by the dancing classes of the Winchester Recreation Center. Parents of the children and the general public were invited, and the revue was followed by general dancing. Music for both the revue and the dance was furnished by Frank W. Johnson and his band, one of the popular metropolitan area dance orchestras.

On Friday afternoon from 2 to 5, Recreation Center staged a handicraft exhibit in the Town Hall to give the people of Winchester an idea of the carving and needlework being taught children at the Center. Many of the boys and girls have shown an amazing aptness in handicraft and the exhibit was decidedly worthwhile.

The dance revue was under the direction of Miss Theresa Hastie, instructor of the dancing classes. The program included the following:

Ballet—"Vienna Dreams" and Tap, "Variety Sue" Tap—"Bain St. Blues," Clara Capone, Florence Capone, Anna Galeio, Catherine Gallo and Edna Cry

A MOTHER AT TEN

An extraordinary event took place recently at Benson's Wild Animal Farm, Nashua, N. H. Their large chimpanzee "Eve" presented Mr. Benson with a three and one half pound baby boy. It is the first to be born in New England. The mother is 10 years old and "Adam," the father, is 11 years old.

A special nurse has been engaged to render all services and up to this time both mother and baby are in excellent condition. Mr. Benson promises us a photograph of the mother and baby as soon as it is possible to do so as this is a very extraordinary event and the nurse is afraid that something may happen if the mother should get excited.

The value of this baby is over $5000 and it is a wonderful subject for science to study.

OUR MODERN AGE

By J. J. Doherty

WE — THE PEOPLE

You know, this is a lucky nation. Just take the marriage situation. In Italy they give a prize to all the newly married guys—and H. L. H. does the same thing too. But ever here what do we do? We just increase the income tax—and all the boys, like jumping jacks, start hopping around to find some mate to whom they can transfer estates and show a profit (as when Uncle Sam says, "Come across.")

The most profitable investment you can make right now is to have your kitchen and bathroom modernized, completely and expertly by the specialists of Fells Plumbing & Heating Co., 430 Main St. The guarantee a beautiful, lasting job at reasonable cost. Why not phone 6983 today and ask them for an estimate?

For the first time in over 100 years, or since the leather business started there, not a side of leather was turned out at Woburn last Saturday, according to reliable information. The Woburn leather industry is flat! According to President Roosevelt's speech of not-so-long-ago "we planned it that way—and don't let anyone tell you different."
And so charitable people will now give our great President credit for carrying out at least one of his many reforms. More of a similar nature appear to be imminent. Praises be for Social Service! The thousand or more men and their families will now receive Government succor—paid for by the suckers still in business.

AS TO THIS AND THAT

A recent issue of Time records the alleged fact that while away from his insurance company and in receipt of $10,000.00 a year as Assistant President "Jimmie" continues to get some $55,000.00 annually as his share of the receipts of his Boston underwriting concern. It seems like a lot of money. One may wonder how much the other members get and what influenced so many businesses to place their insurance with young Mr.
Roosevelt's organization, also what the representatives of other insurance companies think about it and how they can survive.

The same issue of Time notes "Jimmie's" discovery of an economic principle that has escaped the study of professional economists; namely, that prosperity depends upon governmental spending. He enunciates the rule as obvious although probably not acceptable to ordinary economists who have not had his opportunities for observation. When the government spends freely prosperity results, when it economizes depression overwhelms. Just like that! It seems almost a pity that he did not find it out while passing the time at Harvard.
The pleased authorities might have felt it a reason for giving him a degree. Perhaps they may now.

The papers are carrying advertisements of Franklin's latest book, that state papers for the larger part with personal comments, at the price of fifteen dollars per set of some five or six volumes. It may be assumed that Federal employees and others who judge it wise to be on good terms with the powers-that-be will take pains to begin private libraries or to add these to the autographed copy of the National Democratic Committee.
The receipts are said to be earmarked for charity.

Casual students of character should not attribute the acquisitiveness of the Franklin branch of the Roosevelt family to their Dutch ancestry. The Dutch are thrifty to be sure, but for their public officials they prescribe standards of which the present occupants of the White House and their family seem utterly unaware.

SOCRATES SAYS—

ABOLISH POVERTY BY ABOLISH- ING WEALTH?

History will show that once upon a time there actually lived a tribe who really believed that if wealth could be destroyed, poverty would thereby be abolished. This race was known as "Dealers" and it has been proven that they were wrong. Their deeds and gasters. This fact has been definitely established by excavations recently completed along the shores of Northern Maine where enormous mounds, dedicated to the tide of the moon, were erected. Like the Pyramids of Ancient Egypt, this gigantic project undoubtedly was undertaken by the employment of thousands of workers at a cost not conceivable by moderns.

Now the theory, or plan, of this sect was to raise less food, to plough under crops, and kill off live-stock, to allow less interest on the savings of the people so they would have less income, raise the taxes on business so that it would earn less, tax all surplus so that no one could expand or grow and unemployment would increase, compete with private enterprise for money to spend so that no new capital for business expansion would be possible, frighten savings so that it would stay away from production, and also so that stocks would sell for less, discourage thrift so that the individual could never provide for his own security, lower values so that trust funds and insurance companies would be less sound, lend money to home owners and to business so that they would look to government, get everyone possible on government relief so that they would be dependant on the State, in fact, do everything possible to abolish wealth and dissipate all surpluses.

To us moderns the simple method of abundance for all is to encourage production, to stimulate it, to subsidize it—to produce every possible necessity and luxury of life so that everyone is to have everything they desire, such things must exist, they must be produced. There is no wealth in natural resources alone—they have always been here. It required enterprise, work, production, savings, thrift, surpluses, science, invention, and the rewards of private enterprise and initiative with mass production in order to bring abundance within the price possibility of the average man.

If the "Dealers" had landed here in 1620 and been in control since then, we would still be using the hand loom, and having the standard of living of the hand loom days. The abolishing of wealth would, of course, prohibit the possibility of ever abolishing poverty. You cannot have something if it does not exist. How much smarter it is to encourage production, thrift, capital and wealth—then tax it for the advantage of those less fortunate redistribution of abundance is only possible if abundance exists.
—Socrates

The Golden Text is: "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power; for thou has created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created" (Revelation 4:11).
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted above all. Both riches and honour come of thee, and thou reignest over all; and in thine hand is power and might; and in thine hand it is to make great, and to give strength unto all" (1 Chronicles 29:11, 12).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Unfathomable Mind is expressed. The depth, breadth, height, might, majesty, and glory of infinite Love fill all space. That is enough! Human language can repeat only an infinitesimal part of what exists" (p. 320).

"JOY OF LIVING" AT THE UNIVERSITY

A stormy romance between a stage star who sacrifices her happiness to keep her extravagant family in funds, and a carefree individual who believes in being happy at all costs, forms the theme of "Joy of Living," the unique musical comedy, which opens Sunday at the University. With Irene Dunne and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., in the top roles, the film presents these divergent view-points in delightful fashion. Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee, Jean Diep, Eric Blore, Lucille Ball and Warren Hymer are in the distinguished featured cast under Tay Garnett's direction. Jerome Kern composed the lilting score.

William Powell is a perfect butler and Annabella a perfect lady—and they're perfectly delightful together, co-starred in the romantic comedy hit, "The Baroness and the Butler," the associate feature. The supporting cast of Darryl F. Zanuck's newest hit features Helen Westley, Henry Stephenson, Joseph Schildkraut, J. Edward Bromberg, Nigel Bruce and Lynn Bari.

On Wednesday, Review Day, the program includes Ronald Colman in "The Lost Horizon" and Walt Disney's Academy Award Reveal.

"Mayerling" which starts Thursday, was first shown in New York to a selected group. "Mayerling" is a French masterpiece, and stars Danielle Darrieux, who won a Hollywood contract through her great portrayal in this picture, and Charles Boyer. "Mayerling" recounts the generally accepted version of the ill-starred romance between Archduke Rudolph of Austria and Baroness Marie Vetsera.

"Pools for Scandal," in which the great Franco-Belgian comedian, Fernand Gravel, co-stars with Miss Lombard will be the companion feature.

WINCHESTER THEATRE

"Bringing Up Baby" with Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant is a laugh riddled romance of a timid professor, who is caught in the windspin between an heiress on a rampage and a leopard on the loose. On the same program, "Penrod and His Twin Brother" with Billy and Bobby March.

Sunday through Wednesday, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" with Shirley Temple and Randolph Scott. Shirley plays Rebecca in her best of all musicals with stars all around her. You'd never know the old farm now! It's a streamlined Radio Center on a happiness hook-up for you. "Nuff said!" On the same program "Scandal Street" with Lew Ayres and Louise Campbell.

READING THEATRE

Deanna Durbin who unleashed her surprising soprano voice in police stations, in bed and in concert halls during her first two pictures, sings on bicycles, on railroad trains and in church choirs in her new film, "Mad About Music," which comes to the Reading Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

On the same bill Joe E. Brown plays a small town soda jerk in "Wide Open Faces." Circumstances plunge him into the role of detective and with Joe as a detective there promises to be plenty of fun.

This is a show that can be recommended for the whole family.
Miss Jean Thumlin won the white ribbon at the horse meet at Housen-Pines School at Norton Saturday last.

Annual Report of the Home for Aged People in Winchester

The annual meeting of the Home for Aged People in Winchester was held on Monday, May 9, 1938 at 8 p.m.

The following officers and directors were elected for one year:

President
CHARLES R. MAIN
Vice Presidents
NORMAN L. CUSHMAN
MRS. H. WADSWORTH HIGHT
MRS. GEORGE R. FERGUSON
Secretary
FRANCIS E. SMITH
Treasurer
ROBERT E. FAY
Auditor
WILLIAM EBEN RAMSDALL

To serve as Directors for two years: Mr. Marshall J. England, Mrs. Thoms I. Freeburn, Mrs. Guy B. Howe, Mr. Harold F. Meyer.

The following four directors terms do not expire until next year: Mrs. Reginald Bradlee, Mrs. Maurice F. Brown, Mr. G. Raymond Bancroft and Mr. J. Franklin Tuttle.

There are now 17 members of the Home as follows: Miss Mary L. Cobb, Mrs. Ella C. Perry, Mrs. Ella A. Todd, Mr. William B. Simonds, Mrs. Martha D. Simonds, Mrs. Viola A. Richardson, Miss Lydia J. Sanderson, Mrs. Edith E. Lloyd, Miss Katherine MacDonald, Mr. Charles Edward Cushing, Mrs. Isabella L. Turfs, Mrs. Orella Kimball, Miss Jessie Adams, Mrs. Eva Bruce Kimball, Miss Annie B. Stott, Miss Annar J. Thompson, Mrs. Harriet J. Weldon.

Miss Thompson and Mrs. Weldon joined during the last 12 months. Again this year the physicians of Winchester including Drs. Sheehy, Burgoyne, Quinn and Emery have ministered to members of the Home without monetary compensation. Dr. Holbrook Lowell, Dr. Besse, and through the suggestion of Dr. Bowers opinion in Stoneham, Dr. Funnell of Boston all eye specialists have treated our members without charge. Thus, following the noble traditions of their profession these doctors have brought untold relief and comfort to the Home, and we are most grateful to them.

Dr. J. C. Hinder, Dr. Harrison Parker and Dr. Eugene Pollard, dentists, have rendered aid when needed. We thank them also.

Many other townspeople have provided inspiring help, Messrs. Ralph T. Joslin, Atty., William Eben Ramsdall, Atty., J. Franklin Tuttle, Engineer, and T. Price Wilson, publisher and printer, have again given the Home professional advice and assistance.

Mr. Kelly of the Park Radio Co. has given us much free service. Mr. Ernest Butterworth clock service without charge; Mr. Nutting, cabinet maker, has repaired tables and furniture without charge. Messrs. John Caruthers Co. (Mr. J. Rutherford Edmonds) public accountants have again audited our books. Mr. Soller of Soller's Market has done much trucking for us, and helped otherwise; and the Schneider Milk Farm has donated a very considerable amount of milk; and from Mr. Hevey, druggist, we have again received many favors.

Attention is called to the bequests mentioned in the Treasurer's report of $500 from the estate of John B. Challis; $6,969.13 from the estate of Charles E. Kendall, plus a share in the real estate.

As in other years the backbone of the Home's financial support came from the income from bequests and from money given by contributing and sustaining members. We hope that these members realize the happiness they have bestowed. It is difficult adequately to thank them.

The En Ka Society from the proceeds of their festival in May 1937 have paid for the following improvements and additions to the property of the Home: (1) A flight of steps from the sun room into the front yard. (2) Fixing over the roof last summer. (3) Fixing mattress and beds for the hospital room. (4) New stair carpets and new vacuum cleaner.

The Winchester Group Theatre donated to us $100, the profits of their 1936-1937 season. We have installed a buzzer room-communication system, and also are now installing a complete automatic sprinkler system for fire prevention.

Our matron, Mrs. Maude T. Wofford, is back with us again, after recovering from a broken hip, and with the able co-operation of her excellent staff of assistants in carrying on the Home efficiently and with keen sympathy and consideration for the health and happiness of the members.

As in other years the people of Winchester have been most generous, and their gifts have brought much joy and new interests in the life of the members. Donation Day again in charge of Mrs. Meyer and her capable assistant Mrs. Guy Lowe was a signal success. Cash amounting to $200.75 was received from contributions made by Mrs. G. N. P. Mead, The Tuesday Club, Mrs. Madeline P. Cushman, Edward H. Stone, Miss Minnie B. Joy, Mrs. H. Richmond, Mrs. G. N. Colville, Mrs. Elsie M. Downer, Mrs. H. F. Meyers, Florence E. Boone, Mrs. Louise G. Bradlee, Mrs. Annie A. Page, Miss Alice Joy, Mrs. George Ferguson, Mrs. John Meyers, Miss Helen W. Norris, Miss Clara H. Palmer and Miss Eunice Friend.

Many touching evidences of love are embodied in the gifts to the Home. For instance all who knew Mrs. Alma Sherman must rejoice in the provision for gifts each year to members of the Home as a tribute of affection to her. The results attained through the devotion of the founders of the Home and their successors we hope will be perpetuated by continued gifts and bequests from our fellow townspeople.

BOOKLET FULL OF VACATION SUGGESTIONS

A 96 page catalog is just off the press and contains a great many vacation suggestions. It tells where to go, the different ways of going, how long it will take and what it will cost, by steam, rail and motor coach, including hotels, meals, sight-seeing, etc. A great many trips suggested are via large ocean steamers with recreation and entertainment to Nova Scotia, Quebec, Newfoundland, Saguenay and St. Lawrence Rivers, the Great Lakes, Bermuda and the West Indies. There are also many trips for those who would like motor travel to the White Mountains, Quebec, Gaspe and Nova Scotia, the "Land of the Sky," Blue Ridge and Great Smoky Mountains, etc. For those who would like a more extensive vacation to America's scenic wonders, there are independent, and all-expense tours to California, our Great National Parks, Yellowstone, Grand Canyon, Colorado Springs, Yosemite, Mt. Ranier, Canadian Rockies and also Alaska, Mexico and Europe.

This travel booklet "Big and Little Journeys" will prove very interesting and will help you plan your trip and save your time and money. Ask for the catalog, Colpitts Tourist Company, 262 Washington street, Boston.

BRYANT & STRATTON SCHOOL

The twentieth summer session of Bryant & Stratton opens on July 5. There has been a consistent growth in this branch of the school and at the present time the increase in the number of enrollments for this season is proof of the popularity of this form of education. High school and college students are realizing the advantage of starting their vocational training before September. There is vacation time before and after the six weeks' study period. The summer school program is very flexible and affords the opportunity of concentrating on one or two subjects or of starting a full diploma course. The intensive character of the instruction, made possible by small classes and individual advancement, appeals equally to those who have only the summer available and to those entering upon longer courses.

PERENNIALS IN FULL BLOOM

Now that perennials are in full bloom, hundreds of flower enthusiasts are making a pilgrimage to the Little Tree Farms' Perennial Show at Framingham Centre. In addition to the many varieties of these popular plants displayed, visitors to the Farms find much of interest in the colorful array of potted Roses and other flowering plants in the greenhouse section and the special off-house section and the special off-house section and the special off-house section.

In accordance with the spirit of the occasion, special values in all departments are offered.

For the benefit of those planning rose gardens or needing advice on any planting problem, a representative of the Landscape Department is available to answer questions.

"I'm the fastest thing in this town," said a Winchester fellow not long ago. Then the thing for him to do is to visit New York and step into an express elevator in one of its skyscrapers and when he gets back to Winchester his ego will be less inflated.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Ann Page

Fruits are quite rushing the season. Watermelons are as plentiful and low in price as they were last season at the fourth of July. Peaches and berries also are unusually early. Pine apples continue to be abundant and cheap.

Old white potatoes, sweets and yams are gradually disappearing from market. Apples, grapefruit, Florida oranges, mushrooms and Belgian endive are also much less plentiful.

Beef and pork loins are somewhat cheaper. Spring lamb is not yet as cheap as old lamb. Small fowl and ducks are reasonable in price. Eggs are again a little higher. Fish is plentiful and cheap.

THIRTEEN HELD REUNION

High School Twenty-Five Year
Class Met Last Friday

The Winchester High School Class of 1913 re-established old friendships and associations, reminisced, re-lived its school days and generally renewed its youth in its twenty-fifth anniversary reunion, held last Friday evening in the high school gymnasium.

More than 60 members of the class with their husbands and wives, and their guests, sat down to a delicious lobster salad supper which followed an impromptu period of hand-shaking, back-slapping and general get-together, as class-mates met, many for the first time since their graduation 25 years ago.

During the dinner, which was served at long tables, decorated with flowers by the feminine members of the committee in charge of arrangements, music of the vintage of 1913 was played on the piano by Mrs. Oscar Merrow, whose efforts were much enjoyed and rewarded with flowers and the sincere appreciation of the class.

Stimulated by the pianist's nimble fingers, those musically minded enthusiastically burst into song, joining heartily in the choruses of such old favorites as "Moonlight Bay," "Symphony," "Get Out and Get Under," "Everybody's Doing It," and "Darling." "An Evening Old" Allan Wilbur led the singing, ably seconded by Frank Lane. The inevitable group picture was taken just before the community singing.

Jan. Paulan, the class president, presided at the formal program which followed the singing, reading first the class honor roll of members deceased since the graduation of the class on June 17, 1913. Those included Esther C. Ayer, E. Langworthy Burwell Jr., Sylvia S. Gunterson, Katherine Hale, Sarah E. W. Hunt, James Keane, Ernest W. Matthews and Chester R. Smith. All present stood in silence during the reading of the roll.

The class roll was read by Miss Eva M. Palmer, dean of girls at Winchester High and home room teacher at the time in its graduation year, who interspersed her reading with the personal references to class members which proved the accuracy of her memory and re-established her classmate's honor.

Also present as guest of the class was Mrs. F. E. Travis of Sherborn, who as Miss Kenty was for two years the home room teacher of the 1913 class. She was introduced and given a rousing welcome, receiving a special cheer in which only the men were permitted to join. Her brief remarks were witty and crowded with happy recollections of the "old days" in room and her pleasure at renewing her friendships with members of the class. Both Miss Palmer and Mrs. Travis were given flowers, old-fashioned courtesies being presented as especially appropriate to the occasion.

BISHOP FATHER WILL ORDAIN SON

Mr. Ludlow is a member of this year's graduating class at Cambridge Theological Seminary. He chose Winchester as the place of his ordination after three years of participation in the life of the parish as a teacher in the church school.

In the service the epistle will be read by the Rector of Epiphany, Rev. Dwight Hadley, candidate will himself read the gospel, and the litany will be read by Rev. John A. Bishop Ludlow is well known to many people in the Boston area. In 1920-1921 he was rector of St. Paul's Church, Newton Highlands.

In addition to his knowledge of Chinese languages and his understanding and respectful knowledge of the Chinese caused him to go as welfare worker to the Chinese who were in France during the Chinese Expeditionary Force.

CHILD FATALLY INJURED

"Dickie" Rogers Struck by Car at Filling Station

Richard Rogers, better known about the center as "Dickie" and five year old son of William H. and Elsie M. (Preston) Rogers of 15 Winchester place, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile Friday afternoon shortly before 5 o'clock at the Gulf Filling Station, 608 Main street.

According to the Police account of the accident "Dickie" was in the company of his older brother, Robert, 7, his sister, Elizabeth, 9, and Evelyn Keith, 16 Winchester place. The car that injured the little boy was a Packard sedan, owned by Charles F. Perkins of 186 Reservoir road, Chestnut Hill, and operated by Marie G. Bostwick of 10 Hillcrest Parkway.

Miss Bostwick, accompanied by Margaret A. Bostwick of 11 Appalaich road, the latter's 10 year old daughter, Joan, and Gloria Herrick, 12, of 6 Ainsworth road, was driving south on Main street and turned into the filling station, bringing her car to a stop about five feet inside the sidewalk.

After a short stop for an errand at Bonnell Motors next door, Miss Bostwick started her car and feeling a sharp bump as if it had run over something, brought the machine to a stop after going ahead about a car length. As she stopped one of the girls, looking out the rear window, called out that there was a child lying on the ground.

Mrs. Margaret Bostwick got out and found the little Rogers boy lying behind the machine. She took him into the Gulf Station, from where he was taken by Special Officer William E. Richardson, an employee of Bonnell's, to the Winchester Hospital in one of Bonnell's cars.

At the hospital "Dickie" was treated by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy for lacerations of the face and left leg, multiple abrasions, a brain injury, fracture of the ribs and shock. He died at 10:55 that night.

Neither the operator of the machine nor any of the passengers saw the little boy until after he had been hit and none of his companions could tell how the accident occurred. "Dickie" himself, much conscious, was unable to tell Sgt. Charles J. Harrold, who investigated the case, how he happened to be struck.

Richard Rogers was born in Winchester and was well known and very popular about the square. He often visited Police Headquarters where he was a favorite with the officers, his witty and pun and cheery manner endearing him to all who knew him.

He is survived, besides his parents, by two sisters, Elizabeth and Ruth Ann, and by three brothers, Raymond F., Robert J., and William H. Rogers, Jr.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Edward M. Higgins officiating. Burial was in the "Dickie" friends, Robert McCormack, Leo Tracy, James Styles and John Parlette. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

WINCHESTER WOMAN ROBBED

Mrs. Lorence Woodside of 42 Lebanon street was robbed of a handbag containing a sum of money, keys, and other valuable articles shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday evening while walking with a friend on Highland avenue near Webster street.

The robbery came up behind the two women and struck Mrs. Woodside's companion on the back of the neck. He then seized Mrs. Woodside's bag, tearing it from the carrying strap which she retained in her hand.

Securing the bag the thief ran off, pursued by Mrs. Woodside who lost him at Eaton street. The police believe he may have escaped in a truck which was seen speeding away without lights by Patrolman Henry Dempsey. Officer Dempsey attempted to halt the truck but the driver refused to stop, and later a similar truck was seen speeding by Fletcher street by Officer James Farrell.

Officer Farrell was unsuccessful in an attempt to halt the truck, but got its number and further investigation will be conducted by the Police. Two men were riding in the machine.

Little Miss Catherine Malloy of this town, a flower girl and a small brother of the bridegroom, Anthony Decarlo was ring bearer.

John Decarlo of Boston was best man for his cousin, the usher, and the church was Michael Decarlo of Boston, brother of the bridegroom, Anthony Talone of Boston, Flume Marchesi of Winchester, brother of the bride, and Joseph Graziano of this town.

The bride wore a gown of white brocade marquisette with a veil of tulle and carried a bouquet of calla lilies. The groom wore a blue tuxedo with a white shirt and a white cravat and carried a bouquet of calla lilies and carried roses. The bridesmaids were given white in pink brocade marquisette and like the honor maid wore hats to match their gowns. Their flowers were old fashioned bouquets. The little flower girl wore a frock of white marquisette with a poke bonnet and carried a basket of rose petals.

Upon their return home the bride and bridegroom were met by a large party of relatives and friends and showered with rice, confetti and following an old Italian custom, with coins.

A reception for 800 guests was held Sunday evening in Fortnightly Hall from 6 until 11 o'clock. Ushers for the reception were Paul Marchesi, Boston and Rosari Marchesi of Winchester, brothers of the bride; Michael Penta, James Fiore and Ralph Del Grasso, all of Winchester; Jack Talone of Boston and Peter and Salvatore Decarlo of Somerville, cousins of the bridegroom.

Upon their return from a honeymoon spent in New York and Washington, D. C., the bride and groom made their home in Medford.

and baskets of seasonal flowers. Led by their president, Daniel Delorey, the graduates marched to their places on the enlarged stage, music for their entrance being played by the high school orchestra under the direction of Frederick Dalzell, orchestral instructor at the school. On the stage with the graduates were Principal Wade L. Grindle and Mr. James S. Allen, chairman of the school committee. The National Colors were displayed at the graduates' right and the State Colors, at the left. The year, 1938, being the sesqui-centennial of the Constitution of the United States, the exercises were arranged to honor this important historical event, all three of the student addresses being of an historic nature and prepared under the direction of Mrs. Ella Stacey of the School History Department. There was no guest speaker.

Secretary, High School Graduate, Winner of Sesqui-Centennial Medal, Graduation Speaker

The exercises opened with the invocation which was made by Rev. George A. Butters, pastor of the Crawford Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church. The opening address, "Framers of the Constitution" was delivered by Eleanor Jenkins, and was followed by two selections, sung by the high school chorus, the Russian Hymn, "God Ever Glorious," and the Old English Folk Song, "Flow Gent Sweet Afton." conducted and the accompanist was Frances Randall. It should be said the singing of the chorus and the playing of the accompanist were most commendable under a bout as poor musical conditions as possible, the singers being so spread out as to get in most instances little, and in some cases, no help at all from the piano while Mr. Wilson was obliged to conduct from the seat of a chair well out in the aisle.

Rita McGonigle delivered the second of the addresses, "A More Per-

HENDEY-HUMPHREY

The altar of St. Mary's Church was decorated with white roses and carnations on Saturday morning, June 4, for the marriage of Miss Ruth Alice Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Humphrey of Myrtle street, to Donald Newell Hendey of Cambridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hendey of White Plains, N. Y. Rev. Fr. Joseph Mahoney performed the marriage ceremony at 8.30 o'clock, and music for the entrance of the bride party was played by the church organist, Miss Florence Fisher.

Miss Humphrey was given in marriage by her father and attended on by her sister, Miss Mary L. Humphrey of this town. Richard S. Hendey of White Plains, N. Y., was his brother's best man and the ushers were Robert Humphrey of Winchester, brother of the bride; and Willis Clark of Melrose, a classmate of the bridegroom at Princeton.

The bride wore a white lace gown with matching tulle veil, arranged with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and valley lilies. Her honor maid wore a dress of yellow chiffon, trimmed with velvet, and a matching horsehair hat. Her flowers were yellow roses and blue delphinium.

After the ceremony a reception for members of the immediate families was held on the S.S. Lady Drake, the boat on which Mr. Hendey and his bride sailed for a honeymoon in Bermuda.

The bride is a graduate of Winchester High School and until her marriage was employed as a secretary by a Boston business house. Mr. Hendey is preparing for college at Pauline School and is a graduate of Princeton, where he was a member of the varsity baseball team and the Tiger Inn Club. He is associated with the Boston office of the American Telephone Company and with his bride will make his home at Langdon Courts in Cambridge.

Miss Esther Gabler of Schenectady, N. Y., has been spending the past few days as the guest of Miss Virginia Smith. They returned to Connecticut College Thursday for the commencement exercises.

Upon their return from a three weeks' cruise to Bermuda, Mr. Dunbar and his bride will make their home in Island Park on Long Island, N. Y. The bride attended the Winchester schools, Fisher College and Wellesley Night School. Mr. Dunbar prepared for college at New Hampton Preparatory School and is a graduate of Tufts College. Winchester has cause to congratulate its two representatives, Senator Harris S. Richardson and Representative William E. Ramsdell, in the success of their efforts to clean our river and Upper Mystic Lake. Through untiring efforts and their ability to enlist the support of Commissioner Hultman and Engineer Weston, they have succeeded in carrying through what will be, when completed, the outstanding improvement in Winchester in many years.

It must have been apparent to any one who attended Tuesday evening's graduation that the school classes have outgrown the high school auditorium. Unsatisfactory as the town hall may be in many ways it would seem that the commencement exercises should be returned there, if for no other reason than to provide something like adequate accommodations for the graduates and others who must participate in them. Heeded together on the wholly inadequate stage, which has to be enlarged to provide even such accommodations as there are, Tuesday evening's graduates must have put in a particularly trying and torrid evening, and though the water was drawn from the boiler located directly beneath the platform. There was virtually no ventilation and the young people and their guests on the stage, in addition to cramped limbs, must have experienced something akin to suffocation upon an occasion which for the youngsters at least was one of the memorable events of their lives.

Aside from this angle, the town hall has a seating capacity of 1008, or 274 more than the school auditorium can accommodate, making it possible for more relatives and friends of the graduates to witness the ceremony and enjoy the thrill of seeing "their" boy or girl receive the coveted diploma. This year because of the size of the graduating class it was necessary to reduce the number of tickets given each graduate, and those in charge of the ticket distribution will, we believe, testify to the disappointment caused by the reduction. High School graduation is one of the red letter events of the town's community life. It should take place in the largest available hall, where as many as possible who so desire can attend and enjoy it. In the high school auditorium it is hardly possible to accommodate the immediate families of the graduates. Finally, it is asking a lot of the director of music to produce an acceptable program under present conditions. This year one row of singers stood directly in front of the audience, another in front of the enlarged stage and a third across the stage in front of the graduates. Groups of singers had to be placed at either side of the stage and the director was obliged to conduct, standing on the edge of a slanting chair-seat several rows out in the audience, facing the possibility of a fall if nothing more. Those even superficially acquainted with choral singing must have wondered at the results obtained under such trying conditions. As for the prompter behind the curtain, her position was surely a most unenviable one. In fact all in any way responsible for the success of graduation had to perform under difficulties, which at least might be materially lessened if the exercises were held once again in the larger and much more workable town hall.

PENNA-CEFALO

Miss Virginia Silvia Cefalo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Generoso Cefalo of Malvern street, Melrose, and George Penna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sebastian Penna of Irving street, were married by the members of the Franciscan Order in St. Leonard's Church, Boston Sunday morning, June 5, at 11:30 o'clock.

Miss Cefalo was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Miss Philomena Pizzano of Medford as maid of honor. Miss Mina Lombardi of Medford, Miss Louise Cefalo of Melrose, Miss Edith DeMingo of Boston and Miss Elsie Capone of Somerville were bridesmaids, and the little junior bridesmaid was Miss Alma Cefalo of Melrose.

Mr. Penna had for his best man Louis Cefalo of Melrose and the ushers were Frank Scarpa of Melrose, Nicholas Sannella of Jamaica Plain, Ralph Sarni of Melrose, Joseph Lepore of Medford, Leo Lombardi of Medford and George Fromiglo of Jamaica Plain.

The bride wore a gown of egg-shell satin with a tulle veil and carried orchids and valley lilies. The honor maid wore a southern style gown of pale blue net with a horse-hair picture hat and carried pink snapdragons and blue larkspur. The bridesmaids were all gowned alike, wearing pale pink frocks or mousseline de soie and lace with horse-hair picture hats and carrying blue larkspur and babies' breath.

A wedding breakfast was served at the Monte restaurant and a reception held at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. Penna and his bride will make their home in Malden.

The bride was graduated from St. Mary's High School in Melrose. Mr. Penna graduated from Winchester High School and from Northeastern University.

FLOWER ARRANGEMENT CLINIC

Members and friends of the Better Homes Garden Club who are interested in flower arrangement will have an unusual opportunity at a meeting to be held on Wednesday afternoon, June 15, at 2:30 p. m. in the Public Library. Mrs. Charles S. Grover of Auburndale, recording secretary of the Federal Horticultural Society of Massachusetts, will talk on flower arrangement, illustrating the principles by criticism of arrangements brought by members. Mrs. Grover is well known in the city and has served in that capacity for two of the club's shows. As an authority on flower arrangement she has been teaching a course at the Garland School.

Members are urged to bring arrangements for constructive criticism, and also to bring containers or flower material that have presented awkward problems of arrangement. This is a valuable opportunity to obtain expert advice on individual difficulties, as well as enlightenment for those who would like a better understanding of the reasons behind flower show awards in arrangement classes.

BOWLER-KEDY

In a setting of tall poplar trees, white carnations and bridal wreath, Miss A. Carolyn Kedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stiles Fraser Kedy of Franklin street, Melrose, and Lowell Woodson Bowler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Downing Bowler of Edgefield road, were married Saturday afternoon, June 4, at 4 o'clock in the Park Street Church, Boston, by Rev. John A. Hoffman. The wedding music was played on the organ by Mrs. A. Z. Conrad.

Miss Kedy was given in marriage by her father and was attended by two bridesmaids, Miss Geraldine Konstanton of Melrose and Miss Mary MacKenzie of Boston. Master David Brodeur of Arlington was ring bearer. Arthur Bowler was his brother's best man and the usher, headed by another brother of the bridegroom, Downing Bowler of this town, included Robert Holmes of Milton, George Watson, Jr., of Boston and Frank Jackson of Cambridge.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette over white satin, made with a train and a long tulle veil arranged with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and geraniums. Miss Konstanton and Miss MacKenzie also wore dresses of marquisette over satin. Miss Konstanton wearing peach, and Miss MacKenzie, aqua. Both brides carried bouquets of white roses and delphiniums.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served at the home of the bride's parents, and Mr. Bowler and his bride left for a motor home. The bride is a graduate of Miss Gibb's School class of 1937, and is a member of the Phi Theta Psi sorority. Mr. Bowler, who is engaged in business, attended Northeastern University.

Business Loans -

This Bank is eager to have a part in the improvement of business in general but particularly of Winchester business.

In order to do our share we are ready and willing to grant loans to business men. If you wish to obtain a loan for a sound purpose, and if you meet our other credit requirements, we will approve your application promptly. If it does not meet our requirements of sound banking, we will tell you so frankly, together with our reasons.

In some cases where a loan can be made that will be so secured as reasonably to assure its repayment but is of such a character that it should not be made by a bank, we will gladly forward the application to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for its consideration.

If you have a banking problem we will be glad to discuss it with you.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Three members were absent from the meeting of June 9. This is our best attendance record since the transfer of our quarters to the Country Club. It should be maintained for the balance of the month, at least.

Among the guests present we were pleased to note our former member, Clarence McDevitt.

The latest news from Edmund Sanderson is indeed cheering. We are personally assured by Ed, himself that "it won't be long now" before he appears at our meetings. And it can't be too soon, Ed.

Now that an excellent golf course is more readily accessible we note a renewed interest in this popular sport among our members. A tentative date for a match has been offered and Allan Wilde is chairman in charge of this affair. Members interested should communicate with Allan at once.

We quote from the latest issue of the Rotary International News Letter: "Extension in Latin America is moving along at a very rapid pace, breaking all records in that region. Since July 1, 1937, 66 Latin American clubs have been admitted to Rotary International, already 120 per cent ahead of last year at this time."

King Farouk, who has recently acceded to the throne of Egypt, has graciously accepted his appointment as honorary governor of the Rotary clubs in Egypt.

Our guest speaker at the current meeting was Miss Edna McDonough, Executive Secretary of the International Friendship League. The League is organized in 74 countries throughout the world and one of its major activities consists in sponsoring the interchange of visits between groups of selected youth of various nationalities. Miss McDonough, who has had long experience in this work, feels that it is of inestimable value in promoting good will among the nations and reports that the young visitors are most enthusiastic as a result of their travels. Furthermore, we are told that Rotary Clubs have supported the League most effectively and have made possible some of its most ambitious undertakings. We understand that a large group of young people from London will visit the United States this summer and will be entertained in private homes where youth of their own age can act as hosts to them. International Service of this sort constitutes a powerful influence in keeping this troubled world on the road to tranquility.

We are indebted to our International Service committee, James J. Quinn, chairman for bringing to us this excellent presentation. Remember, we are out to correct our rather unsatisfactory attendance record of last month. Let us close this Rotary year with an "excellent" mark.

Percentage of Attendance, June 2, 88.24 per cent.

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "To hold your self superior to him, because God made you superior to it and governs man, is true wisdom. To fear sin is to misunderstand the power of Love and the divine nature of the human mind, relation to God, to doubt His government and distrust His omnipotent care." (p. 231).

HEART TO HEART TALKS

Set Yourself a Goal

On the wall of the study in the home of a friend of mine is a typewritten sheet titled "Mistakes to be Avoided" and then follows the list, as follows:

Infirm temper, rickety patience, impatient service, one-sided judgment, ears dull of understanding, eyes of faith dim, pessimistic instead of hopeful, halting in consecration, avarice, intolerance, intemperance, bickering in eating and drinking, dishonesty, lust for power, slothfulness.

My friend has set a real goal for himself and he says he is doing very well in attaining it. It will be noted from the list a man sets for himself a power while it will require all his powers to succeed. The rewards of sterling character remunerate those who carry out a plan like my friend's above that has been thoughtfully made. Growth in character gives strength and conscious power to face life's every day problems.

Christian civilization will not permit us to stand still, satisfied with the status quo. In the long, long ago man began to resolve on nobler conduct, in greater achievement, perhaps in greater kindness. The home began to show gentleness toward weaker members. Slowly but surely we are beginning to learn the meaning of self sacrifice.

Let us remember that spiritual strength from the Almighty comes into the heart warm with genuine love for God and men.

OBSERVATIONS

By the Observer

Level headed Winchesterites—those that do not have oil burners—now plan to put in next winter's supply of coal. And, incidentally, Winchester's coal has no superior anywhere.

It is all right for a Winchesterite to believe in himself but he should not stretch his credulity too far.

"What can you say for this man's truth and veracity?" asked a judge not a thousand miles from Winchester.

"I can't say for sure," replied the witness. "I have never been fishing with him."

Alas! Just a few years from now people right here in fair Winchester will have to consult a reference work to find out who first flew the Atlantic. Such is fame!

SELECTMEN'S NOTES

The Board wishes to call attention to the 5c fare on the buses between Winchester center and Cambridge Street recently established by the Eastern Mass. St. Railway Company. Sufficient patronage will keep this fare a permanent feature of bus service.

Hearing will be held on June 29 at 2 o'clock on the joint petition of the Edison and N. E. Telephone companies for permission to erect three poles on Manomet road.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our neighbors and friends and to assure them of our deep appreciation of the beautiful flowers and the kindly sympathy extended us at the time of Duke's death.

with the singing of "America the Beautiful" by Katherine Lee Bates, in which the audience joined.

The auditorium was taxed to its capacity, and because of the size of the graduating class it was necessary to limit the tickets beyond the numbers assigned in previous years. It was very warm in the hall, and conditions upon the closely packed stage, with almost complete lack of ventilation, must have been literally stifling.

Headed by Douglas Graham, they included Richard Bugee, Philip Quinn, Samuel Pilkington, Joseph Burton, Earle Andrews, William Burke, Allan Abbott, Vincent Errico, Charles Bacon, Richard Swanson and Raymond Murdock. An innovation on the program this year was the inclusion of special reference to those who have done honor's work in the various school departments as well as those who graduated with highest honor and with high honor.

FORTNIGHTLY ANTIQUES

Pilgrimage to Wells Historical Museum, Southbridge

Two years ago the Preservation of Antiques Group made a Pilgrimage to the Wells Museum at Southbridge. The question has been asked why do we go again?

Since our visit in 1936 it has been incorporated as a public museum and is now open to the general public; 42 rooms which includes all of the dwelling house. One of the least known, though certainly one of the largest, is the Wells Historical Museum of Southbridge. Like many museums, this began a number of years ago as a private collection. The guiding genius and collector is Albert B. Wells, who started as a buyer of "primitive" antiques and branched out into practically every field of collecting. The museum has expanded from a small barn moved to adjoin Mr. Wells' residence to an institution of 42 rooms, including all of the large dwelling house. Within a few years another big change will be made. Plans are now under way for the erection of an extensive reproduction village in the neighboring Town of Sturbridge, where American village life of about 1800 will be shown.

Cars will leave the Unitarian Church promptly at 9:30 a. m. Luncheon at the Cohasset Country Club before going to the Museum. All reservations must be made before June 11, with your chairman, Win. 0017.

Pilgrimage to Antrim, N. H. A pilgrimage is scheduled for Tuesday, June 21, if stormy, June 22. The chairman is Mrs. Marshall Symmes. Box luncheon at Fairacres, Antrim, N. H. The Franklin Pierce House, Hillsboro, N. H. and the Ocean Born Mary's House, Henniker, N. H., will be visited. Watch the Star for further details.

SUNDAY DINNER SUGGESTIONS

By Cora Anthony
Director, A. & P. Kitchen

Berries, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries and wild and cultivated blueberries, are storming the markets. Bing cherries keep them company. Peaches are big and luscious for so early in the season. Small cantaloupes and oranges are better value than large.

Beans and asparagus are less plentiful; beets, broccoli, cabbage, cauliflower and spinach more so. Lettuce is now low in price and tomatoes extremely cheap for the season.

Chickens, ducklings and spring lamb are moderately priced delicacies. Beef is still reasonable. Fish is plentiful and inexpensive. Fish rice in egg prices has stopped for the time being.

Here are three seasonal dinner menus.

THIS WEEK IN THE GARDEN

By Alfred A. Fraser of Wellesley

Aphids often attack Sweet Peas at this time of the year. Spray foliage and ground with a nicotine or rotenone spray.

Tulip foliage, weeds, wilted flowers and other refuse should not remain in the garden—such material often breeds disease.

Potted roses may yet be planted—water heavily.

When the foliage of tulips has turned brown, the bulbs must be lifted and stored.

Now is the best time to plant Cannas.

Cut worms often attack seedlings—as a protection against them, place cardboard collars around the plants.

The last opportunity for planting dahlias tubers.

Tender plants such as tomatoes, peppers and eggplants may now be transferred from the coldframe to the garden.

Use fast growing annuals for early color effects.

Lilies should never be allowed to seed. The vigor of the plant is thus impaired.

Universal regret was expressed at the inability of Principal Emeritus Edwin N. Lovering, grand old man of the Winchester High School, to be present, and special greetings signed by all the class members were sent to "the Gent." Letters were received from two former principals, Elbert C. Wixom, now at South High School in Cleveland, and Edward E. Thompson, at present at Oak Park, Ill. High School, both of whom also regretted their inability to attend. Greetings from the class were also sent to "Wixie" and "Tommy."

Letters and telegrams were read by Mary Martin from classmates unable to be present, including some from as far distant as the Pacific coast, Colorado, Ohio, Illinois, Washington, Florida and Virginia. Greetings from the class of 1911 were also sent in by its president, Kenneth Caldwell, who "crashed the gate" himself late in the evening.

Rep. William E. Ramsdell read the class statistics which he compiled in 1913, adding a bit as he went along and as opportunity presented. The old class prophecy was read by Anna (Tindall) Hard, one of the original prophets, and by Frank Lane, pinch-hitting for Gilbert Swett, the other original seer who was unable to attend. The class song by Alice (Romkey) Winn, first rendered at graduation was also sung with Mrs. Merrow at the piano.

Concluding the program was the showing of graduation and team pictures, gales of laughter being evoked with spontaneous applause as the likenesses appeared upon the screen. Long after the lights came up again those present lingered in the gymnasium as if loath to conclude the reunion. At a brief business meeting it was voted to have the next reunion in five years. Jim Penaligan was elected permanent class secretary.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the reunion included Marion (Trott) Fries, Anna (Tindall) Hurd, Mary Martin, Isabel (Marchant) O'Neil, Andrew Anderson, Wren Goddard, Franklin Lane, James Penaligan and Allan Wilde.

Among the class members present were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Dover, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Downer, Mr. and Mrs. Jan T. Fries (Marion Trott), Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Freeman, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Fowler (Lillian Knapp), Mr. and Mrs. Paul Goddu, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Goddu, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hurd (Anna Tindall), Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Love, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Meyer, Mr. and Mrs. George Proctor (Fairfax Wallace), Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peel (Mary Dooley), Mr. and Mrs. Wray Rohman, Mr. and Mrs. William Ramsdell, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Strawbridge, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wilde, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Winn (Alice Romkey), Margaret Winn Bartlett, Leroy Downer, Florence Amsden Ellis, Mildred Hargrove, Barbara French Burton, Daniel Harlow, Louis Marchant, Isabel Marchant O'Neil, Mary Martin, Stanley Mobbs, Irene Murphy, Margaret O'Hearn, James Penaligan, Olive Randlett, Catherine O'Melia Ray, Marie McLaughlin Sullivan and Dean Wheatley.

TROOP 7 NEWS

Scoutmaster A. O. Weld and assistant scoutmaster J. C. Casler, together with Donald Johnson, John Harris, Hugh Hawks and David Cameron went to Camp Lane last Saturday. They found the camp in good condition. Fires were built on the bank of the Lovejoy river. Steaks, bacon and eggs were soon prepared for lunch. The main meal, prepared by the assistant scoutmaster, consisted of roasted dogs, bread and jam, strawberry shortcake, squash pie and cheese. John Harris discovered a snake and an Indian war dance was organized. They had everything but the feathers. Mr. snake was soon captured in the middle of the river by the scoutmaster. After the fires were drenched, we went to the ball park and played five innings with a tie score of 25-25.

David Cameron passed second class requirement number seven in fire building, also second class cooking. John Harris, first class cooking, Hugh Hawks, second class in cooking, second class in knife and axe and second class in fire building. The camp was put in order, and on our way out to the street our scoutmaster discovered another snake sound asleep. A council was held and a well directed blow with a baseball bat from the scoutmaster only stunned him; a lover's knot was slipped over his head and with the combined efforts of Donald Johnson and John Harris he was brought to Mr. Butterworth's store for inspection. He measured 5 feet long. At the last report he was on his way back to Camp Lane.

Troop 7 received a blue ribbon for the best showing in the Memorial Day parade.

Several hundred Boy Scouts of Greater Boston held a service last Sunday on board the U. S. F. Constitution at the Charlestown Navy Yard. Forty marines from Providence, attached to the Sea Scouts, came in buses and participated in the service. Capt. Thomas P. Thompson, chaplain of the yard, addressed the boys on loyalty to their parents, their superiors and their country. Troop 7 had the largest number present in Metropolitan Boston.

At the regular meeting last Monday night Bud Rasset passed first class in service. Everett Stevens completed tenderfoot and uniform; Donald Goodwin, second class in first aid and second class in service; Addison Augusta, second class in oath and law, also second class in service; Ralph Reynolds, second class in first aid; Hugh Hawks, second class in scout pace.

David Rocray, second class in safety; Edward O'Connell, second class in service; Thomas Flaherty, second class in service; David Cameron, second class in oath and law; Robert Huckins, first class in judging; Francis Kerrigan, tenderfoot requirement; Phillips Ewell, second class in safety, second class service, scout pace and compass.

WINCHESTER WON FROM MAYNARD

Winchester High stayed in the Middlesex League championship race by outclassing Maynard High last Friday at Maynard, 9-3. The win put the locals in a top tie with Concord for first place.

"Al" DiMinico started on the mound for Winchester and was relieved by "Charlie" Johnson who went along nicely until struck by a line drive on the leg from which he pitched. This bothered his effectiveness and he had to be taken out with the bases full, no one out and two balls on the batter.

Brother "Art" ace southpaw, went to his rescue and fanned the next three batters to end the Maynard rally. The summary:

GYM KHANA HORSE SHOW

Dorothy Lybeck Star of Show

Beginning this year the Bradley Riding Academy will have an annual Gym Khana Horse Show. The first of these shows was held last Saturday afternoon at the Riding Academy just over the Medford line. Due to the poor weather, a smaller audience was present than had been hoped for, but those who were there stuck it out through the rain and sunshine.

Dorothy Lybeck of Everett road, Winchester, became the star of the show by winning over more than 25 contestants, the large cup donated by the Riding Academy for the Hands and Seat contest. This cup will have Miss Lybeck's name engraved upon it and will be kept there at the Academy until a contestant has won it three times in succession, and in turn will become his or hers.

The show consisted of the following events:

The hands and seat contest, in which the rider is judged, not the horse. The second event was an egg and spoon race. The idea of this contest is to hold a spoon with an egg on it in one hand and walk, trot, and canter the horse when ordered to, without dropping the egg. This event was won by Bob Foster of Medford. The remaining events were the dippy relay, army drill, gay nineties, musical chairs and the jump-off. Claire Smalley and Sally Badger of this town won the gay nineties in their horse drawn buggy and old-fashioned clothes. Marjorie Carruthers, also of this town, won the jump-off.

Each event was run in three heats. The first was the Bradley Junior Riding Club members, the second the Winchester Juniors, and the third, the Woburn Junior and Senior High. Out of these three groups, the Bradley Junior Riding Club won the most events.

Those who took part in the show were: Marjorie Carruthers, Maxine Lybeck, Priscilla Cornwall, Dorothy Lybeck, Evelyn Carruthers, Priscilla Howard, Ruth Kingman, Claire Smalley, Ellen Jackson, Betty Roberts, Laurie Nichols, Joan Sumnerby, Marjorie Pinkham, Joan Wild, Marion Philbrook, Jo Jo Ghormley, Sally Badger, Brenda Pattison and Hope Wilson of Winchester; Cynthia Perry, Bill Foster, Carol Marcy, Bob Foster, Louise Shattuck, Marjorie Carruthers, Evadne Berglund of Medford; Norma Hagerty, Bob Very, Joe Logue, Jean Logue, Paul Logue, Ruth Fisher, Natalie Peterson, Dorothy Campbell, Susan Chute, Ann Caldwell, Joan Fowl and Patricia Lahey of Woburn. The judges were Mr. William

PILKINGTON TRACK CAPTAIN

"Sam" Pilkington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pilkington, of Wilson street, has been elected captain of next year's varsity track team at Winchester High School. "Sam" is a middle distance man, and a promising runner who has been quite consistent this year.

The present season has been disastrous from the standpoint of winning, the locals having copped but one dual meet with Danvers, and finished second in the Middlesex League meet, taking third in Class C of the State Interscholastic relays at Fitchburg.

This poor showing was largely due to inexperience and the fact that the local boys were competing for the most part against veteran teams. The failure of sprinter "Charlie" Reeves to return to school and the loss of big "Bob" Gardner, shot-putter, over age by five minutes or so, hurt badly.

Coach "Tom" Maynard worked hard with his material this year and had the satisfaction of seeing considerable development on the part of his charges. The outlook for next year is quite good, the old Dartmouth high jump star expecting to have really strong all around team in the field.

EVANGELISTA—PALUSO

The marriage of Miss Elsie Paluso, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Paluso of 834 Main street, to James Evangelista, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Evangelista of Long Island, N. Y., took place Sunday afternoon, June 5, in St. Mary's Church, and was followed by a reception to more than 300 guests at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Paluso was attended by Miss Josephine DiIppio of this town and the best man was Nicholas Fapanaro of Long Island, N. Y.

The bride wore a princess style gown of white satin, made with a train, and a long tulle veil arranged with a Queen Ann crown. Her flowers were calla lilies. Miss DiIppio wore a dress of tropical blue chiffon with a coronet of spring flowers, from which fell a short veil of tulle matching the color of her dress. Her flowers were American beauty roses.

Upon their return from a wedding journey, Mr. Evangelista and his bride will live at Long Island, N. Y.

ARRESTED AFTER ACCIDENT

Shortly before 6 o'clock Monday evening a Plymouth sedan, driven by Charles L. Sanson of 61 Ferry street, Hudson, N. H., while headed south on Washington street in front of the Baptist Church, got out of control and went over the curbing of the traffic circle at the intersection of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets, plowing through a street hedge and rose bushes on the circle and breaching down a traffic sign.

Continuing south on Washington street, the car finally came to a stop in front of the Public Library with both left tires blown.

Sgt. Charles J. Harrold arrested Sanson on the charge of drunkenness and driving a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He appeared in the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning, was found guilty and fined $35.

OBSERVATIONS

(By The Observer)

It won't be long until the Fourth of July and then Winchester folk can begin to think about that early Christmas shopping.

And then big sister told you that if you put your head up against the old oak tree you might hear the spirit talk?

According to a Winchester fellow there are two ways to buy a home on the installment plan. The first is to get a deed, and the other to get the rent receipts.

Fewer people were killed in horse-and-buggy days. But there were not 20,000,000 horses and buggies dashing about.

A scientist tells us that animals don't talk because they think. Well, maybe if some folk here in Winchester would stop to think, they would not talk so much.

There are folk right here in conservative Winchester who are blind to the fact that countless good laws, all social legislation in fact, which interfere with human freedom to do as one pleases make the difference between barbarism and civilization.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

The Watchman-Examiner of May 26 has the following article which is of interest to those who are planning a trip to Minneapolis.

"Again this year, the Minnesota Temperance Movement, Minneapolis, is issuing a list of restaurants and cafes in Minnesota where neither beer nor hard liquor is sold. According to a statement made by Herbert H. Parish, executive director of the organization, a large number of calls for a similar list were received last year. Travelers from all parts of the United States indicate their desire, when touring through Minnesota, to eat in restaurants where no liquor is sold. An effort is being made this year to add dry pleasure resorts to the list. The list of Minnesota's beerless restaurants will be sent to anyone anywhere in the United States free upon request. Address the Minnesota Temperance Movement, 516 Hodgson Building, Minneapolis, Minn."

In the "Union Signal" of Feb. 19, 1938, C. H. McCrea has the following impressive article.

They Don't Mix

We find a full page ad in a distinguished weekly. The illustration suggests a horror of great darkness, and two flaming eyes that shine amid the encircling gloom. Under the picture is a genuine sermon, "spiritual" if you will, but there it is; text, advice, urgency, appeal and application. After which we may envision the saw dust trail, the inquiry room, with its mourner's bench. What? Old John Barlow turned evangelist! Old Bill Boozie in the reform business! Well, what next? Grapes from thorns and figs from thistles! We never thought to have lived to see this. The old trail of grime and crime is to become Sanitary Street. Our new highway shall be called Moderation Boulevard and we'll tell the world that it is being made safe for heretocery.

Out of the mouths of beer barons and distillers come sermons on sobriety. "If you drive don't drink, and if you drink don't drive." The cup that cheers and bears must not be mixed with oils that kindle and explode. The murderous menace, the intoxicated Jehu at the steering wheel must cease-desist-repent, and confine his alcoholic pleasures to home and family. Ed the Distiller's self hath said it and it's greatly to his credit that he is at length turned missionary to the besotted heathen at the wheel.

It is possible that the moving finger writes, and the Boozie Boohazzer begins to tremble? "Weighed and found wanton. Numbered and finished," will be written before a great while in these somewhat United States. The day but a mere when an incensed citizenry having weighed King Alcohol in the balance of human values will number and finish his criminal career.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Spectacular flying, four stellar players and a top star try to provide startling entertainment in "Test Pilot" which opens a seven day engagement at the Granada Theatre in Malden today. Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy and Lionel Barrymore head the cast of the picture. The story, against the background of the most spectacular flying ever attempted, concerns a daring flyer who, in an attempt to break the transcontinental speed mark, lands in a Kansas wheatfield. The startlingly realistic air scenes were made possible by a newly-perfected device for aerial photography, making "Test Pilot" the most spectacular aviation picture ever produced.

"The Beloved Brat," with Bonita Granville, Dolores Costello and Donald Crisp as the stars, is the second attraction on the bill starting today. Bonita Granville is cast as the only child in a wealthy home, who has been brought up by governesses and servants. The events which follow are intensive and dramatic, bringing the film to a smashing climax.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

Fear Not To Criticise

It is possible that an occasional visitor from Winchester in strolling across Boston common steps near the Parkman Bandstand to listen in on the several schools of political thought flourishing there in season. Personally I do not relish hearing men expound Communism as seems to be an outstanding practice around the Parkman Bandstand. Yet in the final analysis it is not possible that we must so make government function that it must continuously prove its rightness against full and frank criticism.

On the other hand, the state has the right and the duty to protect its citizens against all who come with attacks upon what to them seem unjust laws. These are the two principles churchmen in and out of Winchester must define. We must protect freedom of criticism and of active opposition. We must protect society.

The tradition in England has been mighty tolerant. I remember standing among the crowds in Hyde Park and on Glasgow Green and hearing the most ardent fire eater denouncing the King. The assumption over there seems to be that truth is amply able to protect itself, and that the quickest way to defeat error is to disregard it.

It will be a bad day for the state when nobody dares challenge it. It will be a bad day for the church when nobody dares to find fault with it. There seems to be plenty to find fault with in the church. Much is the matter with it or rather with the men and women that make up its mighty but not always effective membership. As we have said before the path of duty is more than the way to heaven; it is the royal path men and women must travel in order to liberate humanity and write progress on the brow of civilization. The source of the courage of the apostles was their certainty of God and the worth of the humanity for which our Lord died. Only those who have it are constrained by the love of Christ and count their lives not dear unto themselves. The apostles had a great contempt for any order that would imprison speech and the soul of man. To them Jesus Christ was supreme. Is He to us?

OBSERVATIONS

How many Winchesterites remember when their ambition was to be the first kid to go bare foot in the spring?

Winchester philosopher says that the really wise man knows little and says less.

If by any chance your sins do not find you out, it is our bet that you can easily find somebody right here in Winchester who will promise to keep them secret.

AROUND THE BOAT CLUB

Have you heard about the "Fleet Fair?" And who hasn't! It's the big event of the season—the date, Friday and Saturday, June 17 and 18, the place, Winchester Boat Club and the time, from morn' to night. Everybody welcome!

We're planning new games to complement your old favorites and the prizes are more elaborate than any we've seen before.

In the first place we'll have a real live colored gentleman from "Jaw-Jaw" to dodge baseballs, then penny-tossing with saucers, tennis ball muffs, breaking china cups, spinning wheel, and some new ones like "strike out" where you throw baseballs thru a hole in a board, each ball thru is called a strike, the point to strike out batter before you walk him. Also a golf-driving range. Driving golf balls into the lake at a floating target with a tong.

The going free tickets to dance and speed boat ride. Hit the back board, free tickets to dance, either night. The person hitting float greatest number of times in both days, receives a silver loving cup.

The booths will be arranged on the lawn and tennis court and will be open from 12 o'clock noon on Friday to 1 a. m. and from 9 a. m. Saturday to 12.

Friday night, the dance with Ted Miller's "Kats" and rumor has it that the decorations and novelty dances on this occasion will be surprising and entirely different from anything seen heretofore, and who should know better than the writer, being as how we're doin' 'em! Anyhow, come down and see how you like it.

Saturday, from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. a delicious baked bean supper will be served by those two successful sandwich saleswomen, Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Burleigh and their cohorts, after which comes dancing again until midnight. This time to the music of all the best bands via "Hap" Bowler's amplifying victrola. This will be run on the check dance system.

At approximately 10 o'clock Saturday night a fireworks display will be set off on the lake and this, we hope, will bring to a close a most successful Fleet Fair. Our first big venture and we do want to put it over.

And now for the report on our "Sandwich Spread" Sunday evening. The response from the various mothers was most gratifying. Any number of delicious sandwiches appeared daintily wrapped and labeled and it didn't take long for them to disappear!

All the sailor's appetites were in top form. The handicap race which was started at 3:30 and was to finish inside at the wharf, for the amusement of our guests, became a drifting contest when the wind died. However, Charlie Reeves drifted the fastest; Blanchard, second; and Don Simonds, third.

We planned first to set our gaily-covered tables on the lawn and had just done so when a sudden wind came up and blew things hither and yon, so we compromised on the porch.

All in all it was a great success and many friends suggested a return engagement soon and possibly once every month. A very nice profit was realized and we'll soon see concrete evidence of that in a certain long-awaited improvement. Thanks to our members and guests to the donors.

and to Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Burleigh and company who worked it out so beautifully.

At this point, things are a bit hazy. Unless labeled, "Fleet Fair" nothing seems to register, we eat, drink and sleep Fleet Fair and think only in terms of Fleet Fair. When it's all over and just a fond memory, some fine sanitation will probably open wide its doors to us and we'll enter and rest!

But for now, the word is action! And plenty of it. Everyone is working hard and working hard to make this a success and with such concerted effort we can't fail. We'll be seeing you here.

The Round-a-bouter who hasn't time for anything right now but the "Fleet Fair!" Have you heard?

ANDERSON—DOANE

GUILD OF THE INFANT SAVIOUR

The marriage of Miss Helen Adeline Doane, daughter of Mrs. Helen F. Doane of Medford street, Arlington, to Earl Osborn Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Anderson of Dunster lane, took place on Saturday evening, June 11, at 7 o'clock in the home of the bride's mother with Rev. John Nicol Mark, minister of the Unitarian Church in Arlington, officiating. The ceremony took place under an arch of roses, asparagus fern and silver bells against a most effective background of palms and pink peonies. Charles Seibel, Jr., pianist, played the "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin."

Miss Doane was given in marriage by her brother, A. William Doane, and had for her honor attendant Ruth Carlson Corpi of Arlington. Miss Gloria Frost of Braintree Highlands was bridesmaid and Miss June Tuttle of Woburn and Miss Elizabeth Prince Frost of Braintree were ribbon bearers.

Arthur Edmund Anderson of Winchester was his brother's best man, and another brother, Henry L. Anderson of this town, served as usher with Barrett Clark of Cambridge.

The bride wore a princess style gown of white satin and duchess lace with a tulle veil and carried a snow-bouquet of white roses and valley lilies. The honor attendant wore a dress of blue chiffon and the bridesmaid wore pink chiffon. Both wore hats to match their gowns and carried talisman roses. The small ribbon bearers wore frocks of white chiffon.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony, after which Mr. Anderson and his bride left to enjoy a wedding journey by automobile. Upon their return they are to make their home at 90 Dunster lane in Winchester.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School and of Burdett's College. Mr. Anderson is a graduate of Winchester High School.

NEW VETERANS LEGISLATION

Will Aid Thousands of Widows and Orphans, Red Cross Says

Important changes in veterans compensation legislation which will open the door of government benefits to thousands of widows and orphans of World War Veterans were announced today by Mrs. George A. Duttling, chairman of the Winchester Chapter, American Red Cross. The amended law makes compensation for death not due to service available to widows and children of World War veterans whose service-connected disability to widows was 10 per cent. Previously, the Chapter Chairman said, death benefits were paid in such cases only where the veteran was 30 per cent disabled, or, if there were children in the family, 2 per cent.

While this applies only to World War veterans' dependents, Mrs. Duttling revealed at the same time that a new law increasing the pensions of certain soldiers, sailors and nurses who served in the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the China Relief Expedition has just been passed by Congress and signed by President Roosevelt.

The latter Act provides a $60 monthly pension for veterans 65 years old who served at least 90 days and to those who served less than 90 days and were discharged for disability incurred in service. Under the old law veterans were not eligible for this increased pension until they reached the age of 75.

The act also increases from $72 to $100 a month the pension for persons whose physical or mental condition requires regular attendance of a nurse or other individual.

This increased pension will take effect on the date on which application is filed, the Red Cross official said. She stressed the fact that veterans and nurses eligible for this increase must apply for it. Pensions will be changed automatically.

Through its Home Service Committee, the local Red Cross will assist veterans, their widows and children in obtaining benefits made available through both these new laws the Chapter Chairman announced. Applicants should see Mrs. Oris Wilson at the Town Hall or send letter applying for increase to Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers, so that she may file same at the Veterans Administration and it is hoped that a large sum will be realized at this summer bazaar.

The Guild of the Infant Saviour was organized in October, 1909, and for 32 years has cared for unfortunate mothers and their infants under the direction of the Catholic Charitable Bureau.

OUR MODERN AGE

By J. J. Doherty

MODERN PROPHETS

Well, every day the country's fate is picked as the subject for debate by front page "know-alls" everywhere. Suggestions simply fill the air for warring off impending doom or bridging an expected boom. Since every one is given free advice, how some I hope may cut some ice: let papers every month or so reprint news of a year ago. We'll realize that old debate about the land's impending fate is always with us, like the poor. Our prophets should be shown the door.

You don't need a prophet to tell you whether or not the kitchen and bathroom in your home are in need of a modernization job. If they are, have the work done by the experts of Felix Plumbing & Heating Co., 830 Main St., and be sure of complete satisfaction. They can give you better service, better workmanship and more reasonable rates. Phone 9931 today and ask for a non-obligating estimate.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. A. C. Winn of Highland avenue, accompanied by her granddaughter, Miss Nancy Snyder, left town Wednesday to visit her daughter, Mrs. Rony Snyder, in San Diego, Calif.

Mr. George Rogers, son of Police Chief and Mrs. William H. Rogers of Grayson road, after enjoying a visit with his parents sailed Saturday from New York for Panama where he is in the employ of the United Fruit Co. Tennis balls at the Star Office.

GIRLS' BASEBALL LETTERS

The following members of the Winchester High School girls' baseball team received their insignia at the conclusion of the regular season: Betty Collins, captain and catcher; Alice Gagnon and Mary Marchesi, pitchers; Helen Tripp, first base; Marjorie Manzie, second base; Martha Laisell, third base; Rita Collins, shortstop; Margaret Carr, Nancy Wolfe, Norma Ahern, Joyce Watson, outfielders; and Marion Terhune, manager.

TEELE HORSE-SHOE WINNER

There probably is no more ardent horse-shoe pitcher in this or any other town than Royal P. Teele of Wedgemere avenue, one of the regular devotees of the sport at Palmer Beach. In season and out, fair weather or foul, Roy flings his shoes, so his pals at the beach thought nothing of it when his big green Packard whaled into the bath-house yard last weekend with its owner all smiles. Roy is usually all smiles when he arrives to pitch, and he generally goes home happy win, lose or draw. That's why he's popular with the horse-shoe fraternity, and that's why no one thought anything about his being a bit glib at that particular moment. Just pleasant anticipation they figured.

That is where they made their mistake. Mr. Teele had something to show the boys, and something in addition to his anticipation of a go at his favorite game to account for his especially broad grin. Durned if he hadn't won the horse-shoe tournament at the Boston Paper Trade Outing at the Charles River Country Club on the previous Monday. Raucous scolding from his assembled conferees faded away as Roy produced handsome bronze book-ends to substantiate his claim to being the number one horse-shoer of the Boston paper men.

The gang gathered around and admired the trophy, slapped Roy on the back, offered congratulations and the suggestion that the book-ends be put up for the weekly play at the beach! This suggestion was coldly received and after Roy had returned the trophy to his car, he and Art Butters squared away against Sherm Dodge and Jim Penalligan, giving the latter team "the works" to the tune of 4-1. Against Earle Goldsmith and Bill McLaughlin, the Teele-Butters team was again successful, and in at this point the winners had been satisfied Roy's forenoon could well have been perfect.

As it was, however, he and Arthur just couldn't resist rubbing it in a bit on Sherm and Jim, caustic challenges were hurled with repeated reference to the "works" handed out in the first one-sided series, and a second series was started.

We wish we could truthfully chronicle another win for Roy. It was his day and nothing should have been permitted to interfere with his complete success. It can be stated definitely that both he and Arthur tried! The latter threw any number of "ringers" had they been an inch to the right or left, and Roy himself "should" counter shot in the air which upon arriving at their destination proved to be just out of the money.

Sherm and Jim won 2-1. That's the simple truth of the matter. But the winners didn't even try to get Roy's trophy. Somehow they felt he wouldn't part from it without considerable of a struggle. As a matter of fact we doubt if Joe Louis would get those book-ends without a gun!

GEORGE F. FITZ RANDOLPH
—WINCHESTER, MASS.—

George Fitz Randolph, son of Mrs. E. O. Horner of 5 Pine street, is a candidate for the degree, Bachelor of Arts, at Cornell University. Mr. Fitz, a member of Sigma Nu, prepared at Glen Ridge High School, was a member of the freshman track squad and played lacrosse for four years.

WINCHESTER PLAYERS NAMED

Three Winchester High School baseball players were among those given honorable mention by the Boston Globe in its announcement of All Scholastic baseball selections last week-end.

"Art" Johnson, left handed pitching ace, was listed among the pitchers and it is safe to say that hurling for one of the big high schools, "Artie" would have been right up there with the best in the schoolboy ranks hereabouts. Capt. "Junie" Donaghey was named with the first basemen and "Red" Kenney with the shortstops. It is a bit hard to see how "Clem" Bairstow failed to get in the "mentioned" list of outfielders as he played consistently good ball and was one of the most consistent hitters on the local club.

FORMER WINCHESTER BOY GRADUATES

At the commencement exercises at Cornell-on-Hudson, New York, on June 11, Paul Hemenway Gale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton L. Gale, formerly of 49 Yale street, this town, and now making their legal residence at Nahant, where they have for many years occupied a summer residence, received the Achievement, Alumni Award and the Hardy Gold Medal for school leadership. These are the two highest awards bestowed upon a graduating cadet at the academy and the citations read: "He shall be chosen for his strength of character, record of broad scholarship, athletic interest and ability, military efficiency and discipline and for having done most to increase and maintain the spirit and morale of the Corps during his life at the school" and "to that cadet, who in the judgment of the faculty, approved by the Superintendent, possesses in greater degree those qualities of leadership . . . loyalty, manliness, steadfastness in the performance of duty . . . which best express the spirit and ideal of the New York Military Academy."

During his senior year at Cornell, Cadet Gale served as battalion supply captain and member of the staff, editor and chief of the yearbook, on the Hamble Board; captain of the tennis team; was a member of the Quill and Scroll; president of Phi Phi fraternity and an honorary member of the school's intra fraternity. As a second man on the tennis team he has captured the Milton F. Davis cup for four successive years. He served as captain of the swimming team for two years and as a member of the Commercial Medals. This year, for the third time, succeeded in breaking a record.

Along with the awards above mentioned, Winchester son brought home the Commercial Medal; Phi Merit Award, the Commandant's Saber and was given a life membership in the Alumni Association.

WINCHESTER GRADUATES AT B. U.

Miss Frederick received the degree of bachelor of science in Physics. Education from Sargent College with a certificate in physiotherapy. Miss Miley, a graduate student, received the degree of master of education from the School of Education, specializing in commercial education. Miss Orcutt receiving the degree of bachelor of science in journalism from the College of Business Administration, specializing in journalism. She was a member of the team's list. Miss Tufts also a graduate student, received the degree of master of education from the School of Education. Welsch received the degree of bachelor of arts from the College of Liberal Arts specializing in English. He was a member of the University Glee Club, the Student Government Board and the Student Faculty Committee on College Chapel.

HENRY J. O'TOOLE

Henry J. O'Toole, 28, of 11 Florence street died Sunday afternoon, June 12, following a two months' illness.

Mr. O'Toole was the son of Michael J. and Abbie M. (Kealy) O'Toole. He was born in Winchester and was widely known among the town's young people, having attended the Winchester schools and being a member of St. Mary's Holy Name Society.

Besides his parents, he leaves six sisters, Miss Mildred O'Toole, Mrs. Neil Peterson and Mrs. Edward Callahan of Winchester, Mrs. William Dempsey of New York, Mrs. John Andrews of Malden, Mrs. Annie Brower of Woburn; and two brothers, John T. and Anthony F. O'Toole both of this town.

The funeral was held Wednesday morning from the home of Mrs. Peterson on Sheridan circle. High mass of requiem was celebrated in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

WINCHESTER FINISHED SECOND

Winchester High School's baseball team, favored by many to win the Middlesex League baseball title, finally finished in second place in the league standing after either leading or being tied for the circuit leadership during most of the season.

The locals had a good chance to finish in a top tie with Concord for the title by winning their last game from Maynard, a team they had beaten 9-2, a couple of days previous to the deciding engagement. Things looked bright for a third title, but schoolboy baseball is uncertain at best and ran very true to form in this instance, Maynard winning 9-3, with the locals blowing sky-high in the final frame.

There can be no questioning the fact that Winchester had the best pitching in the league this season, and outside the box was the superior of any club on the circuit with the exception of Concord. The superiority of the local pitchers should have more than offset the greater experience of several of the Concord boys.

The locals had tough time of it with the weather, rain forcing postponements that made it necessary to play several games on successive days so that it was often hard to realize on the pitching strength to the utmost. Long layoffs aren't too good for schoolboy, or in fact, any other pitchers.

Winchester was weak behind the bat where inexperienced Fucciello of football fame was playing his first year of ball as a senior. "Ficy" hit the ball hard at times and did a good job with a difficult assignment. The locals were erratic at third base where neither DeTeso nor Thornton, who alternated there, was consistently effective, and the play of Horie in right field was spotty.

Elsewhere the club was well fixed with the league's best shortstop in Ned Kenney; a fine fielding second baseman in Carr; an experienced first baseman in Donaghey; the best center fielder in the league in Bairstow and a satisfactory though rather weak hitting left fielder, in Comors. "Art" Johnson, tall left hander, Boston Bees farm pitcher, was easily the class of the league's hurlers, and when right was unbeatable and well nigh unhittable. He was supported by his brother "Charlie" Johnson, another good southpaw, and by Dr. Diminico, an effective right hander who was very consistent through the season.

The club was coached by George Lauer of the Department of Physical Education, captain by "Junie" Donaghey and managed by "Dick" Hakanson. Aside from league games, Winchester played only Woburn, losing to the Tanners 7-3. The following game summary shows seven wins and six losses:

WEEK-END MOTOR ACCIDENTS

Mary E. Murphy of 39 Clark street reported to the Police that as she was driving a Chevrolet coach from Pickering street onto Sheridan circle at 5:45 last Saturday afternoon the machine was in collision with a Buick sedan, driven by William McDonough of Porter street, Woburn. The damage was reported as slight and no one was injured.

Saturday evening at 8:50 a Hupmobile sedan, being driven south on Main street by John Coyne of 14 Pearl street, Charlestown, in swerving to avoid collision with a machine backing from the curb near Converse place, collided with a Chrysler sedan driven by Veronica P. Edwards of 9 Bennett street, Woburn, who was headed north. Both cars were slightly damaged but no one was injured.

The worst of the week-end's three accidents took place at 8 o'clock Sunday evening when a Plymouth sedan, being driven east on Bacon street by William F. McGoldrick of 56 Mystic street, Charlestown, was in collision at the triangular plot at the entrance to the Parkway with a Plymouth sedan, driven by Anthony Lungo of 100 Sherman street, Cambridge, who was driving west on Bacon street and turning left onto the Parkway. The cars met practically head-on and were so badly wrecked they had to be towed away, the car which McGoldrick was driving, owned by John H. Stedman of 83 Francis street, Brookline, being taken to the Central Garage, and the other to Super-Service Garage on Converse place.

Riding with McGoldrick were Ralph Smith of 69 Monument avenue, Charlestown, who complained of injuries to the left elbow; Louise Lynch of 50 Elm street, Charlestown, who complained of injuries to her left leg; and Marion Robbedard of Winn street, Burlington, who complained of being shaken up. They were taken to their homes by James Farley of this town.

With Lungo in the other machine was his father, Angelo Lungo, who was removed to the Winchester Hospital by Patrolman James F. Noonan and treated by Dr. Philip J. McManus for a possible fracture of the pelvis. He was held at the hospital to await the result of X-rays.

Government statistics give the male unemployed in Winchester as 251; female 256. Emergency workers are listed as 103 male and 12 female, while under the head of partly employed are 109 male and 30 female.
We have quite a sizable relief roll.

Now comes wages and hours along with social security, and the old NRA, declared unconstitutional by the old Constitutional Supreme Court, is back again with us. Social Security (?) has put us on the brink. Wages and hours will help rub it in. Small business—and we mean small, not those million dollar firms or the ice man who failed for a like amount—are becoming smaller and smaller, while the relief roll grows larger and larger. Before long we will be able to count all our "business," and without aid of an adding machine either.
Germany, we read, is closing all of her's. Political offices at Washington are loaned to John L. Lewis to aid (?) unemployment. Keep it up; with taxes, assessments and impositions, and business will fade from the picture entirely. Hoping you are as well and prosperous as the Roosevelt family we still think we are goffy to be in business. But we would not get much support for a government job. We refuse to cooperate with the politicians.

Last week's announcement that the recent En Ka Street Fair had cleared $20,244 occasioned general rejoicing. The way in which this money is used for community betterment has made every one interested in the outcome of the fair and eager to see the profits greater each year. Of course there will come a year when it will be impossible to realize more than the year before, and many believed that such would prove the case this spring. It must have afforded the current chairman, Mrs.
Samuel Cole, much personal satisfaction to announce that her fair did clear more than that of the previous year. Her expenses must have been much heavier and the fact that she succeeded in raising the 1937 figures is a tribute to her ability and the co-operation of En Ka and the public generally. Many predicted that year's fair would fall behind in the matter of profits, but such proved not to be the case. En Ka and the community are to be congratulated.

AS TO THIS AND THAT

It cannot too often be repeated that whatever may be said for the righteousness of undertaking to equalize economic opportunities in encouragement and substantial aid of Messrs Howe and Farley, the one perhaps his only friend and the other a clever fellow dealer for the spoils of office, he appealed to the credulity of the voters when they were peculiarly subject to any new voice, being dismayed by the depression and determined to end the admitted evils of the dry law.

As a result we have had a succession of hastily conceived experiments and we shall be more than lucky if the present renewal of the depression does not spread over the world. It must be remembered that the rest of the world normally is not so stable as ours and that to a degree flattering to our vanity it is affected by our conditions.

It seems, therefore, important to dwell upon the personal traits and conduct of this man and to suggest the folly of expecting statesmanship from one who has:
Repeatedly broken his promises;
Surrounded himself as President with a Cabinet of theorists except Secretary Hull;

Insisted that only "yes men" have any right to be heard; Debauched the Civil Service while pretending to believe in it;

Permitted the members of his family to profit by advertising campaigns;

Attempted to override the Supreme Court and to change it to make it subservient to his whims;

Built up a political machine by grants to classes and sections;

Proposed a reorganization of the general government that would in effect make him a dictator.

SOCRATES
SAYS-

"THE UNDECLARED WAR IN AMERICA"

The "New Deal Army of Occupation" has waged an "Undeclared War" with its Foreign Legion of theories, first against one sector of our accepted representative government and then another (it is now mopping up business).

This guerrilla type of offensive has not stimulated the confidence of the natives, but by its attacks against ment and then another (it is now mopping up business), and free men, and its dissipation of thrift, savings, and surplus, it can "liquidate" them.

When and if all surpluses are spent (and we are on our way), every citizen will look to the government for his daily bread, the State will be supreme, and a "peaceful revolution" achieved as prophesied.

The bubble of the High Command perhaps at least will stop, and we can have a silent night on the air, for with a complete New Deal Centralized Control the communiqué can read: "All Quiet Along the Potomac Front," resignation will set in, and the cycle of democracy will have been finished—a new one to start all over again.

The result of abundant theories was, of course, not planned; however, it can happen here simply as a result of innocent New Deal plans, laudable enough in many of their aims, but two-thirds ill conceived, ill timed, and ill resulted.

FREDERICK E. BEAN FOR COUNCILLOR

To the Voters of Winchester:
I wish to announce my candidacy for the office of Governor's Councillor for the Sixth Middlesex District.

I have served as Alderman of Medford during the year 1933-34, was re-elected in 1935 to serve 1936. At the last election I was again re-elected to serve for 1937-38 and which office
I am still holding. I am a member of various Republican and fraternal organizations.

I was a candidate for this office in 1935, placing second to the present incumbent.

I was born, reared and educated in the City of Medford and my interests are for the advancement of our citizens of this district. Should be elected to this office I should do whatever is in my power to serve our district to the best of my ability and should always try to have its interest at heart. My five years service in the Board of Aldermen is confirmation of my integrity and proof against personal agrandizement seeking, as a public official.

May I ask the privilege of announcing my candidacy through the columns of your valuable paper.

Yours very sincerely,

Ald. Frederick E. Bean

NEVER TO STAND IDLY BY

June 14, 1938
To the Editor of the Star:

I am enclosing a copy of an open letter to the President from the Linden Baptist Church, Camden, N. J., which may be of interest to your readers.

Howard J. Childley

Dear Mr. President:

In your recent message to Congress you said that the "National Administration has promised never to stand idly by and watch its people and its national life disintegrate."
We feel the same way as you do about the tragedy of national disintegration and hence we want to bring to your attention the plight of that section of the citizenry which will disintegrate first and fastest—those on relief. Some of us have been in that category, Mr. President, and some of us still are, and we are grateful that the government does not want to see any of us starve. But we have had national relief for some years now and we are of the belief that we begin to speak from experience about the necessity for reform in relief legislation.

Now we acknowledge, Mr. President, that the details of relief administration constitute a difficult problem and about many of these details there is honest disagreement, but we are united on at least this one thing: the immediate importance of changing the rules that forbid relief to be given to those who are in need. We old jobs. Those receiving help from the government must not be forbidden to improve their lot.

Our present method of dispensing relief consists of chiseling and dishonesty. No one will become a bloated pluto on a relief standard of living. On the contrary families find it difficult to supply the minimum needs.
When this difficulty becomes acute, the average person is going to seek means of augmenting his income.
But this the law forbids him to do.
Hence there arises a conflict between respect for the law and the desire to alleviate the suffering of loved ones.
What is the result? Well, Mr. President, in the case of multitudes, the temptation to chisel for a worthy cause is too strong.

A great deal has been said about relief destroying personal initiative by removing the will to work. The extent to which that may be true is debatable, but certainly personal initiative isn't helped any by a system which says to the needy, "We'll see that you don't starve, if you promise not to help yourself." If the giving of help is contingent upon idleness, who wouldn't idle? It's a wonder that any of our people still hang on to part-time jobs that return a mere pittance. Why struggle to keep your head above water by working, when you can sometimes just sit well or better on relief? This is a great evil, Mr. President, and should be remedied immediately. People should be encouraged to improve their standard of living rather than forbidding it, and if a man can find a day's work here or a day's work there, more power to him. . . .

Perhaps you are thinking by this time "This sounds good, but how will the taxpayers who pay for the relief program react to such a proposition?" Well, sir, we believe that those who pay the taxes which support relief would do so much more cheerfully under this plan than under the present method. You see a lot of people who still have money to spend can't understand how it is that they can't get people to help when a need arises. They say, "The country is going to the dogs; nobody wants to work anymore. Why, we can't get anyone to come in and houseclean or mow the lawn or do the ironing.
Where are all these unemployed people we hear so much about?" They must be lazy; relief is ruining the country." And that, Mr. President, is not a very healthy frame of mind to have when faced with the impossibility of taxes for relief. But it isn't all the fault of the relief clients. You won't let them help themselves out and if they tried it, they would find themselves on the short end of the stick.

We don't think, Mr. President, that taxpayers would grumble about any extra cost of supplemental relief. On the contrary, we think they would pay taxes with much better grace if they thought that relief clients were in a position to help themselves. Some of us are taxpayers and we would be highly pleased to see this idea adopted.

There are other advantages to this idea, such as the potential increase in purchasing power made possible, the preservation of the money of those on relief, etc. But we think you get the idea. We hope so.

Adopted at the Quarterly Business Meeting of the Linden Baptist Church, Camden, N. J., April 20, 1938.

Business Loans -

This Bank is eager to have a part in the improvement of business in general but particularly of Winchester business.

In order to do our share we are ready and willing to grant loans to business men. If you wish to obtain a loan for a sound purpose, and if you meet our other credit requirements, we will approve your application promptly. If it does not meet our requirements of sound banking, we will tell you so frankly, together with our reasons.

In some cases where a loan can be made that will be so secured as reasonably to assure its repayment but is of such a character that it should not be made by a bank, we will gladly forward the application to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for its consideration.

If you have a banking problem we will be glad to discuss it with you.

SHOULD CONSULT SPEEDWAY
DIRECTORS

100 Church St., Winchester
June 14, 1938

To the Editor of the Star:

It is my belief that it might be advantageous to the citizens of our town if our proper authorities could consult with the directors of the Indianapolis Speedway, for it appears to me that we are sadly neglecting opportunity to improve our own beautiful and tree-bordered Speedways of Bacon street and Church street.

It is my thought, pending details from the Indianapolis Auto Racing Authorities, that our town should consider these suggestions:

1. Rename Bacon street from Church street to Wedgemere. It could be named The Bacon Hop-along.

1a. From observations during recent months, it might be concluded that a minimum speed of sixty (60) miles per hour should be demanded in order to maintain the present form.

1b. Particularly should the bridge over the railroad at Wedgemere be included in the Hop-along, as it affords splendid opportunity to demonstrate driving skill in eluding cars coming across the bridge and wishing to turn down the Parkway, or cars ignoring the west-bound STOP sign.

1c. Remove the blinker at the corner of Bacon Hop-along and Central streets. Even now at times it appears to be mere surplusage.

1d. The speed of sixty (60) miles, as outlined in 1a, probably could be increased to ninety (90) miles if traffic from Everett avenue and Central street were forced to detour and pedestrians warned not to annoy motorists by attempting to cross the Bacon Hop-along.

2. Rename Church street, from the Methodist Church to Cambridge street. A suitable name would be The Church Steeple Chase.

2a. See 1a.

2b. Remove the stop-lights at the intersection of Bacon Hop-along and Church Steeple Chase, and also remove the blinker at night. One might conclude that they are but momentary mental hazards for many drivers at the present time, and no thought of safety nor retarding of speed should be allowed to confuse the operators' cerebral or motor systems.

GENERAL: It is suggested that the town ordinance limiting driving speed to thirty (30) miles per hour be abolished in name as it might appear to be in fact, and that the Bacon Hop-along and Church Steeple Chase be properly, prominently, perpetually and persistently emblazoned and placarded as such, in order that our brightest citizens will no longer be permitted innocently to risk their lives in the apparently neolithic belief that a Red light at a street intersection means "STOP," that a blinker means "SLOW," and that a "STOP" sign means just as it reads.

Our town should live up to its enviable reputation as the best auto brainiest suburb of Boston! If our citizens are to be placed in jeopardy, injured or killed by speedsters, then by all means permit them to be jeopardized, injured or killed intelligently!

Very truly yours,
Gordon Mead

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Acclaimed by aviation experts the most authentic aviation story ever filmed, "Test Pilot" starring Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy comes to the University Theatre next Sunday for a three day engagement.

Clark Gable in the title role, is divided between his love for Myrna Loy and his love of flying.

Bringing back to the screen, in a triumphant new career, that clever and popular ex-star, Dolores Costello, a delightful drama called "Beloved Brat" is scheduled as the companion feature. Miss Costello is not the star of the picture. That's Bonita Granville, the brilliant 14 year old who stands alone in her portrayal of brattish and pesterful youngsters.

FRAMERS OF THE CONSTITUTION
(Winchester High School Graduation Address)

The observation of most anniversaries is an event of importance. Tonight the graduating class of 1938 is particularly fortunate in having the opportunity to commemorate one of the most significant anniversaries in the history of our country, the 150th year of the Constitution of the United States of America.

It is extremely difficult for us to conceive of a time when our country was without a secure foundation and could not command the respect of foreign powers. But there was just such a period.

When the Treaty of Peace officially ending the American Revolution was signed, 13 colonies were given their independence from a war-weary Great Britain. America was free! However, during the years that followed, which have been appropriately called the "critical period," the new states became 13 quarreling units, jealous of their own rights and opposing any efforts to organize a strong central government. So desperate was the situation that certain groups even talked of submitting to British control. Great Britain watched all this with considerable interest, believing she might still regain her lost colonies.

At this time foreign countries did not care to make treaties with so loose and feeble a government. As Washington said, "We are one nation today, and 13 tomorrow; who will treat with us on those terms?"

Thoughtful men, both in and out of public life, realized the seriousness of existing conditions and their inevitable results. Consequently a convention was called to meet in Philadelphia, the scene of so many previous meetings of importance, to decide upon a new Constitution, or at first, as it was thought, to revise the then impractical existing government.

We must remember that there were no airplanes, railroads, or four lane highways in those days. The delegates, representing New England, the Middle States, and the South, gathered slowly, state by state, traveling in stage coaches over narrow dirt roads.

This group of 55 men, who met at the appointed time to consider the momentous problem of devising a constitution for the nation, was the most distinguished which has ever gathered on the continent. The character, ability, and broad mental attainments of these men would be hard to equal.

Many years later James Madison wrote of that convention: "I feel it my duty to express my profound and solemn conviction that there was never an assembly of men charged with a great and arduous trust, who were more pure in their motives, more exclusively and anxiously devoted to the object committed to them than were the members of the Federal Convention of 1787."

Of that outstanding group Washington was the most distinguished, for as well as being a great general, he was the best known and most admired man of his time. He represented the oldest and largest colony Virginia. He had led the army to victory, handed back his commission to Congress, and refused to take compensation for his services. He could have retained the army and made himself dictator. Everyone knew it. No wonder he was held in reverence by all classes. Washington had almost refused to attend this meeting, believing perhaps that it would be fruitless. However, two of his Virginia friends, James Madison and Edmund Randolph, realizing the confidence his presence would bring, persuaded him to go. At every town people greeted him with shouts of welcome. As he entered Philadelphia, a cavalcade met him; church bells rang and thousands greeted their distinguished guest with enthusiasm. It is, therefore, both fitting and natural that so respective a man should be chosen president of the convention. It was only through his dignity, his kindly spirit, and his recognized wisdom that he was able to perform so difficult a task.

James Madison, justly called the "Father of the Constitution," was quiet and unassuming, but foremost in debate. He was a tireless worker, a solid thinker, and even at 36 had more accurate and complete knowledge of colonial affairs than any other man in the Union. A colleague once said of Madison, "Everyone seemed to acknowledge his greatness. In the management of every great question he took the lead." He was also the secretary of that convention. Night after night, during those four hot months, he faithfully made a record of each day's proceedings. Little did he then realize how important his work would be in the history of the country. It was only through his writings that any accurate information concerning that memorable meeting was ever made public.

Alexander Hamilton was the moving force of that convention. He was one of those who had worked, sacrificed, and suffered with Washington at Valley Forge. Hamilton had a will of his own and an intellect without parallel. He desired a strong central government with a king at the head, but this plan met with overwhelming disfavor. Hamilton's most significant part in the Constitution was later in securing its ratification in New York State.

The Pennsylvania delegation, acting as host, was the largest. Benjamin Franklin, its most distinguished representative was 81 years old and the most experienced of the group. During his wide career as a statesman he had always promoted national union and championed the cause of the American colonies in France and England. At times when it seemed inevitable that the convention would break up without having accomplished its purpose, Franklin's calm, conciliatory spirit was helpful in restoring harmony. When the Constitution was finished, no signature did so much as his to win popular confidence.

James Wilson, also from Pennsylvania, was the most learned lawyer present. He was tall and distinguished looking, commanding the respect and confidence of all. He was active in business and considered by many to be second in importance only to Madison in the influence he held among his fellow members.

We are proud to know that Massachusetts was well-represented at this historic assembly by Elbridge Gerry and Rufus King. Gerry was a dapper, pleasant fellow and one of the leading conservatives. King, on the other hand, was capable, efficient, and active as a speaker.

Roger Sherman from Connecticut is another of whom we are justly proud. For he was born in Massachusetts. He often carried half smiles by his Yankee dialect, but he was a recognized speaker and a deep thinker. It was he who proposed the great compromise.

These are but a few of the men whom we wish to honor tonight. They were all just, strong, capable men with great sincerity of purpose. They could not possibly conceive of our nation as it stands today, 40 times larger in population and many thousands of miles greater in area, but they had the foresight to make the Constitution a flexible document, capable of expanding to meet the needs of an ever changing world. For this reason it has stood the test of time, and today our American Constitution is the most venerable instrument of government in the world.

Eleanor Jenkins

A MORE PERFECT UNION
(Winchester High School Graduation Address)

Men have prophesied that our Constitution would be but a temporary document, that it would not be able to withstand the test of years. Yet 150 years have elapsed since the signing of this charter of human rights and liberties, and it still remains, giving every indication that it will remain, the supreme law of the land.

Our forefathers started on a difficult and uncharted course. Their Ship of State was not strongly constructed, and soon they discovered that it had sprung a leak and was sinking fast. A violent storm threatened. Danger signals sounded wildly throughout the country. In answer to the call came a body of 55 men, who immediately advised that there be built a new Ship of State which would rescue them from their distress.

Thus these men, the representatives of 12 independent states, realizing the magnitude of the task before them, diligently applied themselves to the work of drawing up a new Constitution. To agree on an instrument of government as far-reaching as the Constitution was no simple matter, yet these delegates of the Constitutional Convention showed remarkable wisdom in considering the other fellow's point of view, weighing it in the light of reason, and then cooperating. They realized the necessity of forgetting their petty differences, of casting aside their local interests, and of dismissing their selfish views in order that the nation as a whole might benefit. Consequently, every provision passed through the stage of careful debate and painstaking consideration.

Perhaps the great spirit of compromise at this time might best be exemplified in the matter of representation in Congress. Naturally the larger states such as Virginia, New York, Pennsylvania, and Massachusetts, advocated a plan whereby representation should be according to population, while the smaller states firmly believed in equal apportionment. With such a rift in opinion, it was indeed difficult to arrive at an understanding. It was at this point that Benjamin Franklin made one of his characteristic speeches which came to be called the "Cooling off" Convention. In this speech he urged harmony, union, and compromise. "When a broad table is to be made," he said, "and the edges of the planks do not fit, the artist takes a plane from both, and makes a good joint. In like manner here both sides must part with some of their demands." Accordingly, the larger states were pacified by being granted proportional representation in the House of Representatives; the smaller states were made to feel that they would be on an equal footing by being accorded equal representation in the Senate. Many similar compromises were made during the course of the Convention, but this is called the "Great Compromise" of the Constitution.

With the arrival of mid-September, 1787, and with the draft of the proposed Constitution completed, 39 men in knee breeches, silk stockings, and ruffled shirts stood around in conversational groups, each awaiting his turn to annex his signature to the parchment that was to become the political religion of this nation. The effort put forth by these men in perfecting a system of government that was to safeguard the rights of the people, deriving its just powers from above, was really remarkable. Day after day during the sweltering summer months these builders toiled on, combining skill and workmanship to produce a masterpiece that has been without parallel in history.

Next came the task of submitting it to the states for ratification. As the people were studying the draft, two distinct contentments developed, one in support of it, the other in opposition. Wherever people gathered, whether for town meetings, church, or gossip at the country stores, the contest ensued. Campaigns raged. The land resounded with speeches both for and against adoption. The most eloquent orators of the day came forward and urged the people to delay no longer in ratifying this document.

In Massachusetts excitement was tense. A feverish debate lasted for nearly a month. Fear of losing individual rights was the chief ground for opposition. But on conditions that a bill of rights, guaranteeing personal liberty, be added as amendments, the opponents finally gave way. With this provision did Massachusetts as the sixth state give her assent to this document. And within the surprising short period of seven months the required number of states had acknowledged the Constitution as the fundamental law of the land.

Today it remains a living document, for embodied in it are the principles of freedom and justice which have made our nation great. Its adoption signaled the birth of a new system of government in this country—a democracy in a republic.

Many future generations, confronted with the complex problems of their day, take encouragement from the fact that our forefathers, encountering similar problems, had the strength of the will, the foresight to stand united in a single purpose of government by proclaiming in the noble words of the preamble: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

Rita McGonigle

OUR DEBT OF GRATITUDE
(Winchester High School Graduation Address)

Everyone should remember that this country is made up of individuals. We should remember that it is run by individuals, and that the future of this country is in the hands of individuals. Our government should operate for the benefit of the individual citizen. Too often the great size and the highly organized development of our nation leads us to despise the idea of ever being recognized as an integral part of its operation, or of having a share of the responsibility which is due us. Such apparent insignificance is not justified, yet it is the point of view taken by many. We forget that it takes many parts to make up a whole, and to function properly, each part must bear an equal share of the burden. Therefore, let us today as American citizens take pride in our citizenship.

On this day of commemoration we are not celebrating the antiquity of this nation; for, among the nations of the earth, we stand with the youngest. Ours is not a nation which glitters with pomp and ceremony, for the purpose of dazzling its citizens, or one which struts before other nations like a peacock, conscious of its power. We Americans can feel justly proud that our policy in dealing with other countries, has been in the past and continues to be in the present, one of a peacekeeper and a guardian of the rights of mankind.

Although we are young, as a country, the constitution under which we have functioned, for this century and a half, is older than that of any other democratic nation which has existed in the world, either past or present. It was drawn up in an age when nine-tenths of the population lived by agriculture; industry was still in its infancy. Today the population has increased by 40 times and the area of the country under our Flag is more than 12 times greater. From an agricultural nation, we have become increasingly industrial, with a degree of efficiency and modernization never dreamed of by those who framed the constitution. It is truly remarkable reflection upon the excellence of its construction and the foresight of its authors. Its liberal principles have made it adaptable to the economic as well as to the political changes, which have taken place. It remained basically the same through the period of westward expansion, and after the Civil War the states were able to reunite under that same document making but three amendments to it.

Many people believe today that a constitutional form of government is undergoing its severest test. It is believed that the intricate and complex problems which are growing out of the modern industrial age cannot be dealt with successfully by the slow moving machinery of constitutional form of government. However, are these problems more difficult to cope with than the problems of the past through which we have so admirably emerged? It is true that the tasks of government in these extraordinary times are very great; but so also should the patience, the energy, and the resourcefulness of our 130,000,000 people be great. For never has education been so widespread, nor has the means of transmitting knowledge to all and upon all subjects, been so universal and so perfect. And while the citizens in these days stand confronted with all kinds of questions calling for greater and graver responsibility, need we fear that that citizen will be unwilling or incapable of shouldering his share of the burden? We should not, for our debt of gratitude to those who have kept alive the spirit of democracy and have preserved the ideals of our forefathers, should be so great that no task would seem too difficult, if it were in the defense of the fruits of what Washington called, "A noble experiment."

In a land of free speech and free press the radical faction cannot be ignored, for if we want to maintain a government of the people, we must prove to those who oppose us that this form of government is best. We should, therefore, look upon criticisms as valuable in that they renew the spirit of defense and provide a stimulus to those who have accepted without realizing it the benefits which we have derived from this most excellent government. A wholly defensive stand is not the way to regard criticisms. Accepting proof of errors and striving to correct them is far better than upholding a principle whether it be right or wrong.

Probably the greatest man ever to assume the responsibility of judging the powers of the constitution was John Marshall. He was a true American citizen and had experienced all the trials of the organizers and leaders of this country. He suffered with Washington at Valley Forge and had a sense of duty to his country which gave him the spirit and will to give to this nation his best efforts in the field of law. The constitution seemed not so much to rise under his hands to its full stature, as to be gradually unveiled by him, till it stood revealed in the harmonious perfection of the form which its framers had designed. We should be truly grateful for this heritage which has been passed to us and which is ours to uphold and further develop. Now, as we take over this responsibility, we should remember that it has been a result of experience and practice which has long since tested its worth, and that it represents the safeguard from tyranny and oppression of all people of our land.

OPEN WEDNESDAY AFTERNOONS

BROWN-BROWNELL

The Church of the Epiphany was the scene of a quiet and intimate wedding ceremony Tuesday evening, June 21, when Miss Priscilla Bartlett Brownell of Canton, China, and Mr. William Clay Brown of Winchester were married at 7 o'clock by the rector of the parish, Rev. Dwight W. Hadley.

No invitations to the wedding were issued, and the guests who were there all represented friendliness old enough and deep enough to be sure that each would be heartily welcome though self-invited. A special atmosphere of warmth and sincerity characterized the wedding by reason of this voluntary and spontaneous basis of attendance.

Details of the ceremony had the same origin and character. For example, a member of the Epiphany Altar Guild asked the privilege of decorating the altar on the basis of lifelong friendship between her sons and the bridegroom when he was the little boy next door, and in the name of long-standing friendship, Mr. Arthur Cortell came down from her summer home in New Hampshire to be the organist at the wedding. It was as if friends had all remembered that the bride's home and parents were far away and had been eager to mass for her on that special June evening all that friends can bring of faithfulness and affection.

There were no bridal attendants. The groom came to the chancel with the officiating clergyman. The bride entered the church with her brother, Mr. Lincoln Brownell, who represented her family and gave her away in marriage. Her gown was a summer evening gown of white shirtings touched with rose, and she wore a rose band in her hair. She wore a corsage of white gardenias. The flowers decorating the altar were white peonies and white syringa against the rose colors of the tapestry.

The groom was graduated in 1935 from Massachusetts State College and after graduation spent a year in the study of military science. He is a lieutenant in the United States reserve corps. He is the son of Mr. Alfred Sweet, of Winchester.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Chase Brownell of Canton, China, where her father is a professor in Lingnan University. She prepared for college in Shanghai, China, and attended Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., receiving her degree in 1937.

Her brother, too, is in this country for his education and received his degree from the School of Law at Yale University, the morning after his sister's wedding.

An informal reception for friends was held immediately after the ceremony at the home of Mrs. Alfred Sweet, the mother of the groom. Among out of town guests were a number of Mrs. Brown's Vassar friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown left at once for Vermont by motor, and will be absent for a fortnight. On their return they will be at home at 4 Chesterford road.

ARTHUR DICKSON DEAD

Arthur David Dickson, well known to the host of Winchester friends, died at his home, 111 Church street, Watertown, Wednesday afternoon. Although he never actually resided in Winchester, his home for many years being at Morningside, Arlington, he was active in this town's social life. He had been sick for several months.

He was born in Somerville in 1890, and for several years had been vice-president and general manager of the Big Bear in West Medford. He is survived by his wife, Florence, a daughter, Barbara, and a son, David.

He leaves a brother in Winchester, Mr. Walter S. Dickson, of Elmwood street, another brother, Dr. Elsworth J. M. Dickson of Needham and two sisters, Mrs. Fred L. Tuttle of Rochester, N. H., and Mrs. C. Brooks Reed of Halden.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church of this town and formerly a prominent member of the Calumet Club. He was a Mason, being affiliated with Amherst Lodge, Cambridge Commandery and Aleppo Temple.

Funeral services will be held at the First Congregational Church, Rev. Howard J. Chidley officiating, at 2 o'clock this Saturday afternoon. The interment will be in Cambridge Cemetery.

WINCHESTER BOYS MADE FINE RECORD AT BOWDOIN

Fitts and Davidson Major Sports Captains, Members of Student Council

Seldom have two boys from the same town, members of the same class, equalled the college record made by David W. Fitts and George T. Davidson, Jr. of Winchester who were graduated last week-end from Bowdoin College at Brunswick, Me., outstanding among the prominent members of the senior class.

DAVID W. FITTS
Co-Football Captain

In many respects the careers of both boys have run parallel at Bowdoin. They have been room-mates, members of Alpha Delta Phi, presidents of their fraternity, student council members and captains of major sports teams, both of which enjoyed the distinction of winning Maine State championships. Both boys, by their ability, modesty and sterling worth have won the admiration of their college mates and the respect of the faculty.

Both "Dave" and "Junior" as they are affectionately known, connected their college preparation at Winchester High School and both broke into sports the hard way. A mastoid operation kept "Dave" out of football in high school and he played only tennis until he went to Holderness School in Holderness, N. H., where he starred in football and track, winning the Haslem Cup for excellence in scholarship, sportsmanship and athletics.

"Junior" played his favorite game in high school and while a dependable player, was hardly an outstanding player. He did, however, have determination, perseverance and the intelligence to profit by coaching and good advice. He was a greatly improved player when he left high school to go to Bowdoin.

GEORGE T. DAVIDSON, JR.
Baseball Captain

At the Brunswick College both boys quickly made the grade, "Dave" playing on his freshman eleven and "Junior" making the varsity ball team as a freshman, his year being the last in which such a feat was possible because of the new college rule. Both continued to star through their three years as upper classmen.

"Dave's" football record at Bowdoin is well known. For three years he starred at end for the Polar Bears, and in his senior year, as being capable of making any college team. Captain with Harold Askenazy, guard, the Winchester boy had the pleasure at commencement he was named Maine State title last fall, playing a big part himself in making the championship possible.

Besides his football, "Dave" made his letter in swimming as a sophomore, was a member of the track team as a junior and played on the tennis team for two years. He was president of his class as a freshman and senior, was a member of the college athletic committee, a member of the college needs committee, and president of the student council, perhaps the outstanding undergraduate leader at Bowdoin. He was awarded the Lucien Howe prize scholarship for "high qualities of gentlemanly conduct and character." He is the son of Mrs. Caroline W. Fitts of Grassmere avenue and the late Henry King Fitts.

"Junior" culminated four years of steadily dependable varsity baseball by leading his nine as captain to the current Maine State title. He has shown his versatility by playing both the outfield and infield as the need arose and has been a good hitter. Aside from baseball, he participated (Continued on page 8)

GARDNER-SPEEDIE

The marriage of Miss Mercedes Adelaide Speedie, daughter of Mrs. Arthur David Speedie of Oxford street and the late Mr. Speedie, to Angus John Gardner of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Gardner of South Bend, Ind., took place on Saturday afternoon, June 18, at 4:30 o'clock, in the First Congregational Church. Easter lilies and white roses with a background of palms made a most attractive setting for the ceremony which was performed by the pastor of the church, Dr. Howard J. Chidley. Henry T. Speedie of San Francisco, Calif., gave his niece in marriage.

Miss Speedie's honor attendant was her sister, Mrs. Ray Kreutzer, (the former Marie Alice Speedie) of Kentworth, Ill. Another sister, Miss Lillian Speedie of this town, was a bridesmaid, the others being Miss Joan Gardner of South Bend, Ind., sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Leslie H. York, Mrs. Willard Chandler, Miss Rosamond Rivinius and Miss Jeannette Cabot, all of Winchester.

Richard W. Gardner of South Bend, Ind., was his brother's best man and the usher corps, headed by Donald Gardner of South Bend, another brother of the bridegroom, and Gordon A. Speedie of Cambridge, brother of the bride, included Gene Parker of New York City, William Hennings of Chicago, Ill.; Leslie Anderson of Macon, Ga. and Peyton H. York of this town.

Miss Speedie, who on many occasions has appeared as a bride at fashion shows in and around Winchester, for her own wedding wore a princess gown of pearl satin with a long train and a veil of tulle held in place with a satin cap. Her flowers were orchids, sweet peas and lily of the valley. Mrs. Kreutzer wore a buff and frock of California peach net and aqua velvet ribbon with hat to match and carried delphinium with African daisies. The bridesmaids wore frocks of aqua net and peach velvet ribbon, similar in style to that of the matron of honor. They also wore matching hats and carried Queen Mary roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, who assisted in receiving with the parents of the bridegroom. House decorations were tasteful and white roses with palms.

Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. Gardner and his bride will live at Hawthorne Gardens in Mt. Vernon, N. Y. where they will be at home after July 12.

The bride attended the Katharine Gibbs School and the Chamberlain School of Art. Mr. Gardner, who is a graduate of the State University, attended Northwestern University and the University of Maine.

AMICO-MARABELLA

The altar of St. Mary's Church was decorated with red carnations Sunday afternoon, June 19, for the marriage of Miss Jennie Marabella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Marabella of Florence street, and Mr. Francis Amico, son of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo Amico of Oak street. Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick performed the marriage ceremony. The organ furnished music for the entrance of the bride party was played by the church organist, Miss Florence Fisher.

Passing between tall baskets of gladioli and snapdragons, glided at either side of the central aisle of the church, the bride party proceeded to the altar upon a white carpet. Miss Marabella, who was given in marriage to her father, attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Marabella of this town, who was maid of honor; by little Miss Angelina Dattilo of Winchester, who was flower girl; and by Miss Geraldine Maggio who was ring-bearer.

Mr. Amico had for his best man Angelo P. Tofuri of this town and the ushers were Arcangelo Amico, brother of the bridegroom, and Frank Marabella, brother of the bride; both of Winchester.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette and satin, made with a long train, and a veil of tulle arranged in a halo crown. Her flowers were a shower bouquet of call lilies and babies' breath. The maid of honor wore a gown of peach marquisette and satin with a coronet of flowers and short veil. Her flowers were talisman roses. Both small attendants wore white frocks and the flower-girl carried a basket of rose petals.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, who assisted in receiving with the parents of the bride. Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. Amico and his bride will make their home on Oak street.

The bride is a graduate of the Winchester schools and has been employed by the Boston manufacturing concern, Mr. Amico, one of Winchester High School's finest football players, was graduated from high school in 1929. He is a member of the Order, Sons of Italy in America, and is presently a member of the Winchester Fire Department.

RICHARDSON'S BILL SIGNED

The Governor has signed the bill introduced by Senator Harris S. Richardson for cleaning up the sewer situation in the river below Medford. SAIIS FOR EUROPE

The luckiest girl in Winchester just now! This is the verdict of the many friends of pretty Martha Anne Swanson, who sails for Europe this week as prize winner of a "World Youth" essay contest. She leaves on Wednesday, June 23, on the S. S. Aquitania, for a glorious trip through England, Norway, Sweden and Denmark.

Miss Swanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Harry Swanson, 26 Prince avenue, wrote the prize essay while yet a senior in Winchester High School in 1936. She will be remembered as standing highest in the Classical course. The subject offered by the publishers of "World Youth" was an international news review of Boston, as a competition for their readers in many countries was "Youth today—how can we help to build a better world?" The prize was a trip to Europe. The final vote was left to the readers of "World Youth" and listeners in to the "World Youth" broadcasts at which the essays were read without names. A decisive majority of votes went to Miss Swanson's essay.

After her graduation from Winchester High School in June, 1936, Miss Swanson was prepared to take her trip to Europe, but ominous conditions developed in the European situation, and she was advised to postpone her trip until conditions should improve.

"I am glad I waited," says Martha, looking very smart in a gray suit colored "topper" and a blue and white print dress chosen for travel, "because not only have conditions improved over there, but I am a little older and I think I can appreciate it more. Two years at Ohio Wesleyan University have enlarged my vision. I have taken art courses, music and participated in student groups discussing world affairs, so that the past two years have given me many new points of view."

"I am going to visit a great uncle and aunt in Sweden. My uncle was in America for some time, so his knowledge of English combined with my three stock phrases in Swedish will help. If people speak Swedish slowly enough I can usually understand what they are talking about, but I wish I had learned more of my parents' language when I was a child."

"Mother is making me a list of questions and answers in both Swedish and English so that by matching questions and answers with friends in Sweden we will both know what we are talking about."

"There are so many things I want to see," said Martha. "My Speech Professor at Ohio Wesleyan, Professor Hunter, asked me to look up Ibsen's Theatre in Bergen, Norway. And I am looking forward tremendously to the trip up the famous Norwegian fjords."

"Each year Professor Hunter coaches a Shakespearean play so I am very eager to see the country where Shakespeare actually lived. Altogether it will be a great adventure."

Miss Swanson will go with one of the groups conducted by the Bureau of University Travel in Newton. While abroad she will try her hand at getting a good news feature story which will be published in the September issue of "World Youth."

OUR MODERN AGE

By J. J. Doherty

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?

When anything is started here, we go from low into high gear and really do the thing right. Just take the present labor fight. The thing is so mixed up today we don't know what the headlines say. Yes, when we start we make things hop. We never know, though, where to stop.

Smart home-owners know that it pays to have the home equipped with modern plumbing systems, plumbing that adds new beauty and affords the utmost in comfort, convenience, cleanliness and efficiency. You can easily afford to have your kitchen and bathroom modernized. Just phone 9903 and ask the experts of Fells Plumbing & Heating Co. of 656 Main Street, for an estimate.

WADSWORTH—DORR

There is much Winchester interest in the marriage of Miss Virginia Helen Dorr of Newport, N. H., and Charles Young Wadsworth of this town which took place on Saturday afternoon, June 18, at 4 o'clock at the South Congregational Church in Newport. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dorr of Newport, and Mr. Wadsworth is the son of Mr. Lewis A. Wadsworth (Vera Young).

Miss Dorr's honor maid was her sister, Miss Phyllis N. Dorr, and another sister, Miss Priscilla Dorr, was included among the bridesmaids, the others being Mrs. Dexter D. Coffin of Winsor Locks, Conn., a cousin of the bride; Mrs. Lloyd C. Lind of New York, Miss Margaret Snyder of Boston, Miss Frances Prouty of Keene, N. H., and Miss Frances Bancroft of Wilmington, Del.

Mr. Wadsworth had for his best man his brother, Lewis L. Wadsworth, Jr., and the bride's brother, George A. Dorr, Jr., headed the ushers corps, the members of which included Mr. Coffin, Charles P. LeBoyer, Jr., and Herbert Todd Wadsworth, both of Winchester and cousins of the bridegroom; E. Carlton Nickerson, 2nd of Cohasset, and Roland H. Sherman of North Andover, formerly of this town.

The bride wore a simply cut gown of oyster white satin, the bottom of the skirt flounced and the long train squared off. Her veil and headpiece were of heirloom rose point lace, mounted on bridal illusion tulle. The attendants wore marquisette gowns with Empire style with square necklines, short puffed sleeves and trimming of velvet. Their slippers and their large leghorn hats matched the gowns—the maid of honor wearing silver-mist and carrying deep red peonies, the bridesmaids wearing cherry red, and carrying white peonies with centers shading from light to deep red, all picked from the gardens of "Woodlawn," the estate of the bride's parents.

Immediately following the ceremony, there was a reception at "Woodlawn." Upon their return from a wedding trip to Canada, Mr. Wadsworth and his bride will live at Winchester Terrace, where they will be at home to their friends after July 18.

The bride was graduated from the Knox School in 1934 and attended Goucher College and the Cambridge Gibbs School. Mr. Wadsworth was graduated from Harvard with the class of 1932 and from the Harvard Law School in 1935. His clubs are the Varsity, Speakers, Lincoln's Inn and Harvard Club of Boston.

MCGEEHAN—MCCARRON

Wearing a gown of white sheer lace over satin with a tulle veil, and carrying a shower bouquet of bride's roses, sweet peas and lilies of the valley, Miss Eunice Elizabeth McGeehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah McGeehan of Cross street, was married on Sunday afternoon, June 19, in the Immaculate Conception Church, to James McGeehan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis McGeehan of Grove street, Belmont.

The pastor of the church, Rev. Fr. James Fitzsimons, performed the marriage ceremony at 3 o'clock, and the wedding music was played by Miss Lillian Regan of Winchester. After the ceremony there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

Miss McGeehan was attended by her sister, Miss Betty McGeehan, who wore a dress of peach and aqua mousseline de soie with an aqua picture hat and peach slippers. Her flowers were tallisman roses. Joseph Ward of Watertown was Mr. McGeehan's best man.

Upon their return from a honeymoon spent in New York and Washington, Mr. McGeehan and his bride will live in Cambridge at 35 Washburn avenue, where they will be at home after August 1.

The bride attended the Winchester schools and has been an operator at Mr. McGeehan's Telephone Exchange.

Miss McGeehan, a graduate of Belmont High School, is associated with the American Oil Company.

FIRST SERMON GIVES DEEPER MEANING OF LIGHTLY CURRENT PHRASE

At the 11 o'clock service on June 19 the church of the Epiphany heard the first sermon preached by Rev. Theodore L. Ludlow, who on the preceding Sunday had there been ordained to the diaconate by his father, Bishop Theodore Ludlow of Newark. The sermon interpreted a phrase that he in the last few years came to be widely current, made popular as a social purpose, as a description of the ends that government seeks for its people, "the life now and hereafter."

Some people have even come to think of it as a particular political program, forgetting, or never knowing that it is a phrase 1800 years old. It came from the lips of a young workman, but he was not telling those who worked with their hands that they would possess the fullness of life if only they could take home to their little houses larger wages each day. It came from the heart of one who was deeply compassionate with all the pangs which he saw men and women suffering, but it did not stop with seeing only the surface needs and hungers. It saw the heart of man more searching and more respectfully than does the glib modern formula, "what is the matter with the poor is poverty." The young Master of life who saw for men of all sorts and conditions "the life more abundant" was not ascetic and distrustful of delightful things, he was not careless about scarcity and dearth and security and beauty he saw as infallibly coming into human life when men found and entered into the full life for which human consciousness is intended—when the befriending presence of God is as real to them as sure and natural to them, as grateful to them, as the fertile furrows they walk or the sunny sky above them. "All these things shall be added unto you," when once men have become citizens of that "city whose builder and maker is God."

A young man is truly representative of his own day and generation when he now in his first sermon talks not of the good deeds, the juster social relationships, the heightened creative energy, which are things that shall be added as a result of religion, but of religion itself, profoundly and adventurously defined. For in this time of ours religion is rediscovering itself.

Regular attendants at Epiphany were touched at learning that the faculty present in the congregation that heard Mr. Ludlow's first sermon were his family, from New Jersey, his two brothers, his mother, and his father, Bishop Ludlow.

HIGH SCHOOL FACULTY DINED

With the final tasks of the school year over, Tuesday afternoon the faculty of the Winchester High School enjoyed its annual luncheon in the school gymnasium. Supt. James J. Quinn dined with the teachers and Principal Wade L. Grindle, and if there was such a thing as an honor guest, that designation surely went to Principal Emeritus Edwin N. Lovering, former Latin master and "grand old man" of the school.

Principal Grindle acted as toastmaster, and insisted upon everyone divulging his or her plans for the summer. It was also pointed out that the 43 faculty members present were within two of the number of scholars in the Winchester High School when Mr. Lovering became principal in 1887.

MacNeil of Nova Scotia, and John Albert McGee, son of Mr. James McGee of B. 5 avenue, Winthrop, were married Sunday afternoon, June 19, at 5 o'clock, in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. Joseph E. McGoldrick. Baskets of cut flowers were used to decorate the altar.

Miss MacNeil was attended by her sister, Miss Mary J. MacNeil of Marblehead, and Thomas G. McGee of Winthrop was his brother's best man. The bride wore a gown of white marquisette and lace with a veil of tulle, and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The honor maid wore a dress of peach marquisette with matching hat and slippers, and carried tallisman roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lang on Park avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Lang and the bridegroom's father assisted in receiving the guests. Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. McGee and his bride will make their home at 76 Cotting street in Medford.

MRS. M. HELEN JONES

Mrs. M. Helen Jones, widow of B. R. Jones, died Thursday evening, June 16, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Roger V. Pettingill, 282 Main street, after a brief illness that followed a year of poor health.

Mrs. Jones, a native of St. John, N. B., was 74 years old and had lived with her daughter in Winchester since 1922, coming with her to this town from Winthrop. Her entire interests had always been centered in her home and the members of her family.

Besides Mrs. Pettingill she leaves a daughter, Mrs. E. C. Jacobson of Melrose; a sister, Mrs. M. B. Price of Winthrop; six grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were held on last Saturday afternoon at the Kelley & Hawes Chapel with Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiating. The remains were cremated at Mt. Auburn.

Miss Elsie Moss of Rangleys was a guest this week at the New Weston in New York City.

We're surprised they didn't give "Joe" Kennedy a degree at Harvard. Someone must have blundered.

Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, our Congressional woman from this district, read a Star editorial in the House last week. According to the Congressional Record it was received with no applause. We didn't plan it that way and never told anyone different. So that's that.

Considering the Bacon Hop Along and the Church Steeple Chase, we have in mind to bring forth the Central Circuit and the Hangey Run. The latter two speedways may well be added to those listed by Mr. Gordon Mead—they both cut out the lights.

The more we look over Manchester Field the more inclined we are to voice our opinion that some of our Town forefathers slipped badly when they turned this beautiful playground over to the State. The transfer of authority may well have been with the best of intentions, but the result has been of no value to Winchester—rather a detriment. It undoubtedly lies at the root of the new field on Shore road, and no matter how wonderful the Shore road playground is, it will never take the place of Manchester Field. Freezing cold in winter and scorching hot in summer, we doubt if it ever will attract the games and the crowds that have graced Manchester Field. And we think it a pity, with such a beautiful playground as Manchester Field, for Winchester to be obliged to reconstruct another similar plot for use by the Town.

Continued complaints of bicycle riding on the sidewalks about town and reports of injuries sustained by pedestrians as a result of this practice has finally prompted the Police to take drastic action to put a stop to this form of youthful exuberance. Cards, on which is printed the law governing the riding of bicycles, are being sent the parents of youthful offenders, and a second offense will result in court action. The law provides a $20 fine for conviction! While the Police are at it, they should, if possible, the youthful practice of riding bikes in and out of traffic, generally on the wrong side of the street, against traffic on one-way streets, across the bow of automobiles just about to start with a traffic light, and in general defiance of all signals installed for public safety. Bicycling is great fun and healthy exercise. It is much better for the kiddies to go places on their wheels than in the family cars, but bicycling should be made a deal safer for both the cyclists and motorists than it is. And there seems to be no reason why it should not be!

The little old New Deal still continues to plug along—with business the one big goat. Now comes the elimination of employees contribution to the State end of Social Security. Thus far Social Security has put the biggest crimp in business of any of the New Deal deals. With the elimination of the employees contribution and a good old 2.7 per cent tax for the employers, it adds greatly in encouraging the small business man in his race to keep one step ahead of a Government job. With the politicians deciding how the money is to be spent to keep them in office, and with the relievers voting to spend it, business is riding the top of the wave. It will take but a short time to create an equal division of wealth—and when it arrives, see how much there is to go around. If surplus money is piling up to such a great extent, why should there not be an equal reduction in this extortionate robbery? Of course this is only the opening wedge. It will only be a short time when all Social Security will be provided by business—if there is any business to provide it. Still, with this Government feeding out the greatest propaganda baloney the world has ever seen, the guys who get something for nothing are riding in stream-lined airplanes. When the toll tax was raised for social security (old style) everyone was considered equal and paid equal sums or did not vote. Although everyone is now voting, only the business men who pay the poll tax which carries the assessment for social security are the suckers. The next step will be the investigation of the row over the spending of the spoils.

LEATHER

MRS. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for one minute.

THE SPEAKER. Is there objection? There was no objection.

MRS. ROGERS of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I quote from an editorial appearing in the Winchester Star, a newspaper published in my district:

For the first time in over 100 years, since the leather business started there, not a side of leather was turned out of Woburn last Saturday, according to reliable information. The Woburn industry is flat. According to President Roosevelt's speech of not so long ago, "we planned it that way and don't let anyone tell you different." And so charitable people will now give our great President credit for carrying out at least one of his many reforms. More of a similar nature appear to be imminent. Praise be for social security.

Mr. Speaker it is not hard to picture the effect of idle factories in a city or town where the life and happiness of the citizens depend upon steady employment. The city of Woburn, Mass., has been known as a tanning center since Revolutionary days. Anything affecting the leather industry affects every other business in that city—the grocer feels it, the butcher feels it, the baker's business drops off, and everybody retrenches to meet the situation. The relief rolls swell, and nobody is happy. It is a distressing situation.

There is a cause for all this. It is the contention of the tanners, and the contention of other Members of Congress as well as myself, that foreign leather is allowed to go through our customs houses improperly marked, meaning a great loss to the tanners of my district, in which Woburn is located, as well as to the tanners all over the country. Soft leather carries a lower duty than grained leather and much of the latter has been brought in under the low-duty schedule. This not only permits foreign labor to compete with our tanners, but it means a loss of revenue to the Government. It is high time that the administration assisted industry instead of hurting it.

We notice this morning that Owen Chalky, who is at the present time commercial attaché at the British Embassy, was knighted by the King of England. Now Sir Owen is a very fine gentleman and a very able attaché. Of course, we all know that he was knighted in large measure because the King of England is interested in the proposed reciprocal trade agreement between this country and Great Britain, and Sir Owen Chalky did most of the work in bringing about the negotiations. Apparently England feels that she will make more out of it than she will lose. We have felt the effect in New England already. New England is thoroughly tired of having her workers out of a job because of reciprocal trade agreements. It is a serious situation for us, Mr. Speaker.

THE SPEAKER. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts has expired.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS X ?

To the Editor of the Star:

The busiest spot in the world is thought to be Times Square, New York. How many traffic lights are there at this "crossroads of the country," and how many in Winchester Square? The number must be nearly equal. If Times Square needs them, then Winchester, with only a small fraction of the traffic of the busy spot, does not need them. Why does Winchester need any traffic lights on the Square? What is the matter with a traffic circle at this point? A circle to include in its center that little railroad atrocity with the gates; a circle where the automobiles just about to start with a traffic light, and in general defiance of all signals installed for public safety. Bicycling is great fun and healthy exercise. It is much better for the kiddies to go places on their wheels than in the family cars, but bicycling should be made a deal safer for both the cyclists and motorists than it is. And there seems to be no reason why it should not be!

The architect of the town has done very well at constructing a "Chinatown" at Symmes Corner, and at the corner of Washington and Mt. Vernon streets. The man which could be welded into a traffic circle at the Square could be, easily, the finest and best in our fair town. There is no other town around here with a traffic circle in its center which includes a railroad crossing. After all, Woburn's circle is large, and has only a war relic in its center. Railroad crossings are much better relics than crinoids and shells. Just think of the wringer-squeezed railroads of the country—to have one of them run through the center of a traffic circle! Yes, Winchester would be on the map with a distinction no traffic light will ever bring.

It is a pretty pass when our own Police force have to excuse the traffic lights by saying that they are approved by the State! We appreciate the fact that the gentlemen in the State Department, be it vnder smoke and noise of a railroad at their door has not befogged their minds for the moments necessary to approve the lights. On second thought, their approval may be based on safety, and the lights certainly restrict traffic so that an accident should be possible.

What is the trouble with the Police of the town that they allow such a labor saving device as lights, to be installed? With a traffic circle, we can see the need of one of our finest at each crossing to protect our fair pedestrians. As poor citizens, we will have to pay for the Police anyway, so it would cost less by the price of the lights to have a traffic circle.

Let us hear some more from our townsmen.

OUR DEBT TO OUR PIONEERS!

To the Editor of the Star:

In the year 1950 the inhabitants of the Town of Winchester will most likely celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the Town of Winchester—the beautiful, healthful suburb of the "Athens of America," the sphere of refinement and perfect bliss; an hour's stroll among her vales and hills calms troubled minds and tempers all life's ills.

Charming residences, beautiful parks and playgrounds, handsome churches, a modern hospital, sound constructive banks, excellent schools, wonderful streets and marvelous reservoirs; the home of the late Admiral Thatcher and Captain Spicer of the United States Navy; the late general Captain West, the late General Corse, ex-postmaster of Boston; the late Frederick O. Prince, ex-mayor of Boston; the late Edward Everett, ex-United States Senator; the late world war Governor, Samuel W. McCall; the late Theodore P. Wilson, editor and publisher of the Winchester Star; the late Preston Pond, the honorable Lewis Parkhurst, ex-State Senator; and our pioneer Water Commissioners, the late David N. Skillings, Moses A. Herriek and James W. Dwinell; and others too numerous to mention in this article. The above named men were undoubtedly inspired when they visualized the marvelous picturesque scenery that was manifested by nature in the Town of Winchester.

The late Forest C. Manchester, the late Preston Pond, the late Theodore P. Wilson, Lewis Parkhurst and James J. Fitzgerald were instrumental in presenting to the inhabitants the beautiful Mystic Valley Parkway, Manchester Field, Leonard Field, the sturdy bridges, the dredging of the Aberjona River, in fact they were the fathers and benefactors of our various parks and playgrounds; and remember the progressive measures that they suggested and advocated, were criticized by the grumbling clowns and carping critics who are abundant in every town.

I believe the residents of Winchester owe a debt of gratitude to the men who gave their time and money to develop Winchester into one of the most beautiful residential suburbs in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Certainly we shall not forget our able Planning Board for the achievements that they have accomplished.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

PIRATES OF THE 30's

The Captain's gone ashore
With a crew of twelve Moranahua and Lika
And here Frankfurter too Wild buccaner Jim Farley
Who stole the victrol clean,
Mac Perkins, the favorite,
Goes along to entertain.
Jimmy's in the galley
Placing the dough,
The Captain grins, forgets his sins,
And sings, "My friends—d-d! Yo ho!"
All the other loyal pirates
Are along to sing and blunder
When the guns are trained and roaring Presidential thunder.
The Captain's Black'd the highest court,
Defied our God on high
With no regard for havoc wrought
On those who starve and die.
The doughty Captain chops the heads
From those who disagree,
His bloody crew must always think
And act to his decree.
The Captain's made the ship of State
A pirate's ship of hate,
He plunders both the rich and poor
And cares not for their fate.
The hangman got the pirates
In the good old days of yore
And started them toward Heaven
As they left our rocky shore.
Alas, our men have softened
In palmy days of wealth.
They forget the law and justice,
With no thought for civic health.

THANKS FROM VETERANS

Bedford, Mass.
June 6, 1938

Mrs. George Dutting, Chairman, Winchester Red Cross,
Mystic Valley Parkway,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Mrs. Dutting:

Another memorable outing and picnic at Little Nahant is history, the long anticipated day having come and gone. It is far from forgotten, however, as the men are talking everywhere of how much they enjoyed the day. We cannot speak too enthusiastically of the fine efforts which you always put into this affair, resulting in the most successful and enjoyable of outings for a very large group of patients.

Descriptive comments have been coming to our ears ever since last Friday, and had we not been fortunate enough to attend, we should have known every detail of the menu, the games on the beach, the swimming, and the long winding drive to and from the Shore. We only wish that every driver of a car and every car owner who donated transportation might know how very much the patients appreciated the outing. We are sure they would feel well repaid for their kindness. This is the only picnic of the summer where so many men are taken for an outing of the kind. Naturally, they talk of it for weeks afterward.

Will you thank all of the good people who were so generous with cars, the bus company who kindly donated the bus, enabling us to take so many men, and to the Winchester Red Cross Chapter members and Executive Board who make the outing possible each year.

Very Sincerely,
Evelyn Davis,
Recreational Aide

A NIGHTMARE

Once F. D. R. he dream't a dream.
Of a golden ship on a golden stream.
With all sails set, but all lights out Sailing a course that always sought about Having a crew of a questionable sort
With Jim F. as mate, and the votes he bought.

Thus he called the good ship U. S. A.
From Bonnevillie Dam to Quoddy Bay,
With his New Deal crew singing "Vol and Yo!"
Down with the Royals, and Wall St. rowl
We'll be riding high on a Golden Sea."

So the Captain Bold, tacked East Nor' West Never giving business a chance to rest—
With Corning, Cohen, as Boner's Mate,
They laid a course straight thru Hell's Gates.
But their course was wrong, they had to luff,
For the good Constitution, had too, and called their bluff.

Their guns were loaded with powder "Black"
Each breech block, they found, was badly cracked.
The crew they had, were a radical lot,
Professors, without a logical thought.
Their sails the wild, and the sea was rough,
But the Constitution crew knew their stuff.
They took the ship and the Captain bold,
Sailing a course that always sought about.

So ends the drama of a Golden Ship,
For the Courts and People and Nit, Nit, Nit.
And the Constitution forever, will sail the sea
With a crew that is sane, and knows a shore that is lee.
Ede la Flooshee

READING THEATRE

Nationwide acclaim for Darryl F. Zanuck's motion picture masterpiece, "In Old Chicago," to be shown at the Reading Theatre Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, has bestowed a veritable landslide of applause upon producer, cast and director alike.

Astonishing as has been the public reaction to the excellent work of Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Don Ameche, Andy Devine and Alice Brady, the public has been no less lavish in its praise of the directorial work of Henry King, who wove a beautiful love theme into the thrilling tale of the great Chicago fire.

The final cooking school session is on Wednesday at 1 p. m.

ROTARY CLUB NOTES

Nine members were absent from the meeting of June 23, two of whom have already made up for their absences.

Pat Walsh received hearty greetings today on his appearance for the first time in several weeks. We are certainly glad to see him looking fit once more.

Vice President Ralph Bonnell was in the chair today in the absence of President Warren. And Ralph is all set to stay in that chair beginning July 1.

Our list of visitors at this meeting included Ben Winkelman of the Rotary Club of Duluth, Minn. And we find "hands across the lakes" greetings most agreeable. Come again Ben.

George Reed is beginning his summer vacation and, except as duty calls, will not be in town until September. Best wishes for health and happiness, George.

There was a meeting of the Board of Directors at the home of President Warren Hersey on the evening of June 21 and much important business was transacted.

The San Francisco Convention of Rotary International is in its closing hours at this writing and we expect to receive interesting reports to pass on next week.

The International Friendship League announces that, on invitation from members of the Rotary Club of Edinburgh, Scotland, it will sponsor a trip to Edinburgh, England and Paris beginning July 6 and ending Aug. 21.

American boys of approximately 16 to 18 years of age will be eligible for this trip and they will be entertained at Edinburgh in homes where there are boys of about the same age.

We believe it most significant and commendable that Rotarians are co-operating with the League in this service, which can hardly fail to cement bonds of friendship between men who may well wield influence in international affairs of the future.

Nick Fitzgerald today introduced his neighbor, Mr. Demerath, instructor in the Department of Sociology at Harvard, as guest speaker before the club. Mr. Demerath spoke on the topic, "The Need for Social Leadership."

The speaker pointed to the generally accepted opinion that the day is past when the individual may exploit his fellow-men and as country's resources for his own private benefit. Our present economic difficulties can be mitigated only when the efforts of our social, business and professional leaders are so directed as to effect the uplift of the individual through organized or co-operative association. Club members were most appreciative of this very effective address.

We had hoped to go up to July with excellent attendance percentages, but according to present indications we are doomed to disappointment. We rely on absentees to correct this situation, please!

Percentage of attendance, June 16, 82.35 per cent.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The following list of Contagious Diseases was reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Thursday, June 23:

Chicken Pox 2
Dog Bite 2
Measles 1
Mumps 1
Scarlet Fever 3

HUBBARD'S MAP OF NEW ENGLAND

People in Woburn and Winchester are always interested in old books and maps, and "most everybody is interested in Indians. Accordingly, the "Hubbard Map" exhibit in Woburn Public Library this week is a special attraction for all who like that sort of thing.

Just after King Philip's War of 1675-76, when the native North Americans tried to kill all foreigners or drive them out of the land, Rev. William Hubbard (1621-1704) of Ipswich wrote a book on "The History of the Indian Wars in New England" and included a map specially made to point out the towns that had been assaulted by Indians. Woburn is given the number 39 on this map because that is the number of the paragraph in the book, beginning at p. 133, that describes these towns in order.

Now it so happened that over 100 years ago, in 1822, a Boston youth of 11 years, named James Jackson Jarvis found one of these old maps—picked it up in the street somewhere; and 50 years later, after acting as U. S. Consul in Florence, where he secured seven bars and medals—for Woburn Public Library, he came back as Italian commissioner to the Boston exhibition in 1882-83 and presented this map to the library, where it has been appropriately framed and is preserved with pride and care.

This particular example of the map is quite a rarity, only three other originals being known to exist. One of them is in the New York Public Library, another in the Massachusetts Historical Society and the third in Boston Public Library. They are known as the "White Hills" edition because the name of the White Mountains is properly spelled instead of being printed "Wine Hills" as on the first edition which has 20 other misspelled names also, and of which a larger number of originals are in existence.

This map, however, is more than a rarity; it is a real puzzle—something like the strange insect that Harvard boys brought to Agassiz. For its head, the right hand and, in a "Wine Hills" map, while the main body, the other 11 1/2 inches from Woburn, south to Long Island Sound, is a "White Hills" map where the 20 other names are misspelled in the original "Wine Hills" edition appear in their corrected form. Dr. Samuel A. Green scrutinized this map when he visited the library Nov. 6, 1880 and rendered the verdict that the main body was the improved and very rare "White Hills" edition while the upper 2 1/2 inch strip, which represents the northern portion of Lake Winnepesaukee and the White Mountains, carries the name "The Wine Hills" and was evidently copied or "restored" from a specimen of the earlier and less perfect edition.

In the lower corner of that restored portion is a manuscript note by Mr. Jarvis written in a very fine hand which reads: "Found by me 50 years ago and repaired after perfect one. James J. Jarvis, October 1882." Evidently in making his restoration he had access to a less perfect example than the very rare one he had himself found as a boy in the streets of Boston.

This particular copy has also several times been mentioned in print: In the WOBURN JOURNAL of March 23, 1883 when it was first presented to Woburn Public Library; in Mr. Edward D. Hayden's again in the annual report of the librarian (Wm. R. Cutter) for 1890, and in Mr. Cutter's pages of "Additional Material for a Bibliography of Woburn" at the end of the Woburn Record of Deaths (Part V) appended to the City Records for 1892. But a new paragraph of 1883 is more than a generation in the past, and even an 1892 report can hardly suffice to keep the present generation "informed" of a genuine antiquarian curiosity such as this Hubbard Map of New England in 1676.

It is a good time therefore, when all good Carters and Richardson are coming up to Woburn from Mississippi and Chicago and California looking up ancestors, to display this map and Hubbard's book telling how Indians killed three members of the Richardson family on April 10, 1676, while in the same show case one may see the Woburn Record of Deaths confirming the fact, while the two editions of the map are made more intelligible by Dr. Samuel A. Green's two pamphlets, and fascicules of 18-8 and 1890, by Dr. Charles Deane's article in the 1887 Proceedings of the Massachusetts Historical Society and by the recently acquired "Books of Old Maps" published by Harvard University Press in 1926 under the editorship of Emerson D. Fiske of Vassar College and Archibald Freeman of Phillips Academy, Andover. The whole exhibit is a good example of who one small point of antiquarian research may be illuminated by the contributions of various friends of research working toward one common end over a long period of time.

BOY SCOUTS, TROOP 7

Under the direction of Scoutmaster Mr. A. O. Weld the following boys had a very successful trip to Mr. and Mrs. Hight's camp at Lone Pine Point on Lake Winnepesaukee last week-end. Mr. A. O. Weld, S.M., Mr. J. C. Casler, assist. scoutmaster; committee: Ernest Butterworth, chairman, Harry Moulton, W. Hight and Ray Bohannon. Paul Butterworth, senior patrol leader, Richard Swanson, senior patrol leader, Ralph Jury, assistant patrol leader, Jimmie O'Connor, patrol leader, Everett Stevens, Bud Kassat, Ellsworth Post, Donald Johnson, Proctor Jones, Robert Huckins, Donald Goodwin, Bert Callanan, Frank Strong, David Cameron, John Harris, Robert Harris, Ralph Swanson.

We arrived in camp about 5:30 p. m. on Friday. Lunch was served and the camp was made ready for the night. All kinds of games were enjoyed including a ball game. Sides were chosen and we will call them the Hollis chieftains and the Pettaquamsettas. The equipment consisted of a bat 21 inches long and a ball five inches in diameter. Mr. Moulton umpired at the plate. Mr. Weld 1st base, Donald Goodwin 3rd base. Some sensational plays were made by Frank Strong and Bert Callanan. The Hollis chieftains won by a score of 13 to 8. The most exciting part of this game was when someone hit the ball over the fence into the lake. Mr. Butterworth was sent for the ball and he went to the bottom, uniform and all. Mr. Hight fished him out and gave him some dry clothing several sizes too large. But he returned the ball safely. Taps were sounded by bugler Swanson at 10 p. m. and it did not mean a thing to those who were supposed to sleep in the lean-to. The assistant scoutmaster could not keep his bed in one place very long at a time. He did however, get about 20 minutes sleep during the night. Mr. Swanson, a committeeman, who owns an electric razor, did not go this year.

Saturday forenoon the boys were given instructions in boating, signaling and swimming. Lunches were prepared and a hike of about two miles to Lovejoy Sands landing. We boarded the Uncle Sam mail boat, had a very delightful sail around the lake to the islands, delivered the mail. The menu for Saturday's lunch was baked beans, frankfurts and plenty of cold watermelon. The Hollis chieftains and the Pettaquamsettas lined up for another ball game. The Hollis chieftains won this game also by a score of 11 to 10.

The assistant scoutmaster acted as chaplain, and after breakfast Sunday morning Mr. Butterworth read the 23rd Psalm and all said the Lord's Prayer. Hymns were sung and at 10 o'clock an institute service was held.

Everett Stevens received a tenderfoot badge; Donald Goodwin, second class badge; James O'Connor, first class badge. The following became star scouts and received their badges: Proctor Jones, Donald Johnson, Bert Callanan, Ralph Jury, Frank Strong and Ralph Swanson. Merit badges were awarded to Proctor Jones for woodworking, personal health and handicraft. Paul Butterworth, leathercraft, pathfinding and scholarship, James O'Connor, pioneering, cooking and pathfinding. Ralph Swanson, bugling and public health. Tasker Hatch, scholarship and reading. Advancements: David Burnham, Richard Swanson and Paul Butterworth to the rank of junior assistant scoutmaster. Bert Callanan, Donald Johnson and Frank Strong to the rank of senior patrol leaders. Special badges were awarded to Proctor Jones for perfect attendance for one year. Also to scoutmaster A. O. Weld for two years perfect attendance. A special badge was awarded Donald Johnson for being the best all-around willing worker.

Ray Bohannon had charge of the swimming race and he had his annual accidental dip with his uniform on. Richard Swanson was captain of class A swimmers and won all of the races with Paul Butterworth a close second. Jimmie O'Connor was captain of the class B swimmers and won all of the events with ease.

The assistant scoutmaster was camp inspector. Four boys were appointed to serve the food, wash and dry the dishes and sweep the dining room. Each set of four worked only one meal. Robert Huckins and Frank Strong were the only ones who had time for any fishing. The boys do serve a lot of credit as they were very orderly and the camp kept in very good order.

in track as a freshman, was active in interfraternity athletics, was a member of the White Key, an honorary society, college rally committee, the student band and the student council. He is the son of Park Commissioner and Mrs. George T. Davidson of Park avenue, and gave up another chance to parallel his pal and room-mate as a college proctor when he stepped aside to permit a less fortunate college mate to have his opportunity.

In one "extra-curricular" activity, "Dave" and "Junie" were very close together. The Bowdoin boys assist members of the local fire department in fighting fires, and the Winchester room-mates enjoyed the reputation of being the two most rabid "sparks" in college.

With their college days behind them, Davidson expects to teach, and Pitts goes into business at the convergence, but each will be pulling for the other and rejoicing in his success.

TO STUDY IN ENGLAND

George Abbott, son of Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, 10 Channing street, Cambridge, formerly of this town, who has just completed his sophomore year at Springfield College, will go to England to study for a year at the University of London, it was announced at the college this week. He will return to Springfield for his senior year where he is majoring in the field of social sciences.

Before returning to the United States, Mr. Abbott will travel in Europe next summer with his sister, who was recently married to the English consul from Liverpool to Minorena. He will be enrolled in the economics school at the University of London and expects to sail from this country about Sept. 5.

During the summer, Mr. Abbott will be director of business administration at Camp Rotary, the Lynn Y. M. C. A. camp from June 24 to Aug. 25. He is a graduate of the Winchester High School in the class of 1936, where he played on the basketball and tennis teams. Authorities believe he has possibilities.
